DEATH AND FUNERAL.

Frank L. Stott, a citizen and attorney of Hillsboro, died from a relapse of typhoid fever at the home of his father in this county on Tuesday last at 10 o'clock A. M. More than a month ago he was attacked at this place with the typhoid fever and was bedfast a fortnight or more at the house of Sheriff Tozier where he was attentively nursed and hopefully brought out of a nearly fatal sickness by Dr. Vite. But as soon as he could walk he got on the cars, Saturday the 10th inst., and started to his father's place on Wapato Lake; but by an unfortunate oversight in the conductor he was not put off at Gaston but was taken on to St. Joe, when a carriage was procured by the conductor and he was taken to his Uncle's—Mr. Denny. On Wednesday of the following week he was taken home in a carriage, and on Thursday evening was attacked by a severe pain in the abdomen and inflammation of the bowels began, which was the immediate cause of his death. Dr. Saylor and Vite were both called and they tried their utmost to save him. On Monday Hon. R. Stott, his brother, and his brother-in-law, C. A. Ball, at 9 o'clock, A. M., Tuesday, he began to die and remained unconscious up to his death which occurred at 10 o'clock, A. M. Just before he expired he called out "Lord help," and tried to say more.

Frank L. Stott was the third son of Samuel J. Stott of this county. He was 27 years, 8 months and 25 days old. He graduated from Pacific University in the class of '69-'70, and is the first graduate of that institution that has died. After graduating he read law in Portland in the law office of Dolph & Mitchell, and was admitted to practice in 1871. He then went to Eugene City where he entered upon the practice of his profession and remained there until last year when he established himself at Hillsboro and had fair prospects of a useful and successful career. But death came and cut him off in the very budding of his manhood when hope and promise bloomed upon him. Of a social and hearty, generous nature, he was a favorite among the young people of his acquaintance, and was respected for his honor and integrity of character wherever known. These qualities of head and heart he inherited from parents of strong character and noble virtues. He leaves behind many friends. He was betrothed to a young lady in this neighborhood of highly respectable family. He united with the Congregational church at Forest Grove when a student of the Institution there, but subsequently had broken off relations with the same. A few hours before his death he said that he placed his trust in God. On Wednesday his funeral took place. Dr. Marsh made some appropriate remarks on the occasion to a large assemblage of people from every part of the county, at the house of his father where his body lay. His remains were then removed to the Hill Cemetery followed by thirty carriages and many horsemen, where it was consigned to its last resting place with the burial rites of the Masonic Order. He was buried near his sister, Mrs. Rebecca Ball, wife of C. A. Ball, who died only a year previous, and the spreading branches of the same oak extend their shade and whisper with the breezes over them both. President Marsh of Pacific University will preach the funeral sermon at the Congregational church at Forest Grove next Sunday at eleven o'clock A. M. Thus swallowed up in the oblivion of the grave, Frank has passed from our view; but as we hope, has stepped upon a broader and higher plane of being where love and higher fruit and life blooms immortal.
