THE GAME LAW.

On our first page will be found the game law, for the protection of game and fish, enacted by the last Legislature, and which has been approved by the Governor and become a law. It is of general interest, and we hope every citizen will carefully read it with a purpose to obey it himself and use his influence to make others obey it. It is a law which has long been advocated by the TIMES, and for which the dictates of humanity and public economy have always pleaded. It may not be possible to enforce it at once throughout the State, but we believe the people will finally see the force of the many good reasons for obeying it. We find that the farmers are more generally in favor of it than has been supposed, and we are sure that every true sportsman will favor every reasonable means to secure its enforcement. We should like to see an organization for the purpose of enforcing this righteous law, in every town.

Let those who mean to obey the law themselves, use every honorable means to induce others to do the same. It would be well to print copies of this law in suitable form for posting in convenient places, says the Farmer, that no one may plead ignorance. Then let every violator of the law be promptly arrested and fined. A few months of vigilance and activity on the part of the friends of the measure will insure its final and permanent success. The wanton slaughter of deer, elk and other game, as has been practiced in this and other parts of the State during past years, is simply outrageous, and deserving of condemnation in the strongest terms, and the knowledge that the importance of the subject has called forth special legislation should have the effect to stimulate every citizen to exert his influence to see the law properly and effectively carried out strictly to the letter.

Funeral of Horace Greeley.

The remains of Horace Greeley, after lying in state for some time and being visited by about 75,000 people, were buried in Greenwood cemetery, New York city, on Wednesday, 4th instant, with imposing and appropriate ceremonies, in which many of the most prominent men of the nation, including President Grant and several members of his Cabinet, Gov. Hoffman, Senators Schurz, Trumbull, Fenton, Tipton and Schuyler Colfax, Minister Washburne, Generals Dix and Sherman, ex-Governors Randolph and Morgan, Wm. Everts, Thurlow Weed, Henry Wilson, and several Democratic members of Congress, participated. Rev. Henry Ward Beecher and Rev. Dr. Chapin officiated. Senators Trumbull and Fenton, Chief Justice Chase, Thurlow Weed, Wm. M. Everts, and Robert Bonner were among the pallbearers. Mr. Greeley's daughters were inconsolable. It is estimated that the funeral was over two miles long, and one of the largest and most imposing that ever occurred in the United States. A subscription to raise $75,000 for a monument to Greeley's memory has already been started in Brooklyn, and meets with universal favor.

Fatality Among Prominent Men.

Sickness and death have made an especial make of eminent Americans during the last few months past. Seward and Greeley have died; Vice President Colfax and Frank P. Blair have had strokes of paralysis; Judge Nelson, of the U. S. Supreme Court, has become too feeble to discharge his official duties, and has retired from the bench in consequence thereof; and now Charles Sumner is attacked by heart disease so severely as to make it necessary, in the opinion of his physician, for him to be excused from the labor of Senatorial Committees.

The Electoral Vote.

The Electors elected in Oregon last November met at Salem on Wednesday, 4th inst., and cast the vote of the State for U. S. Grant for President, and Henry Wilson for Vice-President. A. B. Mencham was chosen to carry the returns to Washington.

Office-Seekers Abundant.

A prominent Republican informs the Albany Democrat that three hundred and forty-eight of Grant's supporters in Oregon are circulating petitions asking for federal appointments, ranging from small Post Offices to first-class foreign missions.

"Sweetest Long Drawn Out."

Gen. Grant's message to the Forty-Second Congress, now in session, is at hand, and is noted for nothing except its great length, filling an entire edition of the Portland dailies. It is safe to say that very few weeklies will publish it.

Large Wool Yield.

One hundred and seventy-seven million pounds of wool was produced in the United States last year.

INDIAN WAR NEWS.

A Yreka dispatch, dated Dec. 5th, says that Alex. McKay arrived here at dark this evening from Hot creek, having left there at daylight this morning. From him we learn that Fairchild, Dorris, Beswick and Clover gathered up the Hot creek band of Modocs, some forty-five in all, and started to the Reservation. When they arrived at Bob Whittle's place, on Link river, they met a party of white men, very much excited, who determined to attack these Indians anyway, though they were and always have been peaceable. The white men with them had promised to protect the Indians if they would go to the Reservation, and told the party they would have to attack them also. In the meantime the Indian Agent came in from Linkville and told them it was no use to go further; that the Indians would not be permitted to pass through Linkville, and they had better return until he could get soldiers to protect them until they reached the Reservation. The Indians being anxious to go on, Fairchild concluded to go ahead and avoid Linkville. The Indians, hearing all the talk and seeing how excited everybody was, became frightened and all broke for the rocks and brush. Fairchild and party then returned home to Butte creek. They think most of them will come back to Hot creek, though some think the bucks will go and join Captain Jack's band, who are now believed to be around the south end of Tule lake. They will try and get them together again to-morrow and bring them around this way, until they meet the Agent. The Indian Agent informed Mr. Fairchild that a reign of terror existed all through the Lake country; that he knew positively of 15 whites who had been murdered. The Indians say they have lost only nine or ten killed and about the same number wounded. McKay will return to-morrow, with all the men he can get, to not only protect the settlers, but also the friendly Indians.

Another Yreka dispatch, of the 7th, says that George Flock, who was reported killed by the Modocs, arrived in town this evening. From him we learn the following: Flock was all through the fight, having started from Link river at 2 A. M., on the 29th ult., in company with Ivon Applegate and others for Langell valley, thence to Jesse Applegate's, on Clear Lake, where they obtained horses. On Monday, the 24, they proceeded to Tule Lake and saw Mrs. Brotherton, who told them she had been alone for two nights, and that her husband and two sons, aged respectively 11 and 22 years, were killed while hauling wood. Mrs. Brotherton and two young sons built a barricade in the house of sacks of flour. She said the Indians were on horses taken from Brotherton's teams. Mrs. Brotherton and sons killed two of the Indians and kept them away from the house night and day, so that they could not burn it, and had not slept for two nights. She and the two boys and little girl were then brought to the settlements. Flock stated that Henry Miller was undoubtedly taken away alive, as they found where his team had run off in the woods. They also found the body of Miller's wood-chopper, whose name is unknown. Flock says the cause of the report that he was killed was that he was out with a party hunting dead bodies, and met a German, a partner of John Schroeder, hunting for Schroeder's body, when Flock said he knew where it was, and with Charles Monroe who was also reported killed, started back to find it. Near Miller's house, as they were hunting for it, they took the wrong road, and becoming uneasy returned to the house. When reaching the house Flock and Monroe saw a party of men riding towards them from Bloody Point. This party proved to be the Applegate brothers with a party of friendly Klamath Indians. Applegate then got Flock to go and find the body. Not taking his gun, and while alone, he saw a party of Modocs, under Scar-faced Charley. One of the Indians rode ahead and shot twice at Flock, and also set Schroeder's house on fire. Flock's yelling called Applegate's attention, when he observed Schroeder's house on fire and sent young Seonches, a friendly Modoc, to see Charley and induce him to fight, while they made potholes in the house. After some talk they said they would fight, and were about to get behind a hay-stack and barn when Seonches was sent out by Applegate to burn both the hay-stack and the barn, and he succeeded in doing so before the Modocs came up. The Indians finding no shelter fled towards Bloody Point, and that night Applegate and party returned to the soldier's camp. Flock says when he was going to Linkville yesterday he met Overton and others with a wagon containing a coffin for himself and Monroe. All the male settlers on Tule Lake have been killed. Two men and children have escaped.

A Yreka dispatch of Dec. 9th says the following letter is just received: "HOT CREEK, Dec. 7.—To R. O. De Witt: We have all the Hot-creek Indians in. All quiet at present. We don't want any persons to come to our help until we call for them, as we are scarce of blankets. We have made arrangements with the authorities to come and get the Indians or meet us on the road to the Reservation. Yours, P. A. DORRIS."

The above letter was brought in by Wm. Eddy, from whom we learn the following additional particulars: J. A. Fairchild, P. A. Dorris, Nat. Beswick and Eben Ball went out Saturday to find Capt. Jack and Scar-faced Charley and induce them to come in and give themselves up. The above parties do not believe that Scar-faced Charley and Capt. Jack had anything to do with the killing of the settlers, and that the Indians killing the settlers are a band under an Indian known as Jim. Mrs. Boddy also stated that it was Jim's party who killed her husband, Scar-faced Charley and Capt. Jack not being in the band.

OREGON.

Two faro banks flourish in Roseburg. The railroad telegraph has been completed to Roseburg.

The State Fair next year will commence Monday, Oct. 6th. A temperance billiard saloon is the latest La Grande novelty.

Roseburg merchants are in limbo for violating the Sunday law.

Street cars ran for the first time in Portland, Friday, Dec. 6th.

The escaped nun has escaped from Oregon, and the air is purer.

The young ladies of Harrisburg are getting up a leap year party. Better late than never.

Capt. J. H. Fiske, of Portland, has assayed during the present year, gold to the amount of $280,000.

The tax-payers' ticket was generally successful over the regular Republican ticket in Salem on the 2d inst.

The railroad depot at Roseburg has been completed. The first passenger train came through on Monday.

Marion county says its handsomest woman wears a No. 8 shoe. That county evidently has large ideas of beauty.

Between four and five thousand dollars of subscriptions to aid in rebuilding the wooden mills have been raised at Oregon City.

A farmer in Benton county killed two hogs which weighed an even thousand pounds dressed, though they had run out all their lives.

Immediately on the receipt of the news at Salem of the death of Horace Greeley, the flag over the Capitol building was placed at half-mast.

The subscriptions to ensure the building of the State University at Eugene do not grow much, and the few friends of the measure are getting discouraged.

The Portland Bulletin has changed hands, and has been converted to morning paper. H. W. Scott, formerly of the Oregonian, is understood to be the new editor.

Mr. F. E. Adams, of Roseburg, made a run of 328 on a three-quarter carom table, in Dave McKinney's saloon on the 5th inst., counting one at a shot. Very fair for a Webfoot.

Large and rich deposits of chrome and copper have been found in the Cow creek hills in Douglas county. The chrome is said to be very rich, yielding 90 per cent., and is found in inexhaustible quantities.

J. F. Gazley, of Douglas county, has a patent harrow which bids fair to be one of the many labor-saving machines for our farmers. It runs on two wheels, which enables one to ride and drive, and has the merit of being of light draft and performing its work effectually.

The following business was transacted at the Land Office at Roseburg, during the month of November: Cash sales, 894 acres; homestead entries, 2,233 acres; final homesteads, 2,265; A. C. Scrip, 1,120 acres; donation certificates, 1,000 acres; pre-emption filings, 3,600 acres. Total, 11,050.

Mr. Sherwood, of Tillamook, while reading a newspaper the other day, was observed to quit speaking suddenly. Upon being addressed he made no answer when it was discovered that he was deaf and dumb. A pencil and paper were given him when he attempted to write but failed and fell to weeping.

We regret to announce the death of John Fleming, an old and highly esteemed resident of Oregon City. He died on the 2d inst., in the 78th year of his age. Mr. Fleming came to Oregon in 1845, and printed the first number of the Oregon Spectator, which was issued in the February following. He was Postmaster at Oregon for a number of years, and faithfully discharged his trust. He was a member of the Masonic Order, and by that fraternity his remains were deposited in their last resting place. The deceased leaves three children in Ohio.

Twenty years ago, Chemeketa lodge, of Salem, was the only lodge of Odd Fellows in what was then known as Oregon Territory; now there are in Oregon, alone, 41 lodges, and 3 Rebecca lodges, besides several encampments—with a membership of 1,556. In the jurisdiction, which includes Washington and Idaho, there are 53 lodges, with a membership of 2,081. The aggregate revenues of these lodges in 1871 was $41,660 91; and for the first half of 1872, it was $22,866 84, showing a healthful increase of wealth. Many of the lodges are the owners of considerable property, which does not figure in the statement of revenues.

At the meeting of the Board of Managers of the State Agricultural Society, held at Salem last week, the proper officers were instructed to negotiate a loan sufficient to clear off all the liabilities of the Society, though it may be necessary to mortgage the Fair Grounds. Mr. Robert Irvine of Linn county was elected Grand Marshal for the ensuing year; the premium list was overhauled and rearranged for 1873, with offers of medals in excess of money premiums; the rule requiring all visitors to wear badges, was abolished; and such other orders were made, of a subordinate character as will enable the officers to go forward with the affairs of the Society.

OFFICIAL VOTE OF OREGON.

The official returns of the Presidential vote in Oregon is now complete, the vote having been canvassed by the Secretary of State, in presence of the Governor, on Monday, December 24. There is but little difference between the votes cast for each elector in the several parties, consequently we only give the vote for the several Presidential candidates in each county:

Yamhill.....	601	411	4
Total.....	11813	7735	587

Grant's majority—counting the lowest vote for Grant Elector over the highest Greeley Elector—4,069.

George Francis Train received one vote in Umatilla county. In the above table we have given the average O'Connor vote, as cast in the several counties, in some of which the vote was for one set of electors, and in others for another set.

J. Q. Adams received one vote in Marion county. L. F. Lane received five votes in Curry. Four votes were given, direct for O'Connor—3 in Douglas and one in Marion. Four votes were cast blank—3 in Umatilla and 1 in Washington.

The vote for electors stood as follows: Helm, 7,735; Shattuck, 7,729; Gates, 7,742; Gazley, 11,813; Hare, 11,811; Mencham, 11,819.

The Herald, commenting on these returns, very pertinently remarks: Last June the vote for Congressmen stood as follows: Wilson, 13,000; Burnett, 12,317; scattering, 187. By this comparison it will be seen that there was a falling off in the Presidential vote of 5,372. It will be further seen that Burnett received 499 more votes than Grant, and that the difference between the Republican vote of last June and that of Grant's is 1,182. These comparisons conclusively show that had a Democrat been nominated for President a majority in this State could have easily been obtained for him, and that the 1,182 difference in the vote between Wilson and Grant is about the illegal vote cast at the June election by the Republican party.
