A CHANGE IN THE BALLOT LAW.

It is some time before the June election, but is not too early to call the attention of the voters to an amendment in the manner of voting. We will remind the reader again sometime before the election. Make a note of it now.

The last Isgislature made a change in the method of marking ballots. The voter does not now strike out the names which he does not want to ballot for. A simple cross made at the left of the candidate denotes his choice. The following is the provision of the law in question: "On the receipt of the white ballot as aforesaid the elector shall forthwith, and without leaving the enclosed space, retire alone to one of the compartments provided, and shall there prepare his ballot by marking immediately to the left of the name of the ca. didate of his choice for each office vote for,"

Ohio legislators have in the past done a great many foolish things, but the members of the house of representatives of that state have ust placed themselves on record as having colipsed all former achievements at tomfoolery, by passing a bill making it a crime for women to wear high bats at theaters. High Constitution, hats at theaters, or other publie gatherings, are an abomination, but when a lot of fool legisand other lators attempt to prevent the ladies

ALL FOOLS DAY.

On the first day of April, the day that boys and girls play unsuspecting tricks upon each other, the earth reaches a quartile aspect as to her perihelion point, hence marks a period in her movement about the sun on a point denoting one quarter of the journey. It is the first quarter pole. In ancient times feasts were celebrated on this day each year and the first of the early spring products were gathered and eaten as a memento of the occasion. In those times as in the present time, the early growth of vegetation was not always to be relied upon. An occasional late frost sometimes destroyed the things that had been figured on for the feast, and the people were left, fooled, as it were, for they were obliged to substitute other things. To the Veters and Taxpeyers of The custom of fooling people grew out of this real condition, and April first has been looked upon as the day on which to watch out. The fun experienced by such tricks has spread the custom over the entire earth. It has become a fad that promises to last down to the end of time. Hence the idea of fooling each-other on April the first, sprang from an observation of astronomical law, and the manner of celebrating the same.

THE POWER OF JOURNALISM.

In response to a request for a sentiment to be read at the annual banquet of the Boston Press Club, Charles Emory Smith, the editor of the Philadelphia Press. formerly minister to Russia, sent the following:

"The power of journalism, always expanding, has pre eminently illuminated recent history. It has leaped seas and lead nations. Its diplomacy has outrun and out-matched that of the diplomats.

"Within ten days the journalism of England and America recast public opinion, mastered govern ments, modified policies and made war impossible-and this not by summate coops equalling the strokes of statecraft or the genius of gener-

Miss Anna W. Williams, the young woman whose portrait is carried in every one's pocket, will be married some time this month. Twenty years ago Miss Willams' handsome features were engraved for the silver dollar and they have become familiar to everybody. In spite of the fact that her prospective husband is a gold bug of pronounced stripe he will be unable to prevent his wife's face from being worshiped as an idol by the ilver men.
