MR BUSH ON TRUSTS.

A Bush, the veteran logger and banker, of Salem, has just returned from an extended visit to Pennsylvania, New York and New England and is reported by the Salem Journal as follows:

"Building trades are depressed in the east due to the advances in metal materials brought about by the trusts. In some cities it was about one third of last year. He was told of one building at Hartford, Conn., under construction on which there was an advance of $3,500 on prices of plumbing material alone. He told the reporter that banks were receiving trust stock very sparingly as collateral security, and one financier went so far as to predict another panic inside of two years. The trusts had inflated their property several times its value and sold the stock largely among the people.

"After the depression large quantities of wares at trust prices were placed with the dealers. The high prices and stopping of building would compel many factories to shut down, when the trust combination would be broken, the stock become worthless, and those who invested would be robbed and the inevitable collapse take place.

"This is not Mr Bush's prophecy, but was the opinion given him by a conservative citizen. Mr Bush is more than pleased to be back in Oregon and enjoy 'the finest summer climate in the world.'"

THE BOSS AND RECEIVER.

Oregonian: "It is to be hoped, for the sake of decency, that Senator Mark Hanna did not, upon his visit to the house of commons, make the inquiry attributed to him: 'How much will a vote on this bill be worth?' It will not surprise anybody, however, if it shall turn out that he did ask the question. That's the kind of a man he is, a gross political 'fixer' and 'boss' whose presence in the senate is one of the facts which have of late so discredited and cheapened that body."

A "fixer" and a "boss!" More than that. Mark Hanna went among the banks and subsidized and protected interests, and secured a sum of money for the purpose of electing McKinley unparalleled in the history of American politics. This, and the corruption of the ballot that followed, was done openly and shamelessly. Mark Hanna stole the goods, but Wm McKinley is the receiver thereof.

INTENSIVE HORTICULTURE.

A Great Discovery—Trees Brought to Bearing in One Year.

Secretary Lelong of the California State Board of Horticulture announces the most important discovery of the board, and one which will mean millions of dollars to horticultural interests.

For many months past Secretary Lelong has been endeavoring to grow cuttings from different species of trees by grafting them on a foster mother root. Success has crowned his efforts and he now first gives the result of his work to the horticultural world.

His discovery means in a nutshell that you can take the limb of any kind of tree, put a foster root to it, and in a very short time the limb will take root and become a tree.

Limb two feet long were taken from Washington navel orange trees and united with foster mother roots and placed in a sandy soil, and in eight months they had attained a growth equal to two or three years by the ordinary methods. The same results were obtained with the olive, apple, peach and pear, together with other varieties of trees. As a result of this discovery, Secretary Lelong says that California horticulturists will not have to wait five years for orange trees to bear as they can probably be advanced to the bearing stage in one year from the first operation. With olives the bearing time can be reduced from four years to one year and the same is true of apples, peaches and pears. This will make an enormous difference financially to fruit-growers.

OREGONIAN MENDACITY.

The Oregonian is well aware that there is as little prospect of ex-Senator Gorman being nominated for the presidency by the Democratic party as for Judas Iscariot to be canonized a saint, yet gives currency to the following clipping:

"The democratic party never in its history has been so short of presidential candidates as it is now, when it is divided in its choice between Bryan and Gorman. There is still, however, a lower level, and that the democratic party will strike with a dull, sickening thud if it nominates Gorman, whose senatorial career culminated in the sugar trust's triumphant hold-up of tariff legislation."

The Oregonian enjoys a field in which it would command respect of all parties could it only be fair, and quibbling about political opponents.

General Otis is reported as having said that fifty thousand soldiers are required to properly handle the situation in the Philippines, and that it will be April of next year before the natives can be thoroughly whipped into subjection. The congress that meets next December will have some pretty bills of expense to provide for. But more interest bearing bonds can be issued. Still it will set the people to thinking whether or not it was worth our while to lick the Filipinos into the liberty corral. Of course we shall whip them. It will be good luck if they stay whipped.

Philippine women are inordinately fond of jewelry, but at the same time show excellent taste in matter of design and display. These of the wealthy classes often order pieces to be made and sent out by the best Parisian firms at enormous expense; but in the way of its exhibition no criticism could be made except, perhaps, at a ball, or dance, and then the profusion of glitter is sometimes a trifle bewildering, and conducive to monetary estimates. July Woman's Home Companion.

Well Answered.

In the early part of this century there lived in Nantucket a young Quakeress whose wit caused many a ripple in the demure circle of the Friends.

When this pretty Martha attended yearly meeting in Newport at the age of 18, her youthful spirit brought her occasional grave looks from the elders, although her real goodness of heart was never questioned.

One evening, during the session of yearly meeting, Martha was the center of a group of young people gathered near the windows of the parlor in the boarding house where some of the Friends lodged for the time. The young people were playing the simple and amusing game of "humorous definitions."

Martha's wit caused such frequent laughter that a solemn faced person rose from his seat at the other end of the room and asked, in a loud, stern voice:

"Martha, can thee give me the definition of gravity?"

The pretty Quakeress colored at this public and unnecessary rebuke, but after scarcely perceptible hesitation, she answered demurely:

"I am not able to give thee a definition of my own, Friend Brown, but perhaps that of De la Rochefoucauld will suit thee. He says that 'gravity is a mysterious carriage of the body, invented to cover the defects of the mind.'"

—Youth's Companion.

"Going Out to See a Man." was the invention of Artemus Ward. One night in the winter of 1865, when the humorist was about half through his lecture, he paralyzed his audience with the announcement that they would have to take a recess of 15 minutes so as to enable him to go across the street to "see a man."

H. K. Tracey, the editor of the Washington Republican, was in the audience, and seeing an opportunity to improve upon the joke, penciled these lines and sent them to the platform:

"Dear Artemus—If you will place yourself under my guidance, I'll take you to 'see a man' without crossing the street."

Artemus accepted the invitation, and while the great audience impatiently waited with much amusement awaited the reappearance of the humorist the latter was making the acquaintance of Aman, a well known restaurant keeper at that time, and luxuriating at a well laden refreshment board. Of course everybody "caught on to" the phrase, and men became fond of getting up between the acts and "going out to see Aman."

The restaurateur's business from that time forward boomed. Men who would ordinarily sit quietly through an entertainment and behave themselves allowed themselves to be influenced by the contagion. —Louisville Courier-Journal.

Those Modest Japanese!

Here is a matrimonial advertisement that is hard to take seriously. A lady who calls herself Homjoshi seeks a husband in the Kanazawa Shimban, a Japanese paper. She describes herself thus:

"I am a beautiful woman, with cloudlike hair, flowery face, willowlike waist, and crescent eyebrows. I have enough property to walk through life hand in hand gazing at flowers in the day and the moon at night. If there is a gentleman who is clever, learned, handsome and of good taste, I will join with him for life and share the pleasure of being buried in the same grave."

To this an answer comes from a gentleman who signs himself Ariwara Mitsunji, whose advertisement runs as follows:

"I am the greatest genius of the present time, and people regard me as the handsomest man in Kanazawa. As the lady sees me but once, she will be unable to restrain her love for me. I will fix any place and time for our meeting."

Brusque Brahms.

A young Hungarian violinist, who was continually talking about his wonderful skill and great fame, had his deflating address to Brahms cut short with the brusque remark, "More finger exercise and fewer phrases, young man!"

A young woman who played the piano for the amusement of the composer as to the advisability of giving a concert in Vienna.

"Are you all ready?" inquired Brahms.

"Certainly, dear master! May I play something for you?"

"Oh, no, no! I meant only have you a new gown and gloves?"

"Yes, sir."

"Pity! otherwise I should have advised you not to give the concert."

Neither Could Bend.

The late Mrs. Keely, the actress, used to tell an anecdote of Queen Victoria on the occasion when she had the honor of being received by her majesty. On being presented she excused herself from making a low courtesy by saying, "Your majesty, I have rheumatism in my knees, and I cannot courtesy."

"I can't, either." And the veteran actress was put at her ease by the homeliness of the remark and its common touch of nature, which made the two women kin.

Another Question.

"Pa, what sort of a house is that?"

"That, my son, is the blind asylum. Blind people live in there."

"They can't see, can they?"

"No, my boy."

"Then what has the house got windows for if they can't see?"

There are 28 canals of business importance within the limits of the United States. They vary in length from one mile to 81, that of the Erie, and in cost from $70,000 to $52,000,000.

It is believed that in China there is 20 times as much coal as in all Europe.

On occasion of return of the 2nd Oregon Volunteers there will be a grand celebration at Portland, and it is probable that the Southern Pacific company will offer special rates from all points on its Oregon lines. Full information as to rates, dates of celebration, etc will be announced later. Further particulars can be obtained from any Southern Pacific agent.

The Elder Got the Best One.

An account of the life of Judge James B. Bradwell of Chicago by his daughter tells a story of the deeply religious training of his childhood. He had the old fashioned faith in the efficacy of prayer before he was of sufficient age to understand the reasonable limits of such petitions.

Once, when James was only 8 years old, the wagon was sent to Chicago for provisions. Five days elapsed. The wagon was detained, and the Bradwell family was without food and without a man to provide it. Little James, as usual with even small boys of the time and place, was a good shot. His mother loaded the gun for him, and he started out to see what he could shoot to supply the table.

In due time he saw two prairie chickens not far away. He got his gun ready and then took long enough to pray thus:

"O Father, if you will just let me bring down those two chickens I'll give your minister the choice of the pair!"

The trigger was pulled and James believed the shot to be a direct answer to his prayer. He took the two birds to Elder Snow, the minister, and told him of the circumstances.

The good elder took a long time to examine the two chickens, in order to be quite sure that he got the better of the two, because, he said, he thought it best that the boy's compact should be faithfully carried out.

A Lock of His Hair.

A venerable, white haired clergyman recently preached in the parish of a friend. He had hardly got back to the vicarage from the church when the door-bell rang and a charming girl of 18 asked to see him. He received her. They talked about the sermon and other things until finally she asked diffidently:

"Oh, won't you please give me a lock of your hair?"

"Certainly, my child," said the old gentleman, flattered at the request. "I'll send it to you tomorrow," and he did.

On his return to his own home he had five more requests of the same kind, and he proudly boasted to his wife that he was glad to see that he had not yet lost his power to please. All went well until his wife received this note:

"Dear Mrs. —, won't you please ask your husband to send me just a little lock of his hair? We have all been taking lessons in making hair flowers, and he sent it to them—that I thought I would rather ask you to get it for me. Won't you please do this for me? It is so hard to get white hair for lilacs of the valley."

This was a terrible blow, and the less said about locks of hair in that old gentleman's presence the better.

Marksmen in Battle.

The story of what marksmen can do in battle is written in red letters all over the history of war, remarks the Boston Herald. The famous English archers whose cloth yard shafts won so many fights at desperate odds against the mailed knights of France, the embattled farmers whose deadly aim was so fatal on the Lexington road and the slopes of Bunker Hill, the grim slayers who broke Pakenham's veteran regiments at New Orleans—all are proofs in point. Later evidence of the value of straight shooting is afforded by that strange war in which the Dutch Boers won the semi-independence which they now enjoy.

In this contest there was on one side a burly force with slight pretensions to discipline, and none at all to drill, and on the other side a British force, hardened in battle and trained to the perfection of soldiery, yet the Boers were victorious in every encounter on the field. What is the explanation? Why, simply this: The Boers were splendid marksmen, who knew how to make every shot tell, while the British were, comparatively speaking, mere wasters of ammunition of the soldierly pattern.

A Good Scotch Story.

In Lanarkshire there lived a sma', sma' laird named Hamilton, who was noted for his eccentricity. On one occasion a neighbor waited on him and requested his name as an accommodation to a bit bill for £20, at three months' date, which led to the following characteristic and truly Scottish colloquy:

"Na, na, I canna do that."

"What for no, laird? Ye hae done the same thing for others."

"Aye, aye, Tammas, but there's wheels within wheels, ye ken naething about it. I canna do't."

"It's a sma' affair to refuse me, laird."

"Weel, ye see, Tammas, if I was to pit my name to't, ye wad get the siller frae the bank, and when the time came round ye wadna be ready and I wad hae to pay t. Sae then ye and I wad quarrel. Sae we mae just as weel quarrel the no as lang's the siller's in my pouch." —Stray Stories.

Two Little Stories.

Here are two stories from Sir M. E. Grant-Duff's diary. The first records the saying of Sir F. Doyle, when Lord Houghton's death was rumored, that "his exit is the result of too many entries."

The second, concerning a definition which Gladstone gave of a deputization, is also given in the diary. It is "a noun of numbers signifying many, but not signifying much."

Birds' Nests.

Some Australian birds lay their eggs in black sand, and as if aware of its superior power of absorbing heat: others select the neighborhood of hot volcanic springs, whose warmth plays an important part in the hatching.

The mound builders collect heaps of earth and leaves as much as 18 feet high and 40 feet in diameter, and in this buried their eggs are hatched.
