

MANAGING A DAUGHTER.

You can't do it; the man who can must be more than a rival. Give her her own way; it will save her the trouble of taking it.

Pay for her dresses if you can afford it. Her dressmaker will see if you don't.

If she takes a fancy to any man you don't want her to marry, tell her your heart is set on marrying him and she will never marry any other.

If there is any man you want her to marry kick him out of your house, forbid the servants to admit him, distribute mantraps, spring guns and bulldogs all around your grounds, lock her in her room and vow if she marries him you won't leave her a penny.

If she has no voice encourage her to sing whenever you give a party. It will attract attention to her and give your guests an excuse for complimenting her.

If you are a poor man teach your daughter how to dance and play the piano. She can learn cooking and dressmaking and those things when she is married.

It is hinted that the republican county convention will not dare to express itself on the financial question. We will see.

Curry county has instructed its delegation to the republican convention to favor the nomination of Binger Hermann.

The Lane county republican convention is sure to instruct for Binger Hermann "as long as his name is on the Congressional Convention."

Senator Hoar, of Massachusetts, suffering from overwork and insomnia, and has been advised to go abroad. It is said he will sail for Europe as soon as congress adjourns.

Turpie, of Indiana, is the most studious man in the senate. He is congenial to his friends, delightful in society and snappy in debate, but likes his books more than anything else.

Mrs. Sloan, widow of a rich and mean New York man, gives up the income from $1,000,000 in order to marry the man she loves—and he is an American. The American man is slowly but surely coming into favor.

General Fitzhugh Lee is the most popular man in Virginia. He is an expert hand-shaker, and when he goes to Washington begins hand-shaking at the depot and keeps it up until he reaches his hotel.

When he is in the city nearly all the colored people who were the property of the Lees at Arlington, and who bear his name, hunt him up with the eagerness of near blood relatives.

L. Z. Leiter, the retired Chicago merchant, who has made his home in Washington a number of years, and whose daughter's husband belongs to the English gentry, thinks that just so long as the congressional talk about our foreign relations continues business will not get a chance to revive.

As the talk has reached that stage where it is mere talk, and it would be a healthy idea to give business a chance.

Roseburg Plaindealer: A stranger reading dispatches from Roseburg concerning the primary meetings last Saturday would think somebody had lied, and truly they may, for there is a flat contradiction in the dispatches to the Oregonian concerning it.

D. S. K. Buick states that the delegates are for Hermann and Simon Caro says they were against him. The fact is they are for Hermann. Mr. Caro, the only man opposed to Hermann originally, pledged his honor as a man that if chosen as a delegate he would not oppose Mr. Hermann, and on those assurances he secured votes enough to elect him.

DISGRACEFUL SCENES.

Fights Everywhere—The Polls Blocked—Several Arrests.

SEVEN PROBABLY DEFEATED.

Special to the Guard.

PORTLAND, April 2, 4:30 p. m.—An immense crowd is around the polls and they are blocked. Voting is very slow. Several rows between judges and deputy sheriffs have occurred. A judge in the first ward was arrested by refusing a pollman to vote and was taken to jail. A new judge was appointed. Larry Sullivan, a pollman, was arrested. The crowd pushed him into a hole and he came to the window and drew a gun on the police. Great excitement everywhere. Several fights have taken place, Simon himself being a part.

Both sides claim a victory. The police working hard for the Hume ticket. A general fight took place at the court house over allowing Hume men inside the polls.

Simon's game is to block the polls and prevent the Hume men from voting. If a full vote is polled Joe Simon is defeated. The indication is that he will be.

At least a thousand people are around the polls in the second, third and fifth wards awaiting a chance to vote.

Disgraceful scenes are to be witnessed all over the city.

LATER. Simon, electing 74 delegates to 50 for the Hume crowd.

FOSTER'S FORECASTS.

We May Look for Considerable Weather in April.

Foster's last bulletin gave forecasts of the storm wave to cross the continent from 30th to April 3d and the next he says will reach the Pacific coast about April 3d, cross the west of Rockies country by close of 4th, great central valleys 5th to 7th, Eastern states 8th.

The warm wave will cross the west of Rockies country about 3d, great central valleys 5th, Eastern states 7th. Cold wave will cross the west of Rockies country about 6th, great central valleys 8th, Eastern states 10th.

This disturbance will bring remarkable weather for April; we may expect a repetition of the storm and cold weather that occurred from 7th to 14th of March.

In the Mississippi valleys destructive frosts will occur unusually far southward about 8th to 11th and all tender plants should be protected as far as possible. Early fruits and vegetables in Northern states will probably suffer from these frosts as the weather following March 27th will probably cause a rapid development of buds and blooms.

Where it is possible these should be covered in order to protect them, or fires should be kindled. In most parts of the Southern states gardeners and fruit growers understand the great advantages of fires to protect fruits and vegetables from frosts but in the North this is little understood.

It is not the heat but the smoke from these fires that protects from the frosts. The smoke hangs over the lands like a fog and as no frosts occur when the clouds are very thick and when the winds are blowing and smoke can be made to envelope a tract only in calm and cool weather, exactly when it is needed to protect from the frosts.

From the above stated facts it will be seen that the best material for fires that will make the most smoke and the such material could be gathered in a place where it could be kept dry and ready for the approaching winter. It is about midwinter.

The second disturbance of April will reach the Pacific coast about the 9th, cross the west of Rockies country by close of 10th, great central valleys 11th to 13th, Eastern states 14th.

This disturbance will be accompanied by considerable rainfall and followed by another cold wave and frosts similar to the first cold wave of the month.

The warm wave will cross the west of the Rockies country about the 9th, great central valleys 11th, Eastern states 13. Cold wave will cross the west of Rockies country about 12th, great central valleys 14th. Eastern states 16th.

GENERAL APRIL WEATHER.

Generally the first of April will be warm, 7th to 14th cold and wet. 15th to 22nd of month warm and dry. This forecast will not fit all sections, but is intended as a general average of the whole country.

In the Rocky mountains and on the Pacific slope sufficient rain will fall; also in Northwest Texas and the arid countries immediately east of the Rockies.

OVERTONS

INITIATED IN REALITY.

College Frolics Fraught With Danger to Unwed Victims.

"When I was in Cornell, a dozen years ago," said a Cornell man to a Washington Star reporter, "we used to have great times. We had one fellow, who is now earning a salary of $15,000 a year, while his father receives the largest salary of any man in the United States, who was too much for even us. We had a society in which the initiation ceremonies were something frightful, including, among other pleasant features, a coffin, in which the initiate was buried. That is, we put him in it, and nailed on the lid (there were air holes in it, that he did not know about), and then with ropes we let him down through the floor to the next floor, where we had a pile of ashes, which were shoveled on to the coffin in a way which was really blood curdling to the man inside.

"Well, this chap I am telling about was to be initiated, but when the time came, which was Saturday night, he was what he is every Saturday night, so full that he couldn't come to the scratch. We looked for him, but failed to find him, and the opportunity passed, but not for long. About 1 o'clock in the morning he was seen reeling upstairs to his room, and thither we followed him, carrying the coffin along. He was so full that he didn't know anything, and by the time we got into his room, after giving him what we thought was time to get into bed, he was sound asleep.

"We weren't very particular how much noise we made, and after knocking things around pretty lively, we had set the coffin upon some chairs, and then lifted him out of bed and laid him in it, putting in a blanket to make it easier on him. Then we withdrew to think over what he would think when he woke up in the morning and found where he was. I guess I must have been more curious on the point than the others, for as soon as I got up I slipped over to his room to get a place to watch him when he came to himself. I didn't want to disturb him while I was getting in hiding, so I opened his door very carefully and peered my head in, and the sight I beheld almost paralyzed me.

"His hair turned white in a single night," interrupted the reporter with more or less horror.

"Not in the slightest," continued the Cornell man. "He was sitting up in the coffin, as comfortable as you please, smoking a cigarette and reading a Sunday paper."

"Of course," he concluded, "it was on a rather than on him, but he explained that during the night he had horrible dreams of being put in a coffin and buried, and he had some sort of an idea that he might be dead, but when he woke up, he tumbled to the situation at once, and knew that some of the gang would be in to see about it, so he sent out for a morning paper, kindled a cigarette and was ready for visitors."

The Northumberland Man.

The Hodge, of Essex, or Cambridge-shire, with his comparatively poor physique, due to generations of low wages and hard feeding, his lack of ambition and love of slops and beer, is not comparable to the intelligent and robust birds of Northumberland or Roxburghshire or the Lothians. Any one accustomed to make long walking tours in both countries will admit the truth of the following observation. In any purely agricultural district of Scotland you may travel for 10 to 14 miles without passing a single public house, and indeed the disappearance of many ancient hostleries is a conspicuous feature of the last decade, but the poorest and most depressed portions of Essex and Suffolk are still liberally supplied with beer houses.

Grumble as Hodge will about being driven 9 or 10 shillings a week, he lays himself open to the retort that he subsists and has a surplus for ale. It is cheap, vile and heady, and one would think doubly hurtful to those who are ill nourished. Again, the surroundings are very unlike. The pure and person, excellently as they may fulfill their duties, in some respects have a pasturing influence. Very characteristic was the comment of the rustic after listening to a fiery orator, who had promised the abolition of landlords and clergy: "Then who will there be to give us our Christmas coals and blankets?"

Against the minister and the laird no such charge can be fairly brought.—Chambers' Journal.

Only a Substitute.

Here is a little story from our friend, the primary school teacher, who tells it of a little 7-year-old girl named Maggie:

"Maggie came into school after recess recently chewing vigorously," she began. "I thought that perhaps she was finishing an apple or a piece of candy, so I did not say anything to her.

"I happened to look in Maggie's direction about half an hour afterward and noticed that the masticating process was going on as hard as ever. Of course I immediately jumped to the conclusion that she was guilty of chewing that children's delight and teachers' horror—tutti fruit.

"I called Maggie up to my desk and accused her of chewing gum. She denied it at once. She stopped chewing, but had had no time to remove the gum, for I watched her closely as she came to my desk from her seat.

"I talked rather sharply to her, and she finally broke down and commenced to cry. 'I was only minding it for Katie Jones,' she sobbed."—Portland Express.

An Infant Terrible.

He is a charming little fellow of 4, pretty in his ways, good to look at, but as naughty as they are made. He sat on the bottom step, kicking his fat little legs and refusing utterly to obey his mother, who had told him to go up stairs several times in increasing degrees of severity. After a few minutes of this elating of wills his exasperated young parent picked him up somewhat suddenly, carried him up and set him down very firmly on a chair in his room and went out and shut the door. Silence reigned. Not a sound from him for at least half an hour. Then the door was opened and a sweet little voice called out: "Father, have you got over your tantrum yet, for I should like to come down?"—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Juries in the State of Utah.

The state of Utah will substitute 8 men for 12 in all jury cases, except those involving capital punishment, and provision is made for the finding of a verdict on the agreement of 6 out of the 8 jurors. In view of the general discontent with the jury system in other states, it is just possible that Utah's action is the forerunner of a widespread change.—Helen (Mon.) Independent.
