* Salt Rheum, Hands Would Crack Open

"I cannot say too much in praise of Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it has worked wonders in my case. I was afflicted with salt theum on my hands for many years. I tried many remedies but did not obtain relief. My hands would crack open and bleed profusely and the pain was terrible to bear. Since taking Hood's Sarsaparilla the flesh has healed and my hands are as smooth as a farmer's hands could be. I have recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla to my friends, and as far as I can learn it has proved satisfactory." - LLOYD 8. CHASE, Pottersville, Mass. EORGE WASHINGTON, the hero, has always obscured George Washington the man, and yet the sterling quali-I ties of the man made the hero. Whenever the two characters have been distinguished they have made separate studies, with the result that one class of patters make him a sublime genius and the other a commonplace man made great by circumstances. Washington was as great in wisdom and foresight and as unerring in judgment as a statesman as he was as a soldier. His physical endowments, his qualities of mind, his habits, education and training—all tended to round him out and develop him into a perfectly balanced man. No one faculty being developed above another gave his life a simplicity that appeared commonplace, but it was the simplicity of genius. Though a man of great dignity he was easily approached. An aristocrat by lineage he was a man of the people. Extremely modest he was fond of state and of ceremony. Though his outdoor life as a surveyor, a soldier and a farmer gave him a rough exterior, a rugged physique and robust health it did not quench his taste for gay uniforms or fashionable appared. That he was not free from vanity is apparent in the thirty odd portraits of himself, a few painted in the effulgent regalia of war and all in the habiliments of a cavaller. He was as straight as an Indian, six feet two inches tall, with large bones and broad shoulders, wide at the hips; feet large, requiring a No. 11 shoe, and Lafayette said his hands would have been a curiosity for a medical museum. This may explain why he rarely shook hands. He weighed 210 pounds.

To his clothing Washington devoted much thought and attention, not only as a young man, but all his life. A journal written when he was sixteen has several long and elaborate entries about how "to have my coats made." In 1754 he records having bought a "superfine blue broadcloth coat with silver trimmings," "6 prs. of the very neatest shoes" and "2 prs. of fashionable mix'd or marble color'd silk hose." It is evident that he always strove to be in the fashion. During Washington's presidency a caller describes him as being dressed in purple satin, and at one of his levees, he was clad "in black velvet; his hair in full dress, powdered and gathered behind in a large silk bag; yellow gloves on his hands, holding a cocked hat with a cockede in it, the edges adorned with a black feather about an lach deep. He were knee and shoe buckles, and a long sword with a finely wrought and polished steel hilt; the scabbard was white polished leather." Wherever he happened to be Washington was constantly demanding a washerlady. The bill of his laundress for the week succeeding his inauguration was for "6 ruffled shirts, 2 plain shirts, 8 stocks, 3 pair silk hose, 2 white hand, 2 slik hand, 1 pr. flant, drawers, 1 hair nett." He drove from his residence to the Senate in a cream-colored chariot with righty painted panels. His bootblack once failed to polish the general's huge boots all the way up-a task performed every morning-and the father of his country beat the luckless darky over the head with them.

Washington was hot-tempered. He wanted John Marshall, afterward the famous justice, to run for Congress and sent for him to explain his wishes. Marshall told Washington he was too poor, he could not afford to give up his business and incur the expense. While thus opposing Washington's wishes Marshall says he never received such a torrent of abuse in his life. He feared Washington would jump on him from across the table, but the row ended in Marshall remaining Washington's guest for a week, and then running for Congress and being elected. Washington was thoroughly upright and honest in his dealings with men. James Parton said he had a genius for rectitude. Jefferson, who did not like him, said his justice was the most inflexible he had ever known and that no motives of friendship or hatred were able to bias his decision. Washington was a faithful attendant at church and was a vestry man, but he took no active part in church affairs outside its business relations.

WASHINGTON'S SECRETARY. Tobias Lear, Who Witnessed the First

President's Death. When Gen. Washington died on Dec. 14, 1799, his private secretary, Tobias Lear, sat down and wrote a full account of the melancholy event. His account is a most important document to biographers, but it has rarely, if ever, been published in full and the manuscript has been supposed

Tobias Lear was born at Portsmouth, N. H., Sept. 10, 1762, and died at Washington, D. C., Oct. 11, 1816. He was graduated from Harvard in 1783, and in 1785 became private secretary to Gen. Washington. In 1802 he was appointed consul general at Santo Domingo, and in 1804 consul general at Algiers. In 1805 he negotiated a treaty of peace with Trip-oli. Col. Lear's manuscript, above re-ferred to, has been supposed to be lost, but the editor of McClure's Magazine has discovered it in the possession of a descendant of the writer, and prints it entirely. Col. Lear describes Washington's last moments as follows:

"About 10 o'clock he made several attempts to speak before he could effect it. At length he said: 'I am just going; have me decently buried, and do not let my body be put into the vault in less than three days after I am dead."

"I bowed assent, for I could not speak. He then looked at me again and said Do you understand me?

"I replied, 'Yes.' "'Tis well,' said he.

"About ten minutes before he expired which was between 10 and 11 o'clock) his breathing became easier; he lay quietly he withdrew his hand-from mine, and felt his own pulse. I saw his countenance change. I spoke to Dr. Craik, who sat by He came to the bedside. The general's hand fell from the wrist. I took it in mine and put it into my bosom. Dr. Craik put his hands over his eyes. And he expired without a struggle or a sigh. "While we were fixed in silent grief, Mrs. Washington (who was sitting at the foot of the bed) asked with a firm and collected voice; 'Is he gone?' "I could not speak, but held up my hand as a signal that he was no more. "Tis well,' said she in the same voice: 'all is over, and I shall soon follow him. I have no more trials to pass through," "

Electricity, the invention of the 19th century, is well worthy the patient years of investigation and experiment that have been given to if by some of the ablest and most devoted votaries of science. Galwana, Volta, Humboldt, and others equally distinguished, spent years in studying the phenomena of this wonderful agent, and then Morse gave it a physical value in the invention of the telegraph. And now, as we have become familiar with the constant miracle of lightning, bending obedient to the slightest touch of man, we see a new wonder in its application by Dr. Darrin, who, by skillful mechanism, directs this subtle force to the destruction of disease and the building up of waning vitality. Dr. Darrin treats with electricity and medicines all curable chronic, acute and private diseases, blood taints, lost or failing manhood, nervous debility, effects of errors, or excesses, in old or young sloss of memory, diseases caused by mercury in the improper treatment of private diseases. The Bane of Old Age No Longer

To Be Dreaded. A Man Eighty-two Years of Age Cured

In Dixie, Ark. One of the oldest and lesst known men in Perry County has the satisfaction of enjoying perfect health after suffering for more than fiteen years with chronic presentic enlarge-ment and inflammation, and will cheerfully ell anyone how he was cured.

MR. H. L. TRUNDLE.

We want this to reach the cycs of every reader of this paper. Mr. H. L. Trundle, Dixie, Ark., is eighty two years of age, as hale and hearty a man of his age as can be found in the State of Arkansas; in fact, he looks as young as a man of sixty years. For more than fifteen years Mr. Trundle was a slave to prostatic disease. You men who are afflicted know what it meanshe days of unrest, the nights of forture and uneasiness, the path, the frequent calls to pass water and the inshifity to do so. He could scarcely get about the house, feeble, trembling and racked with pain from head to foot.

In this condition he read the startling announcement in his paper that a marvelous new method for curing prostatic disease had been discovered. He wrote to the address given for full particulars, and at once obtained the remedy; in less than ten days more he had the satisfaction of experiencing relief. His case was chronic, deep seated, and the chances of recovery on account of his age were against him. Yet sixty days of continuous use of the famous Solvent Alternans anethod cared him.

You men who are afflicted can have the same experience if you do what Mr. Trundle did; he used Solvent Alternans, a new-method treatment. It is described in two nicely written books which you can get free of charge, by mail, by sending your name and address to the Empire Medical Company, 215 M. South Building, Boston, Mass. It won't cost you a cent to get the information, and it may be worth hundred to you. Write lodgy, and refer to this article. The next day Payne got a note MR. H. L. TRUNDLE. the hotel. He expected a duel, but went. Washington, however, was in an amiable wrong, and said: "Mr. Payne, I was wrong yesterday, but if you have had sufficient satisfaction, let us be friends," There was a decaster of wine and two glasses on the table which Washington had ordered to smooth over the quarrel. The two drank together and became such strong friends after that that Payne was one of the pull bearers at Washington's In the Century there is an article by Martha Littleheld Phillips, giving "Recol-The author is a granddaughter of the youngest daughter of Gen. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in overcoming female ills. Here is a letter from Mrs. J. C. Orms, of 220 Horner St., Johnstown, Pa., which is earnest and straight to the point:

" DEAR MRS. PINKHAM .- I feel it my duty to tell all suffering women that I think your remedies are wonderful. I had trouble with my head, dizzy spells and hot flashes. Feet and hands were cold, was very nervous, could not sleep well, had kidney trouble, pain in evaries and congestion of the womb. Since taking your remedies I am better gone, have no pain in ovaries, and am cured of womb trouble. I can eat and sleep well and am gaining in flesh.
