The Blessing of Strong Nerves

Unobtainable, not by the use of mineral waters, but by a recourse to effectual tonic treatment. The tonic should be such as to stimulate the system, and then as sparingly as possible. Vigorous nerves are quiet ones, and the most direct way to render them so is to restore the vital energies. That sterling invigorant, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, will be found sufficient for this purpose, since it tenderly removes impurities from the system and assimilation of food, so that the body assumes its due amount of nourishment, and consequently of stamina. Rheumatic tenderness and affections of the kidneys and bladder are also counteracted by the Bitters, which is a thorough medicinal stimulant, instead of the raw exotics of commerce, which react injuriously upon the nervous system.

TEACHERS LOCAL INSTITUTE.

A Lecture by Prof. Letcher—Interesting Sessions.

The institute held at Creswell on Friday and Saturday last week, was the fifth held by Supt. Hunt since he was elected last June. The Methodist church was comfortably filled on Friday evening to hear the address by Prof. John D. Letcher, of the U. of O. After some pleasing exercises by the children of the Creswell school, Prof. Letcher was introduced. He announced as his subject "A Trip to Hawaii, or the Sandwich Islands." Hawaii is situated in the central part of the North Pacific Ocean, about 2100 miles or a seven days voyage from San Francisco. There are eight inhabitable islands, having altogether an area of about one-fourth that of Oregon. Honolulu is the principal city and has about 25,000 population. It has excellent hotels and stores. A large free library and reading room is open to all. The Y. M. C. A. does its usual work here. The principal churches are of the Congregational type. Excellent schools, both public and private are conducted. Especial mention was made of the industrial schools founded by Mr. Bishop.

The highest mountains of the island are about 14,000 feet in height. The climate of the island is the same the year around and therefore on the big sugar plantations may be seen a gang of coolies plowing, another planting the cane and still another taking it to the mills, all at the same time. These plantations, often thousands of acres in extent, are worked by coolie labor which is paid but four or five cents per day. About $33,500,000 is invested in the sugar industry, and Americans, who number about 5,000 and who practically control the islands, own about $25,000,000, while the natives and Chinese each own about $250,000, the rest being held by the English and German residents. The coffee industry is new on the islands, but it is believed that it can be made a success.

On the islands are found 850 species of flowering plants, 653 of which are found nowhere else; among the 150 kinds of ferns are found those that are three feet in diameter. Fruits of all kinds grow in such profusion that it is said that a person, canoe without putting forth more effort than is required to pluck and eat the bananas, bread fruit, guavas, dates, melons, etc.

Persistent and bloodthirsty mosquitoes are about the only drawback to this paradise. A vivid description of Kilanet, the only live volcano on the islands, closed the address. The crater is fifteen acres in extent and until a few days before the Professor's visit it was boiling full, but when he was there the boiling scalding mass was about 20 feet below the surface. In this burning lava as many as six fountains could be seen playing at one time, while the lava ever and anon surged and beat along the sides of the crater. The native name of this volcano means "House of everlasting fire."

The lecture was replete with many personal incidents and laughable anecdotes and was thoroughly enjoyed by the general Professor's auditors. The Saturday morning session was opened by singing which was followed by a class exercise in primary reading by Mrs. Sadie Downing. The object aimed at and attained is to have the pupil form a mental picture of the word, and thus retain it. "The word method" which was used, was highly commended and a full discussion of difficulties and helps followed.

Oral Physiology was presented by Miss Gertrude Grousebeck. In primary grades the teaching of hygiene should be made most prominent. Oral lessons are better remembered than those derived from books. Let the children use their surplus animal life in exercise songs. The pernicious effects of alcoholic drinks and narcotics cannot be too strongly dwelt upon.

After recess Rev. M. O. Brink was introduced and took the subject of "What religious instruction should be given in the public schools." The three places where the character of children is formed are at home, the school and the church. It is necessary that these cooperate in securing the proper development of the child. That man only is perfect, who is perfect in body, mind and spirit. The latter is too often neglected. The present divisions in the Christian world, the large number of criminals coming from the irreligious class and the consequent heavy expenses all arguments for ethical culture. To this end introduce a good text book on Ethics. The following should be taught:

- 1. There is a Creator and Ruler of the world, whom we know as God. 2. It is necessary for man's well being and well doing that he know something of God. 3. It is necessary for God to reveal himself to man that man may know Him. 4. The Bible contains the revelation of God to us. 5. This life is a preparation for a future life. 6. That love to God is the highest duty of man and that love to man is like it. 7. A text book on Ethics the Bible is worthy of a place in our schools. 8. Rev. Kandler supported this view, though he did not favor compulsory Bible reading in schools. Prof. Letcher thought that more is the most important thing taught in our schools. The Bible is the only text book on morals worthy of a name. In state universities in the East, in Yale and other institutions the Bible is regularly read. Mental disciplines alone will not make good citizens, but moral training is necessary. Other teachers present took part in the discussion and it seemed the opinion of nearly all present that a text book of some kind should be used for teaching morals and manners. The afternoon session was spent by singing and exercise in Mental Arithmetic, by a class from the Creswell schools and conducted by Professor Miller. The three objects desired are instructing, testing and drilling. Much written work should be used. Let recitations be conducted with closed books.

Prof. Geo. Morris of the Golden public school then took up the question: "Should Corporal Punishment be Abolished and Why?" Corporal punishment should not be abolished as no law is efficient unless it has a penalty attached. The way to secure obedience to law is to begin in the home and school. Suspension and expulsion of pupils are poor substitutes for corporal punishment. The teacher should exact implicit obedience, kindly if he can, forcibly if he must. Prof. Letcher said that it should rarely be used, but when used should be well done.

Miss Celia Bollman presented her views on "Busy Work." Three things are necessary to success: First; ability on the part of the teacher to secure suitable material; Second; the work must be pleasurable and profitable; and Third; it must lead them to observe and think.

Several interesting forms of work were given by Miss Bollman and the other teachers; for instance, number and alphabet cards, counters, such as beans, pebbles, tooth-picks, etc., dissected pictures, the coloring of outline pictures, sewing paper folding, etc.

At this time Mrs. Melton of the Creswell W. C. T. U. presented the work of the Demorest and W. C. T. U. elocutionary contests. The books, costing 10 cents, for the Demorest contest can be obtained from the Medal Contest Bureau, 10 E. 14th St., New York; the W. C. T. U. books, also costing 10 cents, may be obtained from the W. T. P. A., The Temple, Chicago.

After recess and a song by the Creswell school, Miss Luella Brewster spoke of "The first day in a country school." Let the teacher consider her adaptation to her school, and visit parents and school officers before the first day. School officers should be present and assist in the opening of school. No rules should be laid down at first except "Do right," or the old Quaker's rule, "Mind your own business." The principal gave many practical hints, too many to be noted here.

Wm. E. McQueen, of Cottage Grove, spoke of "How I grade my country school." The teacher must have a well defined object in view. In Mr. McQueen's school he has four grades and 23 pupils and but two are out of grade and that in only one study. The course of study laid out by the County Superintendent was commended.

The Superintendent then gave a thorough explanation of the graded course of study recently issued by him. He then invited the teachers to feel free to call on him for any advice needed. The institute was then closed by singing "America."

"A Country Observer"

An anonymous correspondent—has probably ashamed to sign his true name—has a communication in Monday's Oregonian criticizing the open fight made by the GUARD against Doctor Chapman. "A Country Observer" is the nom-de-plume behind which he hides. The assumed name is intended to be misleading, but the disguise is so transparent that we are surprised that a person with any common sense should seek to hide the personality by use of a name that in itself is a falsehood. "A Country Observer" is not a country observer, but a resident of Eugene. This person does not answer one single charge made against Doctor Chapman but seems to be tormented with a load of fear that the university will be hurt by any criticism of the Doctor. He does not seem to realize that it could not be hurt much worse than it has been by the employment of a man for president who had not the necessary training and discretion, not considering lack of mental caliber, to manage its affairs in a straight forward impartial business manner.

As a necessary will surely destroy the same of small and completely denature the whole system when entering it through the mucous surface, such action should never be used except on prescriptions from reputable physicians, as the damage they will do will be to a good you can possibly derive from them. The University of Oregon, is controlled by a few men, who are not worthy of the name. They are trying to keep the University of Oregon, from being a university, by keeping it a school. It is a school, but it is not a university. It is a school, but it is not a university. It is a school, but it is not a university.

Hon. A. G. Hovey this morning received the sad news of the death of his next older brother, Major James B. Hovey, at Marietta, Ohio. He was one of a family of six brothers and two girls, four of whom are living.

Major Hovey was descended directly on his mother's side from Mrs. Hannah Dustin, the story of whose brave escape from the Indians during the early wars with the savages is well known throughout New England. Gen. Stark of revolutionary war fame was relative, also Governor Hoy of Indiana, the latter a cousin. The Hovey family came from New Hampshire to Ohio when Major Hovey was sixteen years of age.
