Florence West: The obvious moral taught by Mr. Spaugh,s ranting political decline is that rant is like wit, it must be often changed in substance to keep it alive. Sultan Spaugh's unvaried political mouthings have become a a dead letter, and they have lost all interest and all value, even as a fiction in the mouths of his late followers. They have gone to join many others in the Dead Sea where plummet line can never touch the ground.

Register: Eugene republicans tain. should wake up and see what can be done toward securing the republican congressional convention. Surely if there is any place in the valley deserving it Eugene is that place. However, she cannot expect to sit back and secure it without at least making a demonstration. It is quite likely that a majority of those who will be in attendance would prefer to come here. Why not give them the oportunity-at least show a willingness to be favored by their pleasure at any rate.

Branches of study have been engrafted on the common-school sys tem which have no place in healthy development. Ornamental branches, the fine arts, the higher sciences, obstruse mathematics, the mere fads of dilettanteism, have been included in the studies which are made a charge upon the tax-rolls, Taxpavers should not be burdened to defray the expenses of study bevond the branches of a commonschool education, as understood in law and proper usage.-Oregon-

The above is a sound proposition and the sooner it is extended to all institutions of higher education, the better for the people. The idea of taxing the people of Oregon boiles. $30,000 a year for universities to teach young men "evolution" and by such professors as Mc-Elroy at $2,500 a year is the height of ridiculousness.-Salem Journal. Such silly statements as the the University of Oregon. Neither is any other creed taught there.

"At every biennial session of the legislature," says the Salem Post, "every section of the state comes down to share in the distribution of the treasury surplus. Union county wants a branch asylum; Gilliam wants a normal school; Morrow wants an appropriation for the Columbia river; Lakeview wants one for a graded school; Jackson county wants one for a normal school at Ashland; Douglas for the school at Drain, and the soldiers' home at Roseburg; Lane for the state university; Benton for the agricultural college; Polk for the school at Monmouth; the other counties for their orphans' homes and other purposes, and the "Salem hog" the rest.

It is said that upon a recent occasion Bro Thorp proceeded to give those Salem Editors a pointer on "heg raising," whereupon Colonel Hofer of the Capital Journal became greatly inceused and remarked: You can't tell me anything about hogs. I know more about hogs than you ever dreampt of. I was brought up in Salem right among

The Roseburg Plaindealer talks very plainly to its party in the following language: "It is self stultification for any one to make excuses for the acts of men of his party when it is palpably plain they have done wrong. The Plaindealer will not to guilty of any extenuation for misdeeds of the republican party that may come to its knowledge. The present administration of the state government was elected upon pledges of retrenchment. That the appropriations as a lump sum was less than the former by a few dollars will not fill the bill. We demand such a retrenchment as will not require a microscope to discover it. Elsewhere we show where the pruning knife may be applied without detriment to the state.'

O. P. Coshow, of McMinnville, is being talked of for the legislature on the democratic ticket from Yamhill county. Couldn't do better. Mr. Coshow is well known in Eugene, having attended the University of Oregon at one time.

RESULTS OF CURIOSITY.

Some Stories of Its Tragic Ending as See

Strange stories of the tragic results of curiosity are reported from time to time, reminding us of the romance of George Idllo, entitled "Fatal Curiosity." It ap-pears that young Wilmet, supposed to have perished at sea, returns to England, and, in disguise, visits his parents, with whom he deposits a casket. But his mother, out of curiosity, opens the casket, and, finding that it contains jewels, she and her husband resolve to murder the owner. Scarcely have they committed the fatal deed when they discover that it is their own son whom they have killed.

A Russian folk tale gives an amusing account of a certain prince who, after traveling a very long distance, is at last welcomed by a princess as her destined husband. She warns him not to ascend his horror he finds three chambers, in each of which he finds the lifeless body of a fair maiden. On gazing at these he recognizes his first love and learns for the first time her cruel and untimely fate.

Similarly, a Spanish etery, known un-der the title of "The Black Hand," informs us how a poor man when endeavor ing to uproot a large cabbage incurred a giant's wrath, and, in order to save his own life, he was compelled to bring the eldest of his three daughters to be the giant's wife. The giant takes her down into his underground palace, puts a ring on her finger, but forbids her to enter a certain room. Curlosity makes her dis-obey, and, as in the preceding tale, she was horrifled on finding several dead

Why Commodore Tyrrell Wears a Pecul-

Old Commodoro Tyrrell was sitting with some friends one day last summer when the heat impelled him to roll up his shirt sleeves. As he did so the eye of a reporter who was sitting by him fell upon an india ink decoration upon his right wrist.

"Let me see that, commedore," he said. The old sea dog extended his right arm across the table for inspection. The deco-ration was a shield and an eagle, and one side was something that looked like an unfinished wreath. "Why didn't the artist finish it?" the commodore was asked.

"Ah, that's a story of the awfulness of war, my boy," said he as he grew thoughtful and stopped the joking that he had been indulging in. "It was when I was a stripling of a boy in the navy that that was done. Like all boys, I thought I was not a full fledged tar until I had myself tattooed, and one of my mates started to make a bracelot around my wrist. That was the day before the battle of Mobile Bay. He did as much as you see there and was going to finish it next day. Next day we went into action, and I thought bell knew what finished him. "I never would let anybody else finish it, but maybe when I go to Davy Jones' locker I'll meet Dick and get him to finish

Arguments that have seemed sound to their scientific projectors have been advanced to prove that the human race started on the brink of the Euphrates, in the heart of central Asia, in Lemuria, a continent supposed to be at present at the bot-tom of the northern part of the Indian ocean; in Greenland, in central Africa, in Central America, in Ceylon and in the fabled continent of Atlantis, which is conjectured to have emerged from the Atlan-tic on the line of the Canary islands and the Azores, and from which, if it over existed, both the eastern and the western hemispheres might have drawn their population. Certainly here is choice enough writes Edward S. Martin In The Ladies' Home Journal. The scientific scarcher after paradise is embarrassed by the richness of his field and hesitates to leave the Euphrates' bank and become a wanderer over all the earth. But at least be may stick to Asia if he will. One of the most favored "cradles of the human race" is the vast plateau of Pamir, north of the Himalayas in central Asia. Anthropologists find deep signifi-cance in the fact that in that region the fundamental types of all the races of man-Pamir or within easy distance of it are yellow people, black people and whites, and in the same region philologists find the three fundamental forms of the human
