For the TIMES. THE BELIEVER'S SOLILOQUY.

COMMUNICATED BY D. B. R.

Oh, by what glimmering light we view, That unknown land we're hastening to, God hath locked up the mystic page, And curtained darkness round the stage. We talk of heaven ; we talk of hell ; But what they mean, no tongue can tell: Heaven the place where angels are, And hell the chaos of despair. This hour, perhaps, our friend is well ; The next we hear his tolling bell ; And for aught we know or see, He ceases to breathe and be. Swift flies the soul-scarce 'tis gone, Ten thousand leagues beyond the sun ; Or twice ten thousand more than told, Ere the forsaken clay is cold. Tho' while with us here below, How much themselves desired to know Of that God wrapt mystery beyond, Ere they broke this mortal bond. As if locked up by solemn fate, They keep the secret of their state. They tell their joys, their pains to none; That man may live by faith alone. And oh ! may God our souls prepare To meet and bless and praise him there.
