HILLSBORO: FRIDAY

"ICT" DOLLAR DOLPH.

ED. INDEPENDENT.—As J. N. Dolph, attorney for Ben Holladay, has recently been slandering and vilifying the people of Washington county, especially those who have the temerity to look after their investments in the West Side Railroad, it may not be amiss to show just who this man Dolph is.

Dolph sued Watkinds, Superintendent of the Penitentiary, not long ago for slander, and the case has recently been tried in Portland. The case is stated by Mr. Bronaugh, Dolph's partner, as follows, as we find it in the report of the trial in the Oregonian:

Mr. Bronaugh opened the case for the plaintiff. He stated that the action was brought on account of published slanders. The plaintiff (Dolph) had been a member of the last State legislature and was one of a committee appointed by the legislature to investigate the affairs of the penitentiary, of which institution defendant is superintendent. The report of this committee had been published in pamphlet form by the defendant (Watkinds) and appended to that report was a card by the defendant charging J. N. Dolph, a member of the firm of Mitchell & Dolph, with having received from Hawley, Dodd & Co. a bribe or remuneration for the purpose of lobbying through the legislature certain claims against the State, and stating that when this bribe was received by said firm Mr. Dolph was a member of the legislature and voted in favor of the allowance of such claims.

Afterwards, counsel proceeded, Mr. Watkinds published in the Oregonian a still more bitter card, in which he charged Mr. Dolph and Mr. T. McE. Patton, members of the penitentiary investigation committee, with being guilty of perjury; repeated the allegation that Mr. Dolph had accepted a bribe while a State Senator to lobby through the legislature certain claims against the State, and wound up by charging Mr. Dolph with being a sanctimonious scoundrel and villain. Mr. Dolph now sought redress for such charges at the hands of twelve of his countrymen. The damages were laid at $10,000.

To show still further the character of the charge made against Dolph, we copy the following extracts from the card of Watkinds published in the Oregonian, Nov. 2d, 1874, and on which the action was brought:

"I desire to say, through your columns that I am preparing an answer to the report of Dolph and Patton on the investigation of the penitentiary affairs, and hope the press will withhold further comment upon the prison affairs until I can show up in its true light the perjury of these two men.

"The whole report is a tissue of falsehoods, garbled evidence, erroneously drawn conclusions and mendacity; and before this question is settled I will show in my charge against Mr. Dolph, that the law firm of Messrs. Mitchell, Dolph & Co. were employed to help lobby through certain claims against the State, as appears on the books in my office, while some of the members of said firm were members of the legislature, and did vote and sustain the payment of said claims above referred to, is true; and I will show Patton to be just the man he is shown to be in that printed report. And also I will show these sanctimonious counrrels to be a pair of villains.

That is the roughest charge ever made against any public man, or any other man, in the State of Oregon.

As soon as Watkinds was served with the papers, he came into court and answered that it was true he had made these statements about Dolph, and that more than that they were true and he was ready to prove them.

Accordingly they joined issue and went to trial last month before a Portland jury, in Dolph's own county. The substance of the testimony is all published in the Oregonian, and so strong and convincing was it that the jury gave Dolph the enormous sum of just one dollar for his character, and compelling him to pay all the costs, about a thousand dollars. The testimony was very rough on Hippel, Dolph and Dodd, and the jury, or a majority of it, was in favor of giving Dolph 37½ cents, (the verdict the Museum man got for a stuffed monkey), but concluded they would not, out of respect for the monkey. Such is the character of the man who is now laboring as the tool of Ben Holladay to bully the farmers of Washington county out of their rights on the railroad. He is a fit tool for such business. We hope old Benny is proud of his attorney. He will get to be Governor of Oregon now in a hurry. Dolph enjoys the proud distinction of being the only man in Oregon, the value of whose character has been judicially determined by a jury of his neighbors and fellow citizens. Go it "Ict" Dollar Dolph!

"Ict" Dollar Dolph. Mr. Dale the Sheriff of Yamhill county is responsible for this. He says he started from St. Joe the morning the jury decided the Dolph-Watkinds case, and being curious to learn the result, he inquired at each station along, as the train stopped, if they had heard the result in the "Dolph case." When he got down to Wapato Lake there was a band of Indians camped there, and standing around at the station. As usual he repeated his inquiries, when a big "buck" stepped up and put in with, "Say, you talker about Ict dollar Dolph?" The truth flashed upon him at once that Dolph had been valued at one dollar, and when the train reached Portland he found that it was so. Dale says he will swear to the truth of this.

Question in Proportion. 37½ cts. : $1 :: J. N. Dolph : 1 stuffed monkey. Or, subtractively, it can be readily shown that Mr. Dolph's character is worth just five bits more than a stuffed monkey.

Benny H.

Dolph & Co. have served notice on the new Board of Directors for the West side road to take Holladay's deposition in Washington on the 20th inst., from which we infer that the old sinner is not coming back to take a hand in the fight. Ben knows which side of his bread is buttered. He knows very well that he cannot oust the new Board, and that if he could it is better for him not to leave his blossomy bugle in sight. His dog-day is over in Oregon and though his pups and spaniels may hang on by the skin of their teeth for a year or two longer, when a new Administration comes into power they will have to go to some other State and take on new aliases to cover up their youthful indiscretions.

Material for Congress.

Washington county can supply the parties in this State with as good if not better material for a Congressman than any other county. Dr. Bowlby is a representative man and would make an excellent Independent Republican candidate. He has filled various offices of honor and trust in the State with integrity and ability. And Dr. Bailey who is an influential man and an effective stump orator would lead the Democratic hosts to victory as certainly as any other man in the party.

We want Washington county to be represented in the coming contest and would like to have a standard bearer from the county if possible.

The West Side in Court. According to stipulations filed in the Circuit Court in Portland the contest between the new Board of Directors and the old Board must be tried on or before the 5th of August. The new Board have choice whether the trial shall be by judge or jury. Among men in Portland who have investigated the case there is no question but that the new Board will win the cause.

Hippel at Work.

Holladay's man Friday is here to help pull the old man through on this West-side difficulty. Holladay does not have much money to spend in the controversy however. He knows that there is an incorruptible Judge on the bench, and since the bribers ring's experience in showing justice two years ago they will not take any more desperate chances in that direction soon.

The Independent Voter is the subject of hot controversy. The Republican papers all say he is a Republican; the Democratic papers all say he is a Democrat. Most of them agree in treating him very respectfully.—Exchange.

Mr. Hammond's Meetings at the Grove.

We of Forest Grove were much pleased to hear that Mr. Hammond would visit us, though but for one day. The previous evening Capt. Wilkinson of Gen. Howard's staff held a meeting, and also conducted the meeting the following evening. He is full of noble enthusiasm and it does one good to hear and see such a man. For he not only talks, but acts. He devotes his whole life to the cause of Christ, going among the lowest and the most degraded, giving whole-hearted sympathy and help, taking them to his own home if need be. Everyone was pleased with him and avowed to labor more earnestly for the glorious cause. Capt. Ingersoll also spoke very effectively, and impressed many for good. Others too made interesting remarks or gave earnest testimony to the truth of the religion they professed. Mr. Hammond did not stay long enough to get us accustomed to his peculiar style and method: I believe it has been notorious of him that people are not at first pleased but as they come more in sympathy with his efforts and are convinced of his earnestness and sincerity, they cordially unite with him. For several reasons it was an unfavorable time for a meeting, but the good derived from seeing so many earnest; enthusiastic christians from Portland and hearing of the great work which has been going on there for the past winter and spring, was great and there is not a christian soul in Forest Grove but feels grateful to our Portland friends for their visit. We sincerely hope this may not be their last visit but that Forest Grove and Portland may work side by side in the great conflict.

DR. BAILEY'S ADDRESS.—We have received a pamphlet containing Dr. Bailey's address to the graduating class of the Medical college at Salem last month. The speech is extempore in style, easy, graceful, many passages strong and noble, making it popular alike to students, professional men, and for the occasion. It is an excellent lesson for the young physician just starting out with his sheepskin to administer to the ills of human flesh. The Doctor has fought his way up to his present high position through the many difficulties which involve the practice of medicine and he knows the kind of advice to give young doctors, as may be seen in his address.
