The move appeared a hostile one and John McKee, a late convert of the People's United church said to those near him: "Let's keep our ground." This remark was heard by the marshal and his backers and they turned on McKee. Officer John Conian was at the elbow of the mareral scattering at this juncture, but could not attend to her duties. Mrs Jeff Jennings, also a member of the church, was not agile enough to escape the swinging club and was struck on the shoulder. During all this time McKee was passive in the hands of the police and no strugg'e of any kind was seen on his part. He was hustled down to the lockup and the crowd dispersed.

George Middleton, also in the crowd, was indiscreet enough to tell Patrolman Frank Morse that Kauffman had overstepped his authority, that the city. Morse told Middleton if he didn't shut up he would arrest him. Middleton kept on talking and be was escorted to the city jail.

Dr McInturff's Case

WALLA WALLA, March 24.-In the trial of West McKee, there was an exchange of compliments by the attorneys which was extremely interesting to the court room speciators. The simple point at Issue was whether Mc-Kee, after Chief Kauthman had ordered the crowd dispersed, in saying, "Let's held our ground." was quilty Secretary of State H R Kincald came of an offense against law. The attorneys introduced evidence, made Ross Huston, of Spencer precinct, their arguments, and Dr McInturff and Leslie Bay, his coadjutor, also spoke in McKee's behalf.

City Attorney CM Rader addressed the court stating that it was clearly evident that the prisoner had resisted the police department while they were The Moffatt vs Winter & Manville engaged in the fulfillment of their case in the county court is still on duty. Even if the defendant had not attempted to use force, his remark, England, France and Germany have "Stand firm," which he had not dewithdrawn from the blockade of nied, when ordered to "move on," was sufficient to establish his guilt.
