SATURDAY, ...JUNE 13.

U. of O. commencement next week.

Congress adjourned today. A good riddance.

There are 138 negro delegates to the republican national convention.

The Salem university athletic club should stop "kicking" or disband.

The circus will soon be in Eugene and the small boy will be happy.

You can build up your town, 1st, by trading with home people; 2d, by encouraging public improvements; 3d, by the economic use of public money; 4th, by advertising liberally; 5th, by keeping up to date, complete stock of goods to correspond with your advertising; 6th, by providing good schools and churches; 7th, by avoiding cliques and rings and all exclusive kinds of business; 8th. by bidding a warm welcome to all strangers, who seek a home in your midst; 9th, by standing together as brothers in business and socially; 10th, by making a heroic effort to pay your debts; 11th, by not talking all the time about hard times; 12th, by not requiring business men to sell goods below costs or artisans to toil without a profit.

Here is the way the recent election is viewed in the East, at least by the World: "Oregon is the first state to hold an election since McKinley became a certainty as a republican candidate. The questions on the returns is naturally of whether the republican heart is being fired at the prospect of another McKinley bill campaign. If it is, the Oregon news fails to show it. The state gave 33,291 for Harrison and only 26,522 for Cleveland in 1888; and in 1892 it gave 35,002 for Harrison, 14,212 for Cleveland and 26,000 for Weaver. Now, though it is, without doubt republican still, the result is so mixed that the republicans forget to shout over the 'Oregon victory' as it was their want in former campaign years." Of the Oregon election the Philadelphia Times says: "Oregon has fired the first gun of the campaign. It looks as if the charge was fulimate of silver." The Springfield Republican remarks: "Whoever won was either a straddle-bug or a silver-bug. The politicians will notice this and will be more inclined than before to trim their sails to catch the popular breeze. The Oregon election is a silver victory."

The first coinage law enacted under the constitution, April 2, 1792, as recommended by Hamilton, concurred in by Jefferson, and approved by Washington, provided for the free and unlimited coinage of both gold and silver. The free coinage of silver was stopped by the act of February 12, 1873, and by the act of June 22, 1874, legal tender quality was taken away from any standard dollars then in existence, except to the extent of $5. In 1878, the congress of the United States passed what is known as the Bland act, which provided that the secretary of the treasury should purchase from time to time silver bullion at the market price thereof, not less than $2,000,000 worth per month nor more than $4,000,000 worth per month, and cause the same to be coined monthly as fast as so purchased into such dollars, that such silver dollars would be a legal tender at their nominal value for all debts and dues, public and private, except where otherwise expressly stipulated in the contract. The Bland act was followed by the Sherman act of 1890, by which the secretary of the treasury was authorized and required to purchase each month at its market price 4,500,000 ounces of silver and issue therefore treasury notes redeemable in coin. In 1893 President Cleveland call an extra session of congress for the sole purpose of repealing the so called Sherman law. The repeal passed both houses, and was signed by the president on November 2, so that to-day the mints of the United States are absolutely closed to the coinage of silver.

TWO FOR FIVE.—Senator Dubois of Idaho informed the United States senate that two glasses of beer could be bought for five cents. Senator Mitchell of Oregon promptly inquired where the purchase could be made, but the Idaho senator did not furnish the information. The senator from Idaho should not keep the country in suspense on such a matter as this. If there is any place in this broad land where two glasses of beer can be bought for five cents, a thirsty country would like to know were it is. It is a great question.

FOR DAMAGES.—Salem Statesman: Rumor has it that the Bond Bros. will claim $1000 damages from the O R & N Co for failure to transport their circus equipment up the river on Monday in the time agreed to. The delay caused them to miss Albany, thus the desire for a remuneration from the company.

TIED.—The official vote of Josephine county shows that H C Perkins, fusion candidate for surveyor, has tied with B O McCulloch, republican candidate, each receiving 871 votes. They will be compelled to settle the matter by "drawing straws."

Brevities.

Daily Guard, June 11.

The O R & N steamer Ruth will arrive at Harrisburg Sunday with Eugene freight.

Mr Samuel Sykes, of Roseburg, has accepted a position in F L Chambers' hardware store.

Several students have been up before the faculty for ungentlemanly conduct while at Salem.

About 1000 railway conductor's excursion ticke s have been placed on sale in this city and it is estimated that they will all be sold.

E C Smith and T D Linton returned last evening from a fishing expedition to Fall Creek. They had poor luck and report the streams in that vicinity too high for good fishing.

Wednesday's Albany Democrat: "Capt. Nelson, recently of the Eugene S. A., was in the city last evening on his way to Astoria, where he has been assigned. He goes to a tough place."

SHILOH'S CURE, the great Cough and Croup Cure, is in great demand. Pocket size contains twenty-five doses only 25c. Children love it. Sold by Henderson & Linn.

Wednesday's Salem Post: A crazy man was brought to the asylum today from Lane county. He yelled most lustly while being taken from the train, and seemed to think everyone was trying to murder him.

Busy people have no time, and sensible people have no inclination to use a slow remedy. One Minute Cough Cure acts promptly and gives permanent results.

OSBURN & DELANO.

The lucky ones who drew the valuable big Examiner prizes are F H Steel, of Los Angeles, Cal, who drew the country home and orange grove; John O'Donnell, of Grass Valley, Cal, drew the gold nugget and W J O'Neil, of Butte, Mont, drew his weight in silver.

Miss Mabel B Walter closed today a successful term of kindegarten at her residence on Ninth street with a sumptous banquet, assisted by the mothers—and a mother's day—exhibiting the work of the little tots and explanations of the kindegarten system.

A man named Lee Smith was instantly killed on Mountain creek, near Mitchell, on May 29, says the Prineville Review. He was in a corral separating horses when he was thrown violently to the ground and was run over by the horses and in passing over him, one stepped on his head, crushing in the skull and causing death instantly. He was a married man and had a family.

Mrs T. S. Hawkins, of Chattanooga Tenn., says: "Shilo's Vitalizer 'Saved My Life.' I consider it the best remedy for debilitated system I ever used." For Dyspepsia, Liver or Kidney trouble it excels. Price 75 cents. Sold by Henderson & Linn.

Wednesday's Pendleton E O: Miss Clara Condon, kindergarten teacher at the Pendleton academy, leaves tomorrow evening for her home in Eugene. Miss Condon has won universal praise for her work in the academy and her departure is regretted by the friends she has formed during her stay in Pendleton. She probably will not return to Pendleton at the opening of the fall term of the academy.

Agricultural College Barometer: "At the meeting of the Amicitia, a prize consisting of a book of Tennyson's poems, will be presented to Mr Frank E Edwards for winning a contest held April 25. The object was to use the word 'saw' the most times in an essay containing one hundred and fifty words. Mr Edwards used the word one hundred and forty-nine times, and so won the prize."

The cure of rheumatism has often taxed medical skill, but its prevention has been very easy by an occasional use of Simmons' Liver Regulator. It keeps the liver well regulated and the system free from poison. Therein is the secret of health. "I have used it for years for indigestion and constipation and also found it gives one relief from a touch of rheumatism,"—N H Hughes, Lordsburg, N M.

The announcement is made by the Oregonian that Capt W W Saunders, on June 10, 1896, at St John's, Montana, will be married to Miss Minnie Allison. Saunders is now practicing law at Spokane and is post trader of the Colville Indian reservation. Miss Allison has been teaching school in Montana. Saunders a few years since murdered a man at Albany and was sentenced for life in the penitentiary. After serving seven years he was pardoned by Governor Pennoyer.

Mr James Perdue, an old soldier residing at Monroe, Mich, was severely afflicted with rheumatism but received prompt relief from pain by using Chamberlain's Pain Balm. He says: "At times my back would ache so badly that I could hardly raise up. If I had not gotten relief I would not be here to write these few lines. Chamberlain's Pain Balm has done me a great deal of good and I feel very thankful for it." For sale by Osburn & DeLano.

The American Beauty owes her prestige more to a clear complexion than to any other attribute. A cup of Parks' Tea will enable anyone to possess this. It clears the skin and removes pimples and that sallow, muddy look. Parks' Tea is used by thousands of ladies for the complexion. Without being a cathartic it cures constipation. Sold by A. YERINGTON.

If it required an annual outlay of $100 to insure a family against any serious consequences from an attack of bowel co plaint during the year there are many who would feel it their duty to pay it; that they could not afford to risk their lives, and those of their family for such an amount. Any one can get this insurance for 25 cents, that being the price of a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. In almost every neighborhood some one has died from an attack of bowel complaint before medicine could be procured or a physician summoned. One or two doses of the remedy will cure any ordinary case. It never fails. Can you afford to take the risk for so small an amount? For sale by Osburn & DeLano.

Parks' Cough Syrup cures Coughs Colds and Consumption. Mrs. Catherine Black of Le Roy, N. Y., says: "I took one bottle of Parks' Cough Syrup. It acted like magic. Stopped my cough and I am perfectly well now." Sold by A. YERINGTON.

THE OLD MAID.

Thirty-five and still single. When I was young, Frank Waldron came and saw and conquered. We were not engaged—that is, Frank had not said in so many words, "Will you be my wife?" and I had not referred him to papa. Sometimes I thought of this, but a look into his dark eyes and his reassuring smile charmed away my every care. Everybody said that he was deeply in love with me but Sallie Price, and she, just because she couldn't get him herself, declared that she didn't believe he cared one bit about me.

Frank came to me one day, with a cloud on his handsome face, and said:

"Fanny, I am going away. You know this village is too small to support two physicians, and Dr. Philips, who has been here so long, has all the best practice. I cannot stay and brave poverty. I must seek my fortune elsewhere. If I am successful, you shall hear from me; if not, forget me."

And then he left me, leaving only a bunch of forgetmenots, which he had brought in his hand. That was years ago. I have still a withered bunch of flowers, but they tell me no tales of the donor. Rumor said that I had rejected him, and that his pride would not allow him to stay in the village, but Sallie Price only shrugged her shoulders and remarked, "I told you so!" As for myself, I kept my own counsel. I was still young and had plenty of offers, but somehow I didn't care to marry.

Only last year I could have married Jones, but Jerry is ugly and squints fearfully, and I won't marry him. People shan't say that Fanny Emmerson went through the woods to pick up with a crooked stick at last. I am not miserable, if I am an old maid and live alone. I have enough to eat and to drink and to wear and nobody to say to me, "You shall or you shan't," and that's more than many a married woman can say.

Alice, my oldest sister, who lives 20 miles away in the city, has just sent me the following characteristic note by mail:

DEAR FANNY—As quick as you receive this put on your hat and shawl and come to us. Fanny (that's my namesake—I wish she had been called Betsy or Susan) is very ill with some kind of an infectious fever, and the doctor says that, without good care, she will die. Now you are the only one that can take care of her, and you must come. You know you have no one depending on you. Don't stop to pack; it won't make any difference about your clothes. Yours in haste, ALICE.

Humph! It wouldn't have made any difference about me either, only I was handy to have around in case of sickness. After grumbling to myself for awhile I prepared myself and took the first train for the city. As I whirled along in the steam cars I made up my mind that this should be the last bit of nursing that I should do. But how to avoid it? I might sell out and go away to live, but that was fallacy. I knew that I could not exist away from my kindred. I might adopt two or three orphans, but I couldn't stand their noise, and then how my pets—birds and flowers—would suffer. No, all these schemes must be dismissed as impracticable. Still I was determined to rid myself of the nursing, even if I jumped out of the frying pan into the fire, even if I was obliged to marry in self defense. Alice met me at the door and kissed me and said:

"Dear Fanny, I knew you would come."

But I responded ungraciously, for I almost felt that I had been betrayed by the kiss of Judas. I found my niece very ill and immediately put on my wrapper and prepared for a hard battle. The doctor came and left his orders with me, for my coming was a sign of relief for Alice. Her duty will now merely consist in asking after the condition of the sufferer.

The doctor had a very pleasing voice. I scarcely glanced at him, for all doctors are the same to me now. But I think he is tall and dark. I didn't notice the color of his eyes, but I don't think he will care much about the opinion of the nurse.

The doctor has just been here. I looked at him when he said Fanny was better, and his eyes sent a sort of odd thrill through me. He has got very beautiful eyes, not at all like Jerry Jones, squinting ones.

* * * * * * * *

Three weeks I nursed that girl while she struggled between life and death. But the crisis was passed safely. I was so tired that I lay down on the sofa and fell fast asleep, and while sleeping I dreamed that Frank had come back. How odd! I have scarcely thought of him for years. What a pity that people are awakened from pleasant dreams and forced back into the hard realities of life. I awoke and heard Alice say, "Poor thing, she is tired out!" and the doctor's voice responded: "Leave her to me. I will take care of her," and I opened my eyes and saw the doctor's handsome ones gazing into mine, and a vague remembrance crept into my mind.

I looked again. When he held out his hands, my remembrance was a certainty. Frank Waldron stood before me in all the pride of his manly strength and beauty. But I shook my head. I could not forget that he had been within 20 miles of my home and had not sought me out. He came over to me and gently bade me sit down and listen to his story. He told me of his struggle with sickness and poverty, and finally of his good fortune; how he started to come to me and reached the city, and when about to take the cars for the village that he met Sallie Price in the depot, and she told him that I had married and left the village long ago; then, filled with deep despair, he turned away, and for a short time gave himself up to every species of dissipation.

But the better man triumphed, and he commenced practice in the city. All this and more he told me, and when he finished I decided that I would not marry Jerry Jones.—New York News.

The One Difficulty.

With their usual lack of a good subject for conversation, a group of women were discussing lately what death they would prefer to die. One preferred drowning, another heart disease, a third strangling. One who poses as very clinging and soulful said, with a Beardsleyesque languish, that she thought she'd "like to be kissed to death."

The remark was repeated to Mrs. Craigie, who was immediately 'extremely curious to see the woman who said it. One night at the theater Mrs. Craigie's hostess said: "There, in the second box, is the woman who wanted to be kissed to death. What do you think of her?"

"That woman!" exclaimed John Oliver. "I should think she'd have trouble to find an executioner."—New York Herald.

Mr. Pennoyer is Caustic.

Mayor-elect Pennoyer of Portland will not go to Salem next Saturday to attend an alleged indignation meeting over the defeat of W S Vanderburg, populist candidate for congress in the first district. He had been invited to speak at the meeting, but yesterday declined the honor, with thanks. In doing so, he also took occasion to make a few pointed remarks, in writing his declination to the committee. He wrote:

"If the policy I advocated had been adopted, and Vanderburg had withdrawn from the field when the democrats agreed to pull off Myers, and Judge Waldo made the congressional nominee, he would have had such a majority over Tongue that he could not have been counted out. No other is to be blamed for the election of Tongue than the populists themselves."

The Bohemia Mines.

COTTAGE GROVE, June 10.—P J Jennings came in from the Bohemia mines today. He said there are 73 men working on the wagon road, which will be completed July 1. The 20-stamp mill will then be hauled in. The machinery will all be run by electricity, and the tunnels will be lighted by electric lights. A tunnel has been under headway since February. It will tap the main vein at a the depth of 440 feet.

THE TIE.—Grant's Pass Courier: "The general result as shown in last week's Courier is only affected in the matter of surveyor which proves to be a tie. The law provides that the decision shall be rendered by lot in such cases. As the office is worth only about $75 a year there will probably be no spirited contest. Mr H C Perkins, the demo-pop candidate, went away last week to his old home in Lane county, and at this writing has not signified his intention to return." Mr Perkins informs us that he will go to Grant's Pass about the 20th and settle the matter.

FROM ANIDEM.—Salem Journal: The Quartzville mine is still running a 20 stamp mill full blast, day and night, working about 80 men, and ore increasing in quality as well as quantity. Supt. Smith went out to Albany yesterday and General Manager Lawler is expected in now daily. Pay day is near at hand and snow is a thing of the past in here. Two pack trains make regular trips. Snow about five feet on the summit. Mr Frank Reed is looked for tomorrow. His arrival means a stir at the Albany Milling & Milling Co's works, which is now being put in order by Mr Herb Ames with a small force of men.
