A Soothing Car Ride.

The latest cure for insomnia is cheap. The remedy was suggested by an old doctor to whom a despairing young man had gone for dvice. "Of course," said the doctor, "I could give you drugs that would put you to sleep, but in the case of a young man that is to be avoided. The reason you cannot sleep is your nerves are unstrung. That does not necdrugs. What you want is a mild excitement, that will lift your nervous system ont of the rut it has fallen into. The best thing in the world to do that is a trolley ride. Don't try to settle upon a conductor where the car is going, but just go along with the car. It will surey come back some time to the point where you took it. If the route is eight or ten miles long, so much the better. One thing is certain-you will either sleep during the ride or as soon as it is over. "-Philadelphia Record.

CONSUMPTION CURED

AN ABSOLUTE REMEDY FOR ALL PULMONARY COMPLAINTS.

T. A. Slocum Offers to Send Two Bottles Free of His Remedy to Cure Consumption and All Lung Troubles -An Elixir of Life.

Nothing could be fairer, more philan-Nothing could be lairer, more joy in its wake than the offer of T. A. Slocum, M. C., of 183 Pearl street, New York. Perfectly confident that he has an absolute remedy for the cure of consumption and all pulmonary complaints, he offers through this page.

the cure of consumption and all pulmonary complaints, he offers through this paper to send two bottles free to any reader who is suffering from lung trouble or consumption, also loss of flesh and all conditions of wasting. He invites those desirous of obtaining this remedy to send their express and postoffice address, and to receive in return the two bottles free, which will arrest the approach of death. Already this remedy, by its timely use, has permanently cured thousands of cases which were given up, and death was looked upon as an early visitor.

Knowing his remedy as he does, and being so proof-positive of its beneficent results, Dr. Slocum considers it his religious duty, a duty which he owes to humanity, to donate his infallible remedy where it will assault the enemy in its citadel, and, by its inherent potency, stay the current of dissolution, bringing joy to homes over which the shadow of the grave has been gradually growing more strongly defined, causing fond hearts to grieve. The cheapness of the remedy—offered freely—spart from its inherent strength, is enough to commend it, and more so is the perject confidence of the great chemist making the offer, who holds out life to those already becoming emaciated, and says: "Be cured."

Congressman Daniels is a member of the committee having the Felton case in hand. He said of course he would hear any woman in such a case, and she could talk when the time for arguments arrived. Mrs. Felton is said to believe in woman's right to vote, and if her husband should be given a seat, which seems very improbable, Mrs. Felton, owing to her husband's age, would exercise all a congressman's prerogatives in every thing but the right to vote or go on the floor of the house and talk.

It is pretty hard for a man from Georgia to have to fight, but Judge Maddox, whose seat Mrs. Felton wants for her husband, much prefers that Mrs. Felton should prattle to the committee than that the lawyers should argue for her husband. - New York Journal.

She was appointed secretary of the Republican county committee and afterward was nominated by the county convention for a seat in the senate of the new state. Owing to the decision of the Utah supreme court against the legal right of women to vote at the recent election, Mrs. Pardee voluntarily withdrew her name from the ticket, in order not to endanger the interests of her party in the legislature.

The president of the senate in recommending Mrs. Pardee for secretary of the senate said: "I recommend Mrs. Pardee by reason of her fitness for the place. I consider her work in the committee rooms fully up to the standard of any man's."

In private life Mrs. Pardee is womanly and unassuming in manner. She has undoubtedly a career of brilliancy and usefulness before her.

The Effect In New Zealand.

Mrs. Hirst Alexander, a well known Australian journalist, now making a short visit in London, says that marked good effects have followed enfranchisement of women in New Zealand. The premier of New Zealand, Hon. Richard J. Seddon, and the principal journals have all acknowledged, she says, that the influence of women during the elections and after has been beneficial. The women have turned their attention to ameliorating the conditions of prisons, promoting the welfare of children and other measures with which they are especially qualified to deal.

Giving the vote to women has in no wise disturbed the even tenor of their domestic ways, and there is no sympery hazardous journey. They will ment has opened a woman's labor buattempt to cross the Atlantic in a boat without the aid of steam, sail or rudder.

De Tabley and His Books.

The side on which I was most capable of appreciating Lord de Tabley's gifts as a collector was the bibliographical. If I am anything of a connoisseur in this direction, I owe it to his training. His zeal in the amassing of early editions of the English poets was extreme; he was one of those who think nothing in the morning waiting for the shutters to be taken down. But his zeal was eminently according to knowledge. He valued his first edition for the text's sake, not for the bare fact of rarity. Every book he bought he read, and with a critical gusto. A little anecdote may illustrate his spirit as a collector. In 1877 he secured, by a happy accident, a copy of Milton's "Poems" of 1645, a book which he had never met with before. Too eager to wait for the post, he sent a messenger round to my house with a note to announce not merely the joyful fact, but-this is the interesting point-a discovery he had made in the volumenamely, that the line in the "Nativity Ode," which in all later editions has Germany's Wisdom.

German wisdom is a repreach to this country's lack of activity in the field of domestic science and dietetics. Long ago Germany established schools for teaching girls in factories, mills and home service the details of housework and cooking. Even private establishments in the kaiser's empire, in cases where the list of women and girl employees is long, maintain at their own expense training schools for those who are serving them. Though this is done from a purely selfish motive, it is significant as showing the commercial value of well fed and well kept laborers, a point that should not be overlooked by social econ-

Tried the Doctor.

The Lancet tells this story to show the trials of a country doctor in France. A young physician settled in a commune, whose panpers be attended for $10 per annum. One night, soon after his arrival at this El Dorado, he received an urgent summons to visit a patient who lived at a distance of six kilome ters from the village. On reaching the cottage-it was then II p. m.-he found the doors closed and lights extinguished. In reply to his knocks the door was opened by a sturdy peasant, who laughingly informed him that there was no illness in the house, but that his wife had wished to see if, when any one was ill, he would come if sent for! The nafortunate medico-since dead from overwork and probably underfeeding-remarked, "I could have felled him to the ground.

President Kruger lives up to his Puritan principles. When in Paris, he refused and he thought the costumes worn by ladies at the opera or parties very immodest. He said he could not think how any lady who respected herself could look at a ballet. The only books he had ever read besides the Bible were the "History of the Princes of Orange, 'History of the Thirty Years' War, Motley's "History of the Dutch Republie." Macanlay's writings on William of Orange and "The Pilgrim's Progress." He said that in the Transvani when a boy was sent to school he was provided with a gun and a pound of ammunition. He could then bring home a bag of game and defend himself against the Kaffirs, but the parents tried, nevertheless, to make these self reliant boys understand that the meek shall inherit the earth. Another story told of President Kruger is that when he got home from his visit to Europe he said England was well enough, but the land seemed to be all owned by somebody. One could not even go out into the country and sit down under a tree to smoke his pipe but somebody would come along and say that he owned the land and ask what the smoker was doing there. - Buffalo Cou-

One of the objections to Christman boxes, writes James Payn, is that one is seldom quite certain whether one is giving to the right people. Dumas tells us that he took some pains to discover one Christmas day what he was paying for. A second lamplighter excited his suspicions. "I have already made my little present," he said, "to the man that lights the street lamp." "Yes. sir," returned the other, "but I am the man who puts it out."
