

GREENLEAF, Or, Nov 10—There is a hermit on Lake Creek, a mile or two from Deadwood, Lane county. His name is Peter Hello, and he took a vacation 16 or 17 years ago, where he lived on a small farm. The acre or two that he has had has grown up to brush, together with fruit trees which he planted. He never cared for, and the windows of the house in which he lives is hardly open from the road. He is seldom seen outside of his hovel. He has a small income from a farm in the Western states, but is never seen to spend a penny if he can avoid it. He came to this country from Christiania, Norway, 52 years when 14 years old. His appearance is that of a very feeble old man and should be in his cabin, he might live there for months, within a few rods of the main road, unnoticed.

THE CROP TOO BIG.—Pendleton E O: "J E McClure has returned from the Palouse, where he has been at work with T J Sprowl's threshing outfit. According to Mr McClure it will be impossible to harvest the Palouse crop this season. The Sprowl outfit could contract ahead for 250,000 bushels in the neighborhood of Davenport, Wash, if it desired to do so, so vast is the amount of grain still standing in the field. The wheat is all bluestem and has averaged as high as 44 bushels to the acre. Work will continue as late in the fall as possible. The ex-late in the Palouse shows the experience of the Palouse shows that there really can be too much of a good thing. It would be less vexatious and expensive to have no crop at all than to raise a big one and lose it."

His Name Will be Undissolubly Linked With That of the Great Snow Peak. The Seattle Post-Intelligencer of November 7th, says editorially: "It is a source of satisfaction to the friends and relatives of the late Prof. Edgar McClure, of the University of Oregon, that the purpose of his fateful trip to the summit of Mount Rainier was not totally defeated. Prof McClure has been able to read his notes and to calculate therefrom the exact height of the mountain. The result leaves no question of the scientific accuracy, care and thoroughness of his measurements, and establishes beyond all doubt the precise altitude. "It is to be hoped and expected that all scientific bodies, as well as the United States government, will accept Prof. McClure's figures. The tragedy by which the professor lost his life has given his name a permanent, though mournful, connection with the great snow peak, and it is well that his valuable and genuine achievement be fully recognized. It is interesting to add that the United States government has made Prof McClure's measurements of Mount Adams the official figures."

Dr Edson, the Specialist, Gives Him Encouragement. The following regarding Charles Wilkinson, appearing in the New York World, is brought to the attention of the GUARD through the kindness of Henry F Hollenbeck now in this city: To the Editor of The World: Will you permit me to appeal to the public through the columns of your paper in behalf of a singularly deserving and pitiful case of distress that calls for immediate relief? It is the case of a bright young lawyer of unimpeachable record who was once an honored member of the Oregon legislature, and later, when his health began to fail, a practitioner of high repute in Arizona. Coming to New York a few months ago, he was almost immediately seized with consumption. Dr Edson, the specialist, who has kindly given him his services, tells him he must go at once to New Mexico, and gives him strong hopes of recovery if his orders are promptly obeyed. Every day in this climate lessens his chances, and yet, having a wife and child to support, and being absolutely without means, he must stay here and die unless some means can be found of sending him and his family away. Does it not seem too bad to let this man die and leave a widow and orphan when $100 given now would probably save his life? Will not a few benevolent ones co-operate with me? JOHN BALCOMB SHAW, Pastor West End Presbyterian Church, No 307 West One Hundred and Fourth street.

STRICKEN LAWYER AIDED. To the Editor of The World: I beg leave to acknowledge the following contributions for the young lawyer, stricken with consumption, in whose behalf I appealed through The World: Mrs J H R, $1; name to be withheld. A Brother Lawyer, $5 Cash, $10; Sympathy, $1; through F H & Co, $40. No further contributions will be needed. I thank those who have thus responded. JOHN BALCOMB SHAW, New York, Nov 2. LATER. J H Wilkinson received a letter from Charley who is now at Denver, Colorado. He reports his health better.

Died. Mrs I J Castleman died at her residence in Portland, Nov 8, 1897, at 1:30 p m, aged 63 years 11 months and 11 days. The remains were brought to Eugene and a short funeral service held at St Mary's Episcopal church at 2:30 this afternoon. Deceased was a sister of L Davis and Mrs James Huddleston, of this city, and was well known here. She has many friends, who will learn with sorrow of her demise. Mrs Iantha Jane Castleman was born in Lima, Ohio, Nov 28, 1834. She removed with her parents, Benjamin Davis and Catherine S Davis, to Indiana in 1858, from thence the family removed to Oregon in 1847, and settled two miles north of where Eugene now stands, Eugene F Skinner and L Shaw, living on the present site of the town, and Elijah Bristow and Wm Dodson, at Pleasant Hill, being the only settlers then living in what is now Lane county, others coming with the same party and later in the same year. She was married to Geo W Evans in 1850, who died in 1853, leaving her with two children. Later she was married to P F Castleman, who survives her. She also leaves four children, Mrs L Patterson, of Columbia county, Mrs Judge J F Campbell, of San Francisco, and Mrs H Garnes and Wm R Castleman, of Portland, Oregon. Mrs Castleman resided many years in Eugene, and will be well remembered by all the pioneers of this county.

The citizens of upper Lost Valley are erecting a bridge across Lost Creek at D C Mathews. The county furnishes the material. Mrs Os. Gartin, who has been seriously ill for some days, is considerably improved. Miss Tzee Dunten was married last Sunday at her mother's residence, to a gentleman from Eastern Oregon. Name unknown to the writer. Mr John Blakely returned from a business trip to Eugene last evening. The Trent Mill Co has started a logging camp on the upper creek. They will log all winter. Rufus Woods has moved into the house on John Guiley's place and will work for Mr Guiley.

The political cyclone, which struck the McKinley administration in the East, is only a forerunner of what will befall the prosperity spouters in Oregon next fall. Already its Bryan in 1900.

	DECLINED.—L N Roney has declined the foremanship for the repair of the South Santiam bridge, tendered him by Linn and Marion counties. The bridge is a new one and seems to be poorly constructed and it will be a dangerous job to repair it. This is not the reason that Neils refuses to accept the job. By all fairness he was entitled to the contract at the start, and he does not now propose to have anything to do with it. In fact, he told the court when the bid was let that it would not stand up under the specifications.
