The Republican Nominations.

Hayes and Wheeler make a respectable ticket. They are both men of fair ability with no stain on their record, nor do they possess any great merit wherewith to arouse the old enthusiasm of the Republican party.

But the strongest man before the convention—strong in the heart and brain of the people—was Bristow. He had a noble record on which to go before the people, for their support, and there was no chance for his defeat.

With even a fair Democratic ticket the result would be doubtful, but with Tilden as their standard bearer, with a united South, and the thousand-stringed harp of Republican corruptions to play upon, we would not be surprised if the reactionary Democracy should again seize the reins of the Government.

Oregon Never Goes Back on the Farmer.

The two days' rain and cloudy misty weather last week was a God-send to the farmers. It insures the late sown grain. It threw down some grass on beaverdams but that was a mere drop in the bucket compared with the advantage derived from it for the grain and vegetable crops.

The Great Freshet.

The flood at Portland reached the highest point last Saturday, it being 11 inches above the high water mark of '62. The water raised three feet above Front street level in the north part of town. Had the water risen two feet higher at Portland the damage would have been great.

Let "Toots" Alone.

We want "Grimes," "Grimes Jr." and "K. Y. Z." to let "Toots" alone. We are getting a little tired of the dog and "sarsidig" matter and yearn for a rest. Come boys, can't you find some thing new?

The Bacchalaureate address was delivered by President T. F. Campbell. Why, we had the impression that Professor Campbell was a temperance man. It is preposterous, Mr. Telegram to think that a President of a Christian college should laud Bacchus. That's a Merebaun, Mr. Pipes. You smoke too much.

Washington County Celebration on the Hillsboro Park Grounds.

As we announced last week there will be a picnic on the Hillsboro Park grounds on the Fourth of July. No programme will be followed. There will be no oration, speech-making, reading of the Declaration of Independence, etc., but lots of fun and a good time. We all ought to attend our county celebration. It will cost little or nothing, we will get to see all of our friends in the county, and can return home at night to milk the cows and feed the pigs.

Hillsboro will fix up the grounds, put the springs and swings in good condition, keep stands where cooling drinks and (candy) kisses can be had for a dime. Come every one and enjoy the centennial Fourth of your common country.

As we go to press we learn that Ex-Governor Gibbs will deliver an oration at the celebration at this place on the Fourth.

Glencoe On a Bust—Too Much "Milk in His Cocoa-Nut"—The A-Jack-ass Arrives at Glencoe, Etc.

A man, however he it does not matter, brought out a ten gallon keg of lager to Glencoe lately and the Glencoeites formed a ring around the keg while the vender handed it around in a cocoa-nut dipper until only one half gallon was left, which the said vender wanted him-self, for that fellow, was powerful dry. One fellow got too much "milk in his cocoa-nut" and slouched around like a bran-new jack-ass for a while, then got sick at the stomach and could no more locomote than an intoxicated demijohn.

This is the straight of that matter about the "mulish librarian" that "observer" remarks about. A young lady was the librarian and she had always come to the S. School before the opening of the school. And on this particular time that "observer" so unobscuringly observes she was on hand as usual before time, but found that a doleful gentleman had broken open the door of the desk, laying himself liable to prosecution, and took out the books without any authority whatever.

Observer No. 2.

Nehalem—Homes for the Poor.

Mr. C. N. Plowman of Nehalem writes us as follows: There is still plenty of good brush land vacant on the Nehalem river. Coal has been discovered in several places near the river. The people of Nehalem are workers and will soon have good homes in cultivation. They are at work on the State road and will soon take the north end home with them.

We learn that Mr. Best who lives near this place found some stone coal of excellent quality on what he supposes to be a branch of Pebble Creek. This coal burned with a clear white light having but little gas, showing it to be anthracite coal. Mr. Best lost a horse while out there but returned the next week and was fortunate as to find him.

Several of the Hillsborites went to Portland last Sunday to see the sights. Some of them say that the water was so high down there that they could not afford to drink it.

STATE AND TERRITORIAL.

There is not a single saloon in the town of Dallas. Wheat is dull at Independence at 75 cents a bushel.

Experienced persons estimate that the surplus crop for shipment in Walla Walla valley this year will be equal to 1,000,000 bushels. Within a range of 100 miles in extent, along the Platte above and below Julesburg, are twenty-seven herds of cattle numbering about 76,900 head.

The white miners on Jackass creek have commenced outraging the Chinese miners on that stream by burning cabins and stoning them from and taking possession of their claims.

In consequence of the continued cool weather until late in the spring and the sudden transition from cool to hot some two weeks since, the wheat crops will be some what shorter than usual in Jackson county. Many of the farmers are cutting their wheat for hay. It is thought the oat crop will be about an average. A large hay crop is now being harvested in the county.

GLENCOE DOLE-SOME.

A Graphic Account of the Late Troubles in Historic Glencoe's Vale.

EDITOR INDEPENDENT:

What is all this row about at Glencoe? Well I will tell you. On the 3d Sunday in May, an attempt was made to organize a S. School which was a fizzle. On the following Sabbath Rev. Dole was appointed superintendent pro tem. and in that capacity he officiated for 2 Sundays. The next Sunday after the usual exercises he announced that "We will now proceed to the organization of a Union S. School." Well, W. R. Parker was elected president and N. Barrett superintendent. Also a treasurer and librarian were elected, but Corcoran Dole was defeated for one of these offices.

Thereupon Dole arose, put on his hat and taking his family left for the proud city of Glencoe in high dudgeon. The S. S. went off nicely. That was the first hair on Dole's back. Succeeding the S. S. trouble came the school difficulties. District No. 9 secured the services of Miss Miller, an efficient and intelligent young lady, to teach a 3 months' school. At the beginning of the school Mrs. J. F. Hoover visited the school and said to Miss M. "I would like if you could get along with my children without whipping them" and tried to get Miss M. to take some marbles with which to hire her children to be good and obedient. Miss M. refused, for the reason that if she hired one to be obedient she would have to hire all. In this, as in all well regulated schools, the teacher announced certain rules for the government of the same, which if broken the offender should be punished.

Well, near the school house stands Mr. Carpenter's barn in which many of his hens had built their nests, and Mr. C. wished the teacher to keep the children out of the barn lot, and she gave orders to that effect. But some of the children disobeyed and went into the barn and broke up the hens' nests. The teacher found it out and switched some of them pretty lively. This enraged the parents of the children and they called the teacher many names, not nice but naughty. Then Dole went to one of the directors—Barrett—and asked him to go to the school house with him. They entered the school house and Dole took the floor and scolded and abused the teacher in a disgraceful manner while the Director sat quietly and listened to him. The teacher got tired of his harangue and asked him if he had not said enough. Then the Director told Dole that would do.

Well in a few days there was a school meeting held to vote a tax, and the business being transacted the meeting adjourned. Then the school teacher laid a complaint before the directors of the school against the action of Dole. Dole denied a great many of the ungentlemanly things he had said when he opened his tirade on the teacher a few days before and this lowly follower of Jesus Christ even went so far as to call Miss Miller a liar. At this point W. R. Parker took the floor and said no gentleman would call a woman a liar, especially when he (Dole) knew he was the guilty one himself.

A. SPECTATOR.

The State of Oregon.

The name Oregon was long applied to all the territory claimed by the United States on the Pacific coast, extending from lat. 42° to 54° 40' north. Under the treaty of 1818, the provisions which were continued in 1827, it was jointly occupied by Great Britain and the United States till 1846, when the latter by the northwest boundary treaty, abandoned all claim to the country north of the 49th parallel, and the name Oregon was restricted to the region south of that line, to which in turn Great Britain renounced all claim. Though the coast of Oregon had been previously seen by various navigators, its history, as known to civilized man, may be said to commence with the discovery of the Columbia River by Captain Robert Gray, who entered its mouth in the American ship Columbia from Boston, May 7, 1792, and gave the name of the vessel to the river. By Louisiana purchase, 1803, the United States acquired whatever title France may have had to this region. The expedition across the continent, under Captains Lewis and Clarke, in 1804-6 gave the Americans an additional title to the country. In 1833 the emigration of Americans commenced overland, and previous to 1850 several thousand reached Oregon. Subsequently, the discoveries of gold attracted many settlers. The first attempt at organized government was made in 1841, and resulted in the establishment of an executive and a legislative committee in 1843. The Territory of Oregon was organized by the act of August 14, 1848 comprising all the United States territory west of the summit of the Rocky Mountains and north of the 42d parallel. The act of March 2, 1853 created Washington Territory, comprising all of Oregon north of the Columbia River toward the west, and the 46th parallel toward the east. By the act of February 14, 1859 Congress admitted Oregon into the Union with its present limits.—Appleton's American Cyclopaedia, revised edition, article "Oregon."

IN MEMORY OF LITTLE PEGGIE.

Weep not for me when I am dead. When 'neath the cold daisied soil I lie, Let not one bitter tear be shed, Breathe not a sigh, But lay my frail form gently down. Sweet will my slumber ever be, Beneath the dark and silent ground—How peacefully.

Weep not for me. O save your tears For those who linger yet below; With me 'tis well, I have no fears; I long to go.

I soon shall stand beside the stream, Its living waters ever see; The Tree of Life where oft in dreams I seem to be.

Weep not for me but let my rest Unbroken be in dreamless sleep; My cold hands folded o'er my breast—Why should you weep?

Farewell, my spirit mounts above All vain and transitory things, Where all is joy and peace and love, On angel's wings.

A FRIEND.

A spirit of lawlessness still prevails in Seattle. On a recent night some characters were bold enough to gain an entrance to the house of Mayor Gatzert, for the sake of plunder. But little money, however was obtained.

The lumber shipment from Dean & Co.'s mill on Coos Bay for May, amounts to 1,412,000 feet, 417,000 feet of which was flooring and 540,000 feet lath.

The late change in the weather from extreme to reasonable warmth, and several showers of rain, have saved the wheat crop of Walla Walla valley, both in Washington Territory and Oregon.
