A DEAF MUTE ROMANCE.

Became Engaged by Correspondence and Confirmed It on Sight.

Miss Lillie E. Divvens of Pittsburg and Jonathan Haney of South Bethlebem, Pa., have just been married at Pittsburg. Both are deaf mutes and belong to families of good standing.

Mr. Haney and Miss Divvens became attached to each other before they had met or even seen one another. A mutual friend who knew both well thought that their likes and dislikes were not dissimilar, and he believed they would appreciate an acquaintance. Over a year ago he urgently requested Mr. Hancy to write to Miss Divvens, which the young South Bethlehemite did. Miss Divvens answered the letter, which did not reach her unexpectedly, and the correspondence became warm. Mr. Haney proposed by mail, making the fulfillment of the obligation conditional upon the mutual satisfaction of one with another.

He went to Pittsburg last October to see his intended bride, and when they met and had seen something of each other, both were well satisfied to have their acquaintance lead to the altar.

Miss Divvens is 22 years of age and prepossessing. She was educated in the Western Pennsylvania Institute for the Deaf and Dumb at Edgewood. She spent seven years in her mental training, leav ing the institute about five years ago, Her home is at 55 Pride street, Pitts burg. MEANS OF GRACE.

Michigan Preacher Fills His Church With Barbers and Tools,

The Rev. M. H. Ford, pastor of the Methodist church at St. Louis, Mich., recently preached a sermon especially to barbers. Many of them were present.

The feature of the evening was the decoration of the church, about the walls of which all kinds of tonsorial articles had been neatly arranged. Razors, seissors, hair dye, brilliantine, bay rum, towels, cups, soaps, strops, bottles, mirrors and washes were arranged about, while in the pulpit a big barber's chair served for the pastor's seat.

The sermon was replete with barber's terms, and the preacher drew lessons in life from the various articles on view. In the past Mr. Ford has preached to firemen, G. A. R. veterans and blacksmiths, with his church appropriately decorated on each occasion.-Chicago Tribune.

LUCKY CHICAGO.

Her University One of the Richest of Educational Institutions.

It is rather hard to keep track of the gifts to Chicago university, so fast they follow. As we figure it, the latest million dollar donation raises the university's endowment fund to $8,000,000, which, with $2,000,000 in land and buildings, gives it property worth $10,-

Miss Culver's gift also becures one of the $2,000,000 gifts from Mr. Rockefeller, which he promised to give as soon as like sums were raised elsewhere. This will give it property worth $11,000,000 at once, and with the $2,000,000 still coming will make it the richest institution of the kind in the country.

Of this sum Mr. Rockefeller has already given $5,425,000, and the $2,000,-000 additional he has pledged will raise his donation to $7,425,000.—Boston Herald.

A TEMPTATION.

When Leander Clarke married Mabel Thorpe, he had no expectation of ever being a rich man, but as his affairs appear at the present time he is on the broad highway to future wealth. It all arose from the fact that he took time by the forelock, the only way poor mortals have of ever getting even with him of the scythe and hourglass.

Now, Mabel Thorpe did not expect her hero to swim the Hellespont of life with all his armor on, but she did demand from him, as she had a right to do, a high moral standard, for she had not married him until she had seen, as she believed, his whole past life laid open before her as a book. There is no time when a man is as weakly sentimental and as religious as when he is trying to live up to the standard of a pure young girl's ideal, and Leander became almost an angel.

There are very few of us capable of making human angels of ourselves. Good and evil are as persistently present in our moral nature as light and darkness are in our atmosphere, and one serves as the complement of the other To banish night we use the light of science, to counteract wrong we invoke divine help, but so largely is our worldly nature in excess of our spiritual powers that we are constantly in danger of erring to be forgiven-in other words, sinning and repenting.

Mabel Thorpe believed in an inflexi ble uprightness. The command to do avil that good may come was to her a perverted text. She was not aware that there are sins of omission as well as of commission, and that her unrighteons condemnation of sinners and her severe udgments were in themselves of a sinful nature. The self righteous are often harder to live with than the sinner.

Leander Clarke had been a good son, and he intended to be a good husband. He was both proud and fond of his wife, but certainly regretted that he could not give her all the luxuries that she could appreciate, not even the grand piano that her musical talent deserved. But he went to work with a will to make her happy and hoped in a few years to be able to add all other needful things

Among the wedding presents of the young couple was one that far outshone all the rest-a superb set of diamonds sent by an uncle of Leander's who was pear to death and gave the residue of a large estate in this extravagant present. Leander himself was genuinely sorry that such an undesirable gift had been made, but he argued that his wife was a sensible woman and would turn them into something more suitable to their condition in life-a piano, for instance, which was a necessity rather than a not endure to have the subject menluxury. What was his surprise when his | tioned before him. Not even the success bride said :

"I never was so pleased in my life. Diamonds represent to me the crystallization of everything beautiful in art and nature. I never dreamed that I should possess such magnificence."

'But these have no associations," said her husband. "They are not heirlooms." "They will be. All diamonds were new at some time. And are they not associated with the dear old man who gave them?" The dear old man had been a terror in the family and had only given the diamonds to Leander's wife because he hated that nephew a little less than the others, whom he hoped to make horribly jealous and angry and had succeeded.

When Leander asked his wife to keep her diamonds in the bank, she promptly "But you surely will not wear them, dear?" he suggested.

"Why not?" she asked.

"It would injure our prospects and not be consistent with our position." "They were a gift to me. Surely I have the right to do as I please with my

"The right, yes. But I thought my wife had more discretion. I did not know you cared for gewgaws, Mabel." So the first cloud came on the horizon of their love, but Leander was good tempered and Mabel satisfied, and it disappeared. The truth was that Leander had expected a handsome sum of money from this very uncle, who was a bachelor and very old. But age had not mellowed an ugly disposition to thwart his relatives, and after raising the young man's hopes he took a malicious pleasure in disappointing them.

The young couple began life in a pretty furnished cottage on the modern plan of a chafing dish and hand painted china, and it worked like a charm. Mabel presided over the dainty cuisine, the butler's pantry, the parlor, and really did wonders. Leander fell in love with her over and over again. But for the ship or dredger would render it imdiamonds they would have been as hap-

Get your revolver and go wearin, snowing conclusively that the use of tobacco is not a habit but a disease of the nervous system caused by the education of the nerves to crave for the nicotine poisoning. What then is the easy, permanent, natural way to relieve yourself of the use of tobacco? Certainly not by discontinuing it and suffering the nervous reaction and prostrating effects and mental degeneracy sure to tollow the long and continued use of tobacco. Does it not suggest itself to you that the natural thing to do is to take a remedy that is specifically prepared to eradicate the effects of the nicotine in the system and to overcome the nerve craving effects and restore the tobacco irritated nerves to a normal and healthy condition? To this, we all say, "Yes, where is the remedy?" You will find it in No-To-Bac. This is easily down stairs.
