MR. BUSH INTERVIEWED.

Walter Lyon in yesterday's Oregonian: A. Bush, a banker well known throughout the Northwest, has just returned from a two months' trip in the East. Most of his time was spent in the New England states, New York and Washington, D. C. From his ob-servations, Mr. Bush feels warranted in saying the worst of the hard times is over in the East. Mr. Bush is a Cleveland democrat, and is very discreet in his statements of the business condition of the country, as associated with politics. He maintains that times would have been as distressing had Harrison been re-elected. Mr. Bush gives President Cleveland the credit of averting disaster and maintaining the credit of the government. He finds a considerable business element in favor of renominating Cleveland. Should be be the nominee, Mr. Bush estimates that, besides the sprinkling of democrats, he would carry the support of half the republicans that can read and write. He considers Allison's chances best, and Reed's next best for the republican nomination. The position of neither, says Mr. Bush, is clearly defined on the money question. Mr. Bush has felt the pulse of business in the East, and gives it out there will be a strong demand made on both political parties for a platform clear and unequivocal on the money question. Mr. Bush is also an orthodox dem oerat on tariff lines, and goes so far as to say that Eastern manufactories are becoming adjusted to the new order, and want no change. Free wool with a reduction on manufactured woolens, he holds, is worth more to Oregon than a high tariff on wool. While Banker Bush republican victory next year, yet day. he sees a glimmer of hope for his party in the fact that this is an era of tidal waves, and the unexpected may happen.

It will go far toward removing the disabilities which the farmers of the west now experience and while creating a new market for the west and south it will increase greatly the tonnage arriving in and departing from our eastern seaports.

It ought not to need affirmation that the canal should be built by American agency.
