

Delicious Hot Biscuit

are made with Royal Baking Powder, and are the most appetizing, healthful and nutritious of foods.

Hot biscuit made with impure and adulterated baking powder are neither appetizing nor wholesome.

It all depends upon the baking powder.

Take every care to have your biscuit made with Royal, which is a pure cream of tartar baking powder, if you would avoid indigestion.

AUF WIEDERSEHEN!
The little gate was reached at last. Half hid in black down the lane: She pushed it wide, and as she passed, A wistful look she backward cast, And said, "Auf wiedersehen!"
With hand on latch, a vision white Lingered reluctant, and again Half doubting if she did right, Soft as the dew that fell that night She said, "Auf wiedersehen!"
The lamp's clear gleam flits up the stair; I linger in delicious pain; Ah, in that chamber, whose rich air To breathe in thought I sorely dare, Thinks she, "Auf wiedersehen!"
"Thirteen years, once more I press The turf that silences the lane; I hear the rustle of her dress, I smell the lilacs, and—ah, yes, I hear, "Auf wiedersehen!"
Sweet piece of bashful maiden art! The English words had seemed too faint, But these—they drew us heart to heart, Yet held us tenderly apart. She said, "Auf wiedersehen!" —James Russell Lowell.

Wilhelmina.

666 WANTED—In a publishing house, a well-educated woman; must be over 50 years of age.
"Isn't it mean, I don't seem to fit in anywhere. Young girls and old women are in demand, but a girl of 23 is neither young nor old; a drug in the market!" Wilhelmina Thurston looked disgusted.
"You would just fit in there, Will," said her sister, reflectively.
Wilhelmina went to the mirror and took the pins from her luxuriant hair, which was rolled back loosely from her face and coiled on the crown of her head. She parted the hair down the middle and drew it back plain, braiding it and dressing it low. It was unbecoming, for her rather severe type of beauty was rendered stern by the change.
"I have made up my mind," said Wilhelmina, going to the closet and taking therefrom her darkest gown, a dull gray, "to apply for that position. With a stiff collar and no color to brighten me up, I shall look antiquated enough to escape detection. It will injure me one but myself, and I want work badly enough to add eight years to my age. I shall claim to be 31."
Alice Thurston laughed. "You are desperate, Will, and no wonder; but I fear one lie will not suffice; you are not an adept in deceiving."
"You wait," was the answer.
Sidney Spencer sat in his private office, with a bored look on his face and a pile of manuscript at his elbow. Outside in the main office the clerks nudged each other and tittered, as young men will when the proprietor is out of sight.
"Another antiquated female!" whispered John Statwood to his neighbor, as a light step on the stair was heard. A moment later Wilhelmina was ushered into Spencer's office.
"How old are you?" was the first query.
"Thirty-one," she said, bravely.
"What experience?"
"Ten years in a newspaper office."
This was true, for while a mere child she had assisted her father on the Daily Bulletin, now among the missing journals. Spencer looked intently at the applicant. She seemed more promising than the rest. "Are you sure you are 31? You look young, very young."
Wilhelmina rose to the occasion. Her assumption of offended dignity would have deceived a keener man than Spencer.
"I'm sorry, sir, to have troubled you; perhaps you require a certificate of birth. Unfortunately I have none.
"Good afternoon!"
"Wait a moment! Pardon me. You do not understand why I am so particular in regard to age. There are a dozen young idiots in my employ who waste their time in attentions to a younger woman. Harmless enough, I'll admit, but this is not a courting school, and the work requires undivided attention."
"I understand. I was young once myself," she sighed. There was an awkward silence.
"Thirty-one is not old," said Spencer encouragingly. "It only seems old to fellows in the twenties."
"Thirty-one is a respectable age and needs no apology," was the tart reply. Her gray eyes snapped and she looked fierce.
"She'll do," said Spencer to himself; "there will be no flirting." Aloud he said: "Can you stay this morning and help me out with this?" indicating the pile of manuscript.
"I shall be glad to begin at once," was her reply. A half-dozen times during the morning Wilhelmina caught her employer looking curiously at her; she wondered if he suspected her deceit. At night he said pleasantly: "I am well satisfied with what you have done." So she was engaged.
Much as she longed to appear her own pretty self, Wilhelmina dared not put aside her dark, unornamented gown and tightly drawn back hair. With these she assumed a dignified, old-fashioned manner of speech and action that kept her youthful coworkers at a distance.
Her desk being in Spencer's office, and the fact that much of their work was done jointly, placed them on a familiar footing. It was agreeable work, and had she not been acting a part Wilhelmina would have thoroughly enjoyed it. A date in an article one day led Spencer to tell his age, 28. After this she felt more uncomfortable, saying to Alice: "I wonder how he likes working with his grand-mother?"
One morning when Spencer came in Wilhelmina knew something had happened. In the months they had worked together she had learned to note every change in his expressive countenance. She had also learned to care deeply for his good opinion; the lie she had told him weighed heavily. She found herself wishing that he knew she was only 23; five years younger than herself. Would it make a difference?
This morning he looked at her so intently that she blushed. Then he said abruptly: "What makes women so secretive in regard to their age? Are added years a crime? You are the first one I have met who confesses to 31; you are really younger looking, and are brave not to lie about it."

Poor Wilhelmina, without thinking of the consequences, she said hurriedly: "I did lie. I am only 23. I expected to be caught some time, and I'm foolish enough to step into the trap. Shall I leave this morning?"
Spencer rose and closed the door into the outer office. By this time Wilhelmina was gathering up her belongings and crowding them hither-thither into her bag.
"What's your hurry?" Spencer asked putting a detaining hand on her arm. Wilhelmina looked up into a face so full of sympathy and tenderness that the tears of vexation on her lashes mirrored the wonderment in her eyes.
"I want you to stay, little girl, because—well, because, I can't live without you."
Wilhelmina concluded to stay.—Boston Post.

BEDS IN MANILA.

Are Somewhat Different from the Kind We Have Here.
"Look here! It is 9 o'clock and my bed isn't made up yet." I heard a new comer expostulating to the interpreter in the corridor of the Hotel Oriente. We old stagers all laughed. We knew what was coming, but we contented ourselves with a snuffle.
"What are you laughing at?" the newcomer asked. "It may be a joke to you, but this blooming hotel furnishes the woodwork and that is about all. There isn't a stitch of bed clothes, a mattress, or anything but a bolster."
We still laughed. The interpreter looked impudently at us and then at the raw recruit.
"What is it that you desire?" he said finally.
"Desire? The newcomer snatched up "I desire a mattress, at least, two sheets, a quilt and a pillow."
"I will go now and see the proprietor," said the interpreter, for that was what he always said.
"I got all ready for bed, raised the mosquito netting and found that there wasn't a thing for me to sleep on."
We all smiled pityingly and went on with our tales of camp and the firing line. There was no use of trying to tell a newcomer that here in Manila we never used a mattress, a set of springs or a pillow or a sheet. We would have deprived him of what he had come so far to learn by personal experience had we read him a homily on Philippine customs. The interpreter soon returned and I heard him saying: "The proprietor says, sir, that he will send you a sheet, but it is sorry to say, sir, that he has not a mattress or a quilt, nor a pillow, except the bolster that is on your bed."
The language of the newcomer that followed is unfit for publication. The mattressless and quiltless Filipino bed is a characteristic of the country. It is the one thing that is suitable for the climate, and we soon learned to respect this skeleton of a bed, the perforated cane bottom of which enabled us to keep cool in the hottest weather. It is quite a jump, though, from a comfortable tick and linen sheets to a bed so soft as the seat of a cane chair but once taken, like other tropical luxuries, it becomes essential to comfort and rest.—Leslie's Weekly.

Good Reason.

Storekeepers at times resort to ingenious methods to attract trade. The following is said to be an exact copy of a placard displayed in front of a store in a Southern town:
"Step inside and get the greatest bargain you'll ever get again."
Here is an announcement posted by a Russian shopkeeper in front of his place of business:
"The reason why I have hitherto been able to sell my goods so much cheaper than anybody else is that I am a bachelor, and do not need to make a profit for the maintenance of wife and children. It is now my duty to inform the public that this advantage will shortly be withdrawn from them, as I am about to be married. They will, therefore, do well to make their purchases at once at the old rate."

Simply Calculated.

For finding the average number of years which persons of any age may expect to live there is a very simple rule. If the present age be deducted from eighty, two-thirds of the remainder is the answer required. This result is not absolutely accurate, but it is near enough. For instance, a married 20 might, by this rule, expect to live forty years longer, which is just what the latest actuarial tables give. At 40 the expectation of life works out at nearly 27 years, while the tables give it as more than twenty-five years. At 60 the above rule allows just over thirteen years, and the tables show a little less.

Hay Crop in Fine Condition.

Reports from all over Oregon received at the weather bureau indicate that the hay crop of the state is in fine condition. In fact, many declare that it is never better. It is late in most localities, but it is good everywhere. The recent rains have not injured the crop to any noticeable extent. Harvesting had already begun when the rains came, but the wet weather did not last long enough nor was the rainfall sufficient to hurt the hay that had been cut. The only effect it had was to delay harvesting, which is already late.

Skagway a Future Mining Center.

There is now every prospect that Skagway's future as a great mining center is assured, if all the reports that keep coming in regard to new discoveries of quartz in this vicinity are true. Old prospectors have been at work for a long time on the hills east of the city, but have kept their operations so very quiet that only a limited few knew anything about it. Whenever these men were cornered they would make a general denial of having made any find.

Cattle Going North.

The Union Steamship Company's steamer Capilano arrived last week at Vancouver, B. C., from Skagway, whither she went with 70 head of cattle and 75 head of swine, belonging to Birchell & Howey. She will take another load of cattle and sheep, the property of F. Burns. On this trip she will take up 75 head of cattle and about 100 head of sheep.

At a spirited foot ball match near Glasgow the game became so exciting that several spectators leaped into the arena to take part. The police tried to restore peace, but were so determinedly opposed that 19 policemen were severely maltreated and had to be sent to the hospital.

The smallest salary received by the head of a civilized government is that of the president of the Republic of Andorra, in the Pyrenees. His pay amounts to only $15 a year. He is the chief magistrate of 12,000 people, and the territory he rules comprises an area of 150 square miles. The little state has been independent since the year 790.

A fondness for animals led Charles Wagner, of Frackville, Pa., to caress a pet goat and tickle the animal's nose with a $10 bill. The goat snapped the bill from the man's hand and swallowed it. The money-eater was promptly cut open, and the pieces were found in his stomach. They will be sent to Washington for redemption.

Frank V. Balling, of Blue Island, Ill., was troubled with a stiffening of the ankle joint, and his physicians tried to ascertain the cause by subjecting the limb to the X-rays. The intense light caused the flesh to decompose, and three amputations of the leg were necessary. He sued his doctors, and the jury awarded him $10,000.

"Gelatotherapeutics," says the New York Tribune, "is a name given to physicians who treat patients suffering from various diseases ranging from bronchitis to anaemia, by prescribing bronchi light laughter. In a criminal prosecution recently tried in York, Neb., the jury after a brief deliberation, returned the following verdict: "We, the jury in the above named case, do not believe one word that the witnesses have sworn to; neither do we believe that any of the attorneys have spoken the truth, nor that either of them could do so even if he should care to take the trouble to try."

In 1898 Tennessee coal mines produced 3,084,748 tons of coal. The maximum number of men employed during the year was 7,820. The amount of coal converted into coke was 736,280 tons. The production of other materials was as follows: Iron ore, 597,777 tons; pig iron, 263,439 tons; copper, 89,712 tons; zinc, 454 tons; manganese, 1,250 tons, and phosphate, 373,191 tons. All minerals have shown increases over the previous year, those most marked being coal and iron ore. The increase in coal was 203,754 tons, and in iron ore, 69,913 tons.

In Great Britain during March changes in the rate of wages affected 331,400 work people. Of these, 329,900 received advances in wages, averaging 9½¢ per head, while 1,500 persons suffered a decrease averaging 3¢ per head. The net result was an increase of about 9½¢ per person in the weekly wages of all affected. The increase was mainly in the mining industry, where 204,808 persons participated, in the iron and steel manufacturing, where 43,025 participated, and in the textile trades, in which 75,164 persons participated.

An Excellent Combination. The pleasant method and beneficial effects of the well known remedy, SYRUP OF FIGS, manufactured by the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO., illustrate the value of obtaining the liquid laxative principles of plants known to be medicinally laxative and presenting them in the form most refreshing to the taste and acceptable to the system. It is the one perfect strengthening laxative, cleansing the system effectually, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers gently yet promptly and enabling one to overcome habitual constipation permanently. Its perfect freedom from every objectionable quality and substance, and its acting on the kidneys, liver and bowels, without weakening or irritating them, make it the ideal laxative.

In the process of manufacturing figs are used, as they are pleasant to the taste, but the medicinal qualities of the remedy are obtained from senna and other aromatic plants, by a method known to the CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. only. In order to get its beneficial effects and to avoid imitations, please remember the full name of the Company printed on the front of every package. CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL.
