THE MEN WHO BUY NOT.

Why Newsdealers Sometimes Slip Rubber Bands Around Their Magazines. The man who gets up early in the morning so he can have a look at his neighbor's paper before the rightful owner has a chance to take it in from his doorstep does not stand very high in the estimation of the newsdealer. This is because he spoils trade. There is another man, however, who is even more cordially detested by the vender of periodicals. He is the fellow who never buys anything, but has the association, but also by crowds of habit of dipping into the weekly papers and magazines. The keeper of a newsstand makes a tempting display of his stock, for he knows that a strong piceath last night at the performance of ture or even a pretty cover often brings him a stray customer, but he expects the mere looker on to be content with this much, and he is likely to frown upon the man who resorts to all kinds of schemes in order to get a peep at the inside pages.

The stands in the ferry houses and railway stations suffer the most from these penurious cranks, for there is nothing else to attract their attention while they are waiting for a boat or a train. They run through the leaves of the latest books and magazines and have been known to draw the tacks out of papers nailed up against the stand so that they could see what was on the other side of the sheet. But it is not what they see and read for nothing that worries the newsdealer. He would be willing to put up with that if the did not injure his stock. Indeed, he would much rather have a man take up a magazine bodily and carefully examine evhibble—Where are are you going in such a gry page than to have him grab it by gry? Wabble—Down to the dectors. A man ran her umsrells into my earthis after an her umsrells into my earthis after in a surreptitious attempt to see the ery page than to have him grab it by pictures. He would also rather have you ask him to hand you a periodical than to have you shove his stock all out of line while trying to see the half of the page that is hidden by a pile of other papers. So great is this nuisance that the newsdealers had to adopt schemes for their own protection. The most successful, so far as preventing the leaves from being turned, consists of placing a rubber band around the top and bottom of a magazine and using it on the top of each pile. - New York World.

Able to Read Writing.

"I never will forget the queer incibought a typewriter and sent out in print my correspondence and bills to my customers who lived in the rustic regions about me," said a merchant from a backwoods town. "Several of my patrons dropped me, and I was at a loss to account for their manner, which changed toward me. At last the mystery was solved. A burly young farmer drove up to the store, tied up his oxen and stalked into my office.

"'Mr. Blank,' said he, 'I'd have you know that I know how to read writin, and you don't have to print your letters and bills when you send them to me. I don't propose to be insulted in such a manner.

"He then threw down the letter on my desk and stalked out. "-Louisville Courier-Journal.

Kinglake and The Times.

It was Kinglake who uttered one of the neatest of mots on the peculiar character of the London Times. He had little fondness for that journal in spite of personal friendships which might have been expected to soften his view of the question. The paper was still to him a sort of Juggernaut, irresistible and fateful. On seeing an announcement of the new editor's marriage he exclaimed: "Heavens! That brings The Times into relations with humanity."

Mrs. Calkins is the daughter of the Hon. M. Farley of Fresno and niece of Colonel Tom Ochiltree, who once represented Texas in congress. She is a woman of medium height, an expressive face, rich golden bair aud looks little more than a girl in years.

"My labor is simply the result of necessity and the impoverishment of the market along certain lines," she said. "I never was satisfied with the old fashioned baking pan, so I sat down and planned a design for a new one. Tom Hannum and the Collector.

The death of Tom Hannum, one time a well known habitue of the press galleries on both sides of the capitol, was sincerely deplored among old time members yesterday, and some amusing anecdotes were told of the popular newspaper man by his friends in the course of the day. One of the best is worth repeating.

Hannum was in the habit of taking a dents and experiences I had when I first late breakfast at the Press club every morning. On one occasion, while he was vigorously discussing a hearty repast of ham and eggs, a bill collector suddenly walked up to Hannum's side and laid his account before him. Hannum looked at the bill and then at the collector and in a deliberate tone began :

"You blamed fool, can't you observe the amenities of ordinary civilized society? Don't you know that a man's club is like his home, and that you are in danger of being summarily ejected for coming in here without a card of membership and without being introduced? The rules of this club require you, if you have business with a member, to wait in the lobby outside until a waiter takes in your card and ascertains whether the gentleman with whom you have business is present. Now, you go out into the lobby, take this bill with you and comply with the rules of this club."

The collector apologized for the infraction of the rules of the Press club, which, to tell the truth, were never enforced on anything, and waited until President Isaac Lewis of Sabina, Ohlo, the steward came to ascertain his wishes. "Please announce me to Mr. Hannum," said the collector.

The steward told him to wait, and he carried the man's card to Hannum, who looked at it carefully, then handed it back to the steward and said, "Not at home."-Washington Post.

She Meant Well.

There is a very charming and a very charitable woman in Washington whom all in society know and respect for her many and practical beneficences. Yet this good woman is a veritable Mrs. Malaprop. Only the other day she recalled the visit of a young woman in quest of alms. There had been some question as to the integrity of the young woman's cause.

"But," said the good and rich woman, "do you know that she came to me in such a garbage of woe that I could not refuse her?"-New York Sun.

Elsewhere, however, the reports of my addresses in the English newspapers were taking effect. After nearly nine months' busy life in England the king of the Belgians invited me to visit him, and I was then informed of his strong inclination to undertake for Africa what I had been so strenuously advising Englishmen to do. He was already president of the African International association, which was about to set on foot a humanitarian enterprise from the cust coast, and he led me to understand that if I were free from other engagements he would like to employ me in opening the Kongo basin to European influence and civilization.

It was my opinion that the best way of setting about the work was to construct a light surface railway which should skirt the cataracts of the lower Kongo and then to launch steamers on the upper waters, which I estimated would furnish about 6,000 miles of navfrom August to December, 1878. BEAUTIFUL THOUGH PAINFUL.

We sing "Come, Gentle Spring," and are often very sorry that we did anything of the kind, for Spring, though beautiful, is sometimes very painful. The very luxury sometimes very painful. The very luxury we enjoy in the return of the baimy air is the latent source of a great many pains and aches. It is because the nerves are relaxed in this way that they become weak and an easy prey to sudden attacks of neuralgia; a tonic of cold healthful air braces them up and makes them strong against any suck attack, but the sudden change to warmth makes them liable to be prayed upon by this disease. For this simple reason the great nerve disorder has many victims at this time, but we have in St. Jacobs Oil something that restores the tone, vigor and strength of the nerves to what they had been. The prompt use of it in these neuralgic attacks of spring time is sure to be followed by a perfect cure.

The Skeleton of De Soto. The local historians of Baton Rouge, La., believe that the mortal remains of Fernando De Soto lie buried between two gigantic live oaks near the present site of Port Hudson. The books tell different tales about the death and burial of the great discoverer. Some say that he was wrapped in his mantle and thrown into the Mississippi; others that the remains were incased in a hollow log. In 1853 three hunters-Rigsby, Davis and Hurin-were encamped near what is now Port Hudson. While kindling a fire they found a human skeleton in a hollow log that had been lying in a drift. The bones were those of a man six feet tall. In the log a helmet, a rusty sword and a large bronze crucifix were also found, and on one of the fingers of the skeleton's hand a large seal ring. The discoverers of this ghastly memento believe that the remains were those of De Soto, the discoverer of the Mississippi river. The burial place of the bones is well known to the Rigsbys, who still reside in Louisiana.-St Louis Republic.
