THEY DISAGREE.

A Doctor and a Citizen Curry Each Other Down With a Club.

Daily Guard, September 19.

Last evening about 10 o'clock the cry of "Help! help!" rang out upon the still night air of our usually peaceful and quiet city. The cries were issuing from the upper story of the Christian building, corner of Ninth and Willamette streets, and a number of startled citizens rushed in that direction. Jo DuBois of the Hoffman House was the first person to start up the stairway and he met W. H. Pool, a well-known citizen, coming down the stairway on a run. Pool carried a club in his hand, his clothing was disarranged and blood was flowing quite freely from his face and head. Policeman Pratt arrived in a few minutes and Pool was taken to Dr. B. F. Hamell's office near by for medical assistance. Constable Linton soon arrived on the scene and the officers then turned their attention to the cause of the disturbance. They entered the rooms of Dr. L. W. Brown, a physician of good standing, and found signs of a struggle. In one corner of the room they found blood upon the wall, and a pool of blood was also on the floor. A further search revealed Dr. Brown stowed away in a closet in the hall-ways of the building. He was immediately placed under arrest by Constable Linton. Before leaving his office Dr. Brown had turned out the electric lights. Upon investigation of the men's wounds it was found that Pool had quite a number of severe lacerations, made evidently by the club, about his head and face. Brown had a slight cut on his forehead, disfigured eyes and a finger that bore the appearance of having been in Pool's mouth. Neither men were much hurt, more than flesh wounds, but Pool had evidently gotten the worst of the row. It seems that Pool has frequently been spending his evenings in social chat with Dr. Brown in the latter's office. Last evening as usual he says he went to Brown's office and, after passing the time until 10 o'clock, remarked that he would go home. Brown said he was not busy that evening and told Pool not to be in a hurry. He then got up and went into his private office. Pool was sitting with his back to the door but he heard Brown re-enter and the next instant felt a stunning blow on top of his head. Brown struck him several more blows about the head before he could close in upon him. Pool was staggered by the blows but finally gripped with Brown and the two rolled together upon the floor. In the scuffle Pool succeeded in wrenching the club away from Brown and escaped from the room. The strangest part of the matter is that both men tell the same story, simply reversing their positions. Brown states that Pool came to his office as usual and that they chatted pleasantly together until 10 o'clock when Pool got up and, seizing a club, struck him on the head. He then grappled with Pool and, wrenching the club away from him, struck him over the head with it. He did not see Pool bring the club into his office but did not know how else it could have gotten there. Neither man assigns any cause for the other's attack, but both are members of the Myrtle Creek Mining and Milling Company and it is believed by many that the difficulty arose over the conduct of the business of the company. After Pool's wounds had been examined Dr. Brown was taken before the officers and placed under $1000 bonds, with S. B. Eakin as surety, on the charge of assault with a dangerous weapon. The examination will not be held for a few days in order to give time to see how serious Pool's wounds will prove to be. The club with which the bloody work was done is a part of a shovel handle, made of hard wood, 18 inches in length, and sawed off square at each end. The question which puzzles the minds of the public greatest is the cause of the melee between Brown and Pool and while many surmise the cause yet it may, like the duel between the Portland doctors recently, never be known, as it will doubtless be a case of one man's evidence against another. THE COMBATANTS. Mr. Pool is confined to his bed today, and has a little fever, but it is expected he will be out in a few days. Dr. Brown is around, but wears a rather black pair of eyes.

THRESHING IN PALOUSE.—Columbia, Wash., Gazette, Sept. 13: "A great feeling of uneasiness has been evident among the people of the county during the past week, the result of the heavy rain fall during that period. Reports from the country are that the rains have as yet wrought no damage. About half of the grain of the county has been cut and threshed and 25 per cent remains to head. Probably 25 per cent has been hauled. Since the rains stopped falling, all the teams possible have been at work hauling the grain. The rain fell since August 30 has aggregated 1.22 inches. This includes till 6 o'clock Thursday evening. UNDER ARREST.—Today's Salem Statesman: Chief of Police Diley boarded the overland train for Roseburg last night to bring back to Salem Jim Parker, charged with the crime of assault and battery by a man named Ferguson. Parker is the man who rode the race horse "Black Alder" almost to death last Saturday night, as told in the Statesman, and the assault is said to have been committed in Anderson's saloon the same night. He is now in jail in Roseburg and will be landed here at 2:30 today. The assault and battery charge is only preliminary. It is thought, to a more serious charge. RECOVERING SLOWLY.—Chas Kiesinger of Elk Creek is in town today recovering medical treatment. He is recovering very slowly from the injuries received in an accident at Camp Creek a few weeks ago. The Oliver Chilled plow known the world over. F. L. CHAMBERS, Sole Agent.

Reports from the country are that the rains have as yet wrought no damage. About half of the grain of the county has been cut and threshed and 25 per cent remains to head. Probably 25 per cent has been hauled. Since the rains stopped falling, all the teams possible have been at work hauling the grain. The rain fell since August 30 has aggregated 1.22 inches. This includes till 6 o'clock Thursday evening. UNDER ARREST.—Today's Salem Statesman: Chief of Police Diley boarded the overland train for Roseburg last night to bring back to Salem Jim Parker, charged with the crime of assault and battery by a man named Ferguson. Parker is the man who rode the race horse "Black Alder" almost to death last Saturday night, as told in the Statesman, and the assault is said to have been committed in Anderson's saloon the same night. He is now in jail in Roseburg and will be landed here at 2:30 today. The assault and battery charge is only preliminary. It is thought, to a more serious charge. RECOVERING SLOWLY.—Chas Kiesinger of Elk Creek is in town today recovering medical treatment. He is recovering very slowly from the injuries received in an accident at Camp Creek a few weeks ago. The Oliver Chilled plow known the world over. F. L. CHAMBERS, Sole Agent.
