THE FIRST NATIONAL BANK

Moved to Its New Home
 Today.

A MODEL BANKING HOUSE

A Credit to the Institution and Eugene.

COMPLETE IN ITS APPOINTMENTS

Daily board Nov 9

"Out of the old home into the new."

The First National Bank of Eugene, after a continuous residence of nearly 15 years in the Hendricks block, today opened for business in its new home at the corner of Ninth and Willamette streets. To write the story of this bank is to give a place in the history of the upper Willamette valley to its leading financial institution. The bank commenced business January 1, 1884, under the firm name of Hendricks & Eakin, the present president and cashier of the First National Bank being its sole owners. It continued to gain in public favor, due to the strong personality of its owners, who brought to the conduct of their business the reputation of conservatism and attention to business details, justly earned by many years of active partici-participation in the business life of Lane county and Oregon.

On Feb 27, 1888, the bank was granted a charter under the National Banking act, as the First National Bank of Eugene. The capital stock was placed at $100,000, and besides Messrs Hendricks & Eakin, W R McCornack,

G R Christian and J M Hendricks, were named as directors. The late Eben Stewart succeeded J M Hendricks, deceased, as director, and on acceptance of the resignation of W R McCornack, these two places on the board were filled by P E Snodgrass and F L Chambers, who, together with Messrs Hendricks, Eakin and Chrisman, form the present board. At the first meeting of the board T G Hendricks was elected president and S B Eakin cashier, which positions they have continuously held.

The business of this financial institution has enjoyed a steady growth and today is on a more solid footing than ever before in its history. At the close of business Saturday Nov 5, 1898, the bank had deposits of $261,777.15 with a total business aggregating $495,705.38, being the largest the bank has known since organization.

The capital stock at the last quarterly statement of the bank was $50,000, with a surplus of $50,000. The bulk of stock in the bank is owned by the president and cashier. To handle the trust in their charge wisely and well.

As given in this article, together with the biographical sketches of Messrs Hendricks and Eakin, it will be seen that their business life has been indissolubly linked together from the year 1881, at which time Mr Eakin took a position as clerk in the general merchandise store of Mr Hendricks, which was located where the new home of the bank now is. Possessed of more than ordinary ability as financiers, these two men formed a business partnership of large gain to themselves and benefit to the community, combining in the partnership thus formed those qualifications necessary to a successful life, yet rarely found so completely moulded together as in this instance.

The arrangement of the new bank necessitates some changes in the titles of the bank's working force, and to accord with the new order of things L H Potter has been assigned to the wicket of receiving teller and S S Spencer as paying teller. The appointments will meet with the hearty approbation of the bank's customers, who recognize the business qualifications of the gentlemen coupled with tact and unflinching courtesy which peculiarly fit them for the new duties they have assumed. Messrs Van Wilson and Frank McAllister as clerks will,

President T. G. Hendricks.

HON. T. G. HENDRICKS, president of the First National Bank of Eugene, was born in Henderson county, Illinois, June 17, 1838, moving to Oregon with his parents in 1848. They settled at Pleasant Hill, twelve miles east of Eugene.
 T. G. Hendricks was educated in the first district school and at the Cascade Academy in the same locality. Remaining on the farm until 1858 he then came to Eugene and entered the store of E. L. Bristow as clerk, and in 1860 bought an interest in the business, which was a mercantile one. The firm of E. L. Bristow & Company was then established. In 1866 they erected the first brick building that was put up in Lane county on the northwest corner of Willamette and Ninth streets, which they occupied for mercantile purposes. In 1870 Mr Bristow sold his interest to W.
 W. Bristow, and he died in 1874. Through his death Mr. Hendricks became sole owner and proprietor and continued the store until 1884, when he sold the stock, but still owned the building. In 1883 the partnership of Hendricks & Eakin was organized to conduct a banking business. They erected a two story brick building 20x65 feet for bank purposes, on West Willamette street between Eighth and Ninth, and manifested their enterprising spirit by introducing plate glass in their front finish. January, 1874, they opened their doors for banking purposes with an authorized capital of $50,000, continuing until February, 1886, they then organized and established the First National Bank of Eugene, with a paid up capital of $50,000. Mr. Hendricks was elected president and he continues in that capacity.

He owns 160 acres of land adjoining Eugene, known as Hendricks' addition, to College Park, and other valuable residence and business property, including his residence on West Ninth street.
 He was married in 1861, his wife surviving but a few years, leaving one daughter, Ida B., now wife of F. L. Chambers, a prominent hardware merchant of Eugene. Mr. Hendricks married again in Eugene, 1867, to Miss Martha A. Stewart, daughter of Elias Stewart, pioneer of 1852. They have had two children, Ada D. and Ruby V.

Mr. Hendricks is a democrat in politics and was elected one of the first councilmen of Eugene. He has served several terms in that capacity and one term as mayor. He served eight years as superintendent of schools, and in 1880 was elected senator for Lane county. He was one of the organizers of the University of Oregon, was a member of the building committee, and held the position of regent and chairman of the executive committee for over 20 years. He was one of the organizers of the Eugene Water Works in 1887, and has continued as director. He is a member of I. O. O. F. and is recognized as one of the ablest business men of Eugene.

 working force.

DESCRIPTION OF BUILDING.

The building is designed after the Romanesque style of architecture, giving the appearance of beauty, simplicity and solidity. The arcade entrance is approached by granite steps leading to a tiled floor in the vestibule, which is paneled with oak on ceiling and sides, and finished with carved molding. To the left a massive oak and plate glass door gives entrance to the banking room. To the right an easy stairway leads to the second floor. The outside entrance is softened and enlivened by a large lower-buffed ornamental grille.

the wood is preserved by four coats of filler and varnish.

A special feature of the banking room is the fireplace situated on a substantial brick mantel, with bracketed shelf and carved moulding, made from Spanish cedar. The fireplace serves also as a ventilator to the room.

SECOND FLOOR.

The second floor is partitioned into eight rooms. The finish is in yellow fir, steam and kiln dried, except the doors, which are of cedar. This floor also has natural wood finish, protected by filler and varnish. A feature of these rooms is that they are all connected by doors, and any number can

Cashier S. B. Eakin.

HON. STEWART B. EAKIN, cashier of the First National Bank of Eugene, was born in Elgin, Kane county, Illinois, August 28, 1848.
 Stewart Eakin received his education in Bloom. When he was twelve years old he entered his father's store, before and after school hours, and his bed was in the store building up to the time of their departure for Oregon. He drove one team across the plains and passed the first winter in Oregon with his parents, but began clerking in the store of Peters & Parsons in April, 1867.
 Here he continued until 1870, when he engaged in the sheep business, but as he had no experience disease entered his flock and he was glad to sell out in a year, a sadder, but wiser man. He then secured a clerkship with F. B. Dunn, and remained in his store until the spring of 1874, when, unsolicited, he was nominated as sheriff of the republican party and was elected by one majority, the county being strongly democratic. He then entered upon the discharge of his duties, and served with so much satisfaction that in 1876 he was re-nominated and elected by 330 majority, and was again nominated in 1878, continuing in the office until 1880, when he began clerking for T. G. Hendricks and remained one year. In 1881 he made his first eastern trip, and passed six months amidst old and new scenes. Returning to Eugene in the spring of 1882, he was elected to the state legislature, being the only republican elected from Lane county. In 1883 he entered into partnership with T. G. Hendricks, with the firm name of Hendricks & Eakin as a private banking house, and in January, 1886, they secured their charter from those in authority for a national bank, and thus established the First National Bank of Eugene, which began business March 9, 1886, with a paid-up capital of $50,000.
 Mr. Eakin was elected and continues in the position of cashier.
 He was one of the organizers of the Eugene Water Works Company in 1887, and has continued treasurer of the company. In 1888 he was elected to the State Senate from Lane county, being the first republican senator from this county in eighteen years. During his political career Mr Eakin has never been defeated.
 He was married in Eugene in 1871, to Miss Eliza Hadley, a pioneer of the early fifties. In 1870 Mr Eakin bought his present home on the corner of Eighth and High streets and he there rebuilt in 1878, and in 1891 he bought the homestead with forty acres of land to preserve in the family.

The square beam arch over the stairs has a similar grille, but smaller.

Inside the entrance to the left is the cashier's consultation room, directly in the corner of the building. From this room to the vault, 35 feet distant, extends the counters, along which in triangular shape, are three steps. The four wickets of the counters are designated as "cashier," "paying teller," "receiving teller" and "general exchange and collections." The metal work of the counters is finished in antique copper bronze, of scroll design. Back of the wickets are two locked cages for the paying and receiving letters. The counters themselves are of black walnut, highly polished.

VAULT.

The vault consists of two stories; the upper vault is reached by an artistic staircase built of Mexican mahogany.
 The vault fronts are in keeping with the other fixtures. To insure almost absolute security to patrons against safe cracking, the vault is erected near the center of the room with a passage on all sides. The glass partitions and lights are so arranged that at night every part of the banking rooms can be seen from the outside.

To the rear of the vault is a lobby, connecting with the side entrance which can be used after banking hours.
 On the left between the lobby and staircase is the president's desk. In the rear of the lobby is the director's room, ingress to which is had through heavy sliding doors. Another room is situated in the rear of the director's room, and would make a suitable room for some attorney or could be used as a consultation room. To the left a passage leads from the banking room to the lavatory, and gives entrance to the basement which is of a size sufficient to contain the heating apparatus. The basement is lighted by a sash door, on the outside of which a heavy iron door gives protection.

The finish throughout this floor is in redwood, and is fitted for use in the manner known as flat rubbed work; be used en suite. The walls are all plastered, rough cast, tinted with two coats of gypsum to give a pleasing effect. This floor also contains a lavatory the vessels of which are of the latest sanitary manufacture.
 The building is heated by the gravity hot water system. Wm Gardner & Co of Portland, were the contractors to furnish this portion of the many parts that compositely form a perfect building. The success of this firm in handling this heating apparatus has been so marked, and the preliminary trials have been so successful in this instance, that it only adds another evidence of the firm's popularity and the merit of this particular heating system.
 The building, seen from the street has the appearance of beauty and substantiality in keeping with the purpose for which it was erected, as shown by the design, Romanesque and renaissance, with a low turreted tower surmounting the corner. A flag pole rises from the tower, which is covered with metal in imitation of Spanish tile. To a height of one story, in the front, and passing the large plate windows of the corner to the side street, the building is erected with Florian sand stone, which is now used in most of the prominent public buildings of the coast from Portland to San Francisco. The windows have ornamental glass transoms. The remainder of the building is of brick, under rough sand and cement finish, painted and sanded in imitation of stone, giving to the ordinary observer the appearance of being built entirely of stone.

ARCHITECTURAL OPINION.

To the thorough knowledge of his profession, Col Delos D Neer of Portland, architect, has added years of experience in designing buildings for public use, and in drafting the plans for the new banking house he has left no part of his knowledge unused in the effort to secure for it comfort, elegance and convenience. The visitor will readily appreciate his thorough work on entering the building. It would perhaps be enough to say that, as designed, the building reaches every requirement of the times, and its owners are made happy in paying tribute to the architect, who has carefully provided in the building every requisite necessary. But more can be added. There is today probably no other architect in the Northwest who can approach Col Neer in showing the number of plans accepted. His careful attention to all details of buildings of his designing, requiring, as ex-officio superintendent, thorough work and first class materials, gives to buildings so erected a stamp of durability and beauty not excelled, and rarely equaled.

L N Roney, as builder, has performed his duties unerringly and well, slighting nothing, despite his other large contracts of great importance, and the building stands as a monument to his thoroughness as a contractor and builder.

PEF STRAHAN-MOORE

Made a Profound Impression in New York.

Special dispatch to the Post Intelligencer, Seattle, Wash:

New York, Nov 7.—Wm A E Moore and wife, accused of playing the badger game on Martin Mahon, slept in jail last night and were photographed today for the rogue's gallery. They were arraigned in the police court this morning and held in $1,500 bail for examination next Friday. For assault upon the detective, Moore is held in $2,000 additional. Mrs Moore, who was formerly Miss Fayne Strahan, of Oregon, appeared in court wearing a profusion of diamonds, and her beauty made a profound impression on the reporters and artists of the evening papers. Moore, who is 35 years old, knows the former consul at Durban, South Africa. The police say he is a professional card sharp and the black sheep of a prominent Cleveland family.
