The farmers of Eagle valley, Or., are about to erect a fruit cannery. At a meeting held at the schoolhouse at that place the farmers of the valley subscribed $3,000 for the purpose. The total cost of the plant will be about $5,000, and, as this is the first meeting held, the farmers are confident that no $18.00@19.00 trouble will be met with in raising the full amount. The establishment of the cannery will be of much benefit to Baker City, as well as to the farmers of the valley, where a large amount of fruit is raised annually. The cannery will be conducted on the co-operative plan, and it is the intention to take all the fruit offered by the farmers. Much of the product will find a market in Baker City, as the home consumption is large and is steadily increasing.
