A Scalawag.

Last Thursday evening a man appeared at a gentleman's residence in this place and asked for his supper and the man of the house directed the person to the hotel, but he went to Mr. Finney's residence and told the little boy that he wanted some supper, that he had asked the richest man in the place to give him his supper and was refused. The boy somewhat frightened at the rough appearance of the man let him into the house when one of Mr. Finney's daughters (Mr. Finney went East on a visit some time ago) set him lunch on a table in the porch. The fellow ate ravenously and then with out ceremony departed. He was rough looking customer and frightened the children not a little

We forgot to notice that Mr. W. D. Pittenger, the popular grocery man in Hillsboro, has removed his stock of goods into Mr. Chenette's store building on the corner west of Wehring's furniture shop. The Postoffice is also moved to the same place where it now occupies a neat room with new boxes. Pittenger has added dry-goods ad. to his stock and can now furnish his customers with whatever they want in that line. His store is the most tasteful in the place and his custom is growing rapidly.
