HOW SENATORSHIPS ARE LOST.

The dodge by which the Christian philanthropist was entrapped and slaughtered at Topeka, the other day, says the Springfield (Mass.) Republican, is very far from being a novelty in our politics.

Indeed, it was practiced only last fall to kill off Mr. Corbett, of Oregon, though the story, so far as we know, has never before got into print. Corbett thought he had, probably did have, a pretty sure thing on his re-election to the Senate.

The cards had been skillfully put up, and there seemed to be nothing more to do but go in and win. But good classic authority has assured us that human affairs are uncertain. A guileful law-maker in the interest of Ben. Holladay caused it to be intimated to a next friend and an active worker of Mr. Corbett's that he was open to conviction—in fact, to make a proffer of money in distinct terms, when the legislature turned on him, explained the situation, and gave him his choice between taking his man out of the way and having the whole affair detailed to the Legislature, the Senate and the country. Mr. Corbett, from all that appears, was as innocent of any complicity in, or even knowledge of, the intended bribery as the unborn babe; but appearances were against him; he had lived long enough to find out that men are apt to put the worst construction on things, and he didn't want to sacrifice his friend. The upshot of the business was that he got out of the way, and Mr. Holladay had the satisfaction of seeing his attorney elected to the Senate of the United States. Which satisfaction was not unmixed, however, for though the attorney was put forward in his interest, he intended, in his secret heart, after the field had been cleared, to come in and seize the place himself.

But, like Miles Standish, sent to court a girl for his friend, the attorney concluded to keep the prize for himself, and though Ben, the rough, may have upbraided in private, he had to smile and congratulate in public.

The Vice of the Times.

Senatorial bribery and corruption are as common as puckered lips in perspiration time. Kansas leads off as a double header. Caldwell is being investigated, and Old Beans Pomeroy will be. The recent Missouri Senatorial investigation clears the skirts of the successful aspirant—Mr. Boggs—but leaves an arm around Gen. Dorris, who desired to succeed Frank Blair. The fraud in Louisiana was wholesale, and if the Administration's wishes are carried out, will be sustained by the Senate. Brother Harlan, who so reverently leaves that body, hints that if Allison, the incoming Senator was investigated, it would be shown how much the Pacific Railroad paid to secure his election. In the election of Senator Patterson, of S. C., votes were sold openly. Clayton, of Arkansas, will be ousted if half justice be done. In Nevada, Jones outbid Jim Nye, and the latter will no longer play the jester for his senatorial brethren. These are the cases now occupying public attention, to which may be added the name of Senator Patterson, who is irretrievably damned with Credit Moblier; and the whole fabric of senatorial corruption, bribery, and fraud may be capped with that shining light, the presiding officer of the Senate, whose fall is so great that in deep sorrow his Radical friends must exclaim: "Colfax, we are sorry! We must never trust thee more!"

A Curious Incident.

The Terre Haute Express says that a city minister opened his front door suddenly, and surprised a guilty looking man who was just in the act of depositing a neatly covered basket on the door step. The minister was not rapturous. "Ah!" said the minister, rushing out and grasping the man by the collar, while he plied a heavy soled boot vigorously under the coat tail of his visitor, "what do you mean, you villain, by leaving a baby on my door step? Ah, I have you, scoundrel! I'll show you how to abandon an infant to the mercies of the world!" And all these remarks were punctuated by kicks. "I haint left any baby at your door," said the man, taking up the basket and lifting the cover, "I brought a right fat turkey for you, but I'm damned if you shall have it now, if you were starving," and he walked gloomily away. The minister had a pensive, unhappy look and corrugated brow, as he dissected his buckwheats a few minutes later. Evidently there had been a misunderstanding.

SLATER'S TIMBER LAND BILL.

The Washington correspondent of the S. F. Bulletin, under date of the 26th ult., says:

A bill of considerable importance to the Pacific Coast has been reported by Mr. Slater, of Oregon, and passed by the House, providing for the sale of timber lands. It provides that each actual and bona fide settler upon or owner of untimbered lands in Oregon shall be entitled to enter, at the proper land office, timbered lands which have been, or may be hereafter surveyed, not exceeding 40 acres for each quarter section of the 160 acres or less subdivision of untimbered land occupied or owned by each applicant, at the price of $1.25 per acre, unless such timbered lands sought to be entered be within the exterior lines of any grant to aid in the construction of railroads, in which case the entry price shall be $2.40 per acre; provided that no person shall be allowed to enter more than 160 acres of timbered land under the provisions of this act. And provided further, that before any such entry shall be allowed, the applicant shall make satisfactory proof that he is an actual and bona fide settler upon or owner of untimbered lands, particularly describing the same; and that such lands have not sufficient timber growing thereon for their improvement or support; and provided also, that no second entry of timbered land shall be allowed to be made under the provisions of this act by any subsequent owner of any untimbered lands for the benefit of which one entry of timbered lands has been made. And all timbered lands entered under the provisions of this act shall be within 30 miles of the untimbered lands described in the proof and application.

It is confidently expected that the bill will also be passed this session by the Senate.

Estay Notice.

The following Dutchman's estray notice was published many years ago, but as it has not recently appeared in print, a friend requests us to give it an airing that it may not be entirely lost from among the curiosities of the present century:

"Mine hoss ish shloped, und I makes fraid he's pin daken, shlofen or shtrayed. Mine pig plack hoss vot looks so shryp bout 14 or 15 hands high. He's plack all ofer, dat ish drue—all but his face, und dat ish plack, doo. He's got two legs before und two behind—now you yust keeb dish all to mind. New Political Secret Order.

The S. F. Chronicle has an account of a new political secret order which is said to have a general existence throughout the United States. Each member swears that he will never support for office any Irishman nor Roman Catholic; that all his energies shall be directed to prevent the spread of Catholicism, and that he will endeavor to increase the growth of his order by every available means. It is said that one of the results of this organization was the defeat of John A. McGlynn, who is an Irishman and a Catholic, and a resident of San Francisco for twenty years, by John Rosenfeld, a man almost unknown, for Harbor Commissioner of that city, by about 2,000 majority. It is, perhaps, needless to add that this is a Republican organization.

A Bloody Rumor.

On the 25th of January a ludicrous rumor obtained currency in New York and was telegraphed to other places, that Frank Blair had assassinated President Grant! Quite an excitement was created by it, and telegrams came thick and fast in Washington, containing inquiries couched in terms of the deepest apprehension and solicitude, for particulars. It is thought that the bloody rumor that Blair had killed Grant arose from the fact that the Missouri Legislature had killed Blair. Senator Harlan went to see Grant about the matter, and the latter said: "Senator, if I am assassinated I am not aware of it."

Well-to-Do Indian.

It is said that Capt. Jack has $900 on deposit in the Yreka bank.

FOOLISH HABITS.

To take exercise, or walk for the health when every step is a drag and instinct urges repose.

To sit down to a table and "force" yourself to eat, when there is not only no appetite, but a decided aversion to food.

To take a glass of soda, or toddy, or sangaree, or mint-drops, on a summer day, under the belief that it is safer and better than a glass of cold water.

Dr. Hall, in his Journal of Health, enumerates several practices of the careless public, which are sometimes as dangerous as they are foolish:

To guzzle down a glass of cold water on getting up in the morning, without any feeling of thirst, under the impression of the health-giving nature of its washing-out qualities.

To carry a long pencil in a vest or outside coat pocket. Not long since a clerk in New York fell and the long cedar pencil so pierced an important artery that it had to be cut down from the top of the shoulder to prevent his bleeding to death, with a three-months' illness.

Walking along the streets with the point of an umbrella sticking out behind, under the arm or over the shoulder. By suddenly stopping to speak to a friend, or other cause, a person walking in the rear had his brain penetrated through the eye, in one of our streets, and died in a few days.

To persuade yourself that you are destroying one unpleasant odor by introducing a stronger one—that is, trying to sweeten your unwashed garments and person by enveloping yourself in the fumes of musk, eau de cologne, or rose water; the best perfume being a clean skin and well-washed clothing.

Increase of Sheep.

Every farmer's boy should learn the great natural law that governs the increase of sheep. Five years ago, so says the Western Rural, a lady down in Delaware sent her little grandson in Illinois, $5 to invest in sheep. His father bought him one ewe for $4, leaving him a cash capital of $1. In due time there was a pair of lambs. They did well, and in the spring following there was another lamb. In the fall a butcher traded five ewes for his little flock. Those five ewes had each twins. He sold the ram lambs for $5 each, and kept the ewes. His clip last May was 108 pounds, which he sold for 50 cents per pound, making $54. He has sold now over $120 worth of wool and sheep, and has 22 sheep on hand. A young man, who will start with a few good sheep, and as they increase, buy land at a reasonable price, on which to raise all the grass possible, and some turnips to keep his flocks, may in fifty years be worth from one hundred thousand to a million dollars.

The Idler.

The idle man is an annoyance—a nuisance. He is of no benefit to anybody. He is an intruder in the busy thoroughfare of every-day life. He stands in our path, and we push him contemptuously aside. He is of no advantage to anybody. He annoys busy men. He makes them unhappy. He is a naught in society. He may have an income to support him in idleness, or he may "sponge" on his good-natured friends. But in either case he is despised. Young men! do something in this busy, bustling, wide-awake world! Move about for the benefit of mankind, if not for yourself. Do not be idle. God's law is that by the sweat of our brow we shall earn our bread. That law is a good one, and the bread we thus earn is sweet. Do not be idle. Minutes are too precious to be squandered thoughtlessly. Every man and every woman, however humble, can do good in this short life, if so inclined; therefore do not be idle.

Spectacles for Animals.

A short time since a cat was seen sitting quietly at the door of an optician in the Rue Truffant, Paris, wearing a pair of spectacles. The cat's master explained that animals were often as short-sighted as men, and suffered the same inconvenience from that infirmity. "Many horses," said he, "are afflicted in the same manner, and I hope the spectacles, for which I have taken out a patent, will have a great success. But I do not stop there. We often observe fowls in poultry yards die suddenly, though shortly before in a good condition. This is caused by a malady of the eyes; they no longer see their food, and succumb from inanition." And the ingenious artist showed several miniature pairs of blue and white spectacles, such as might be worn by dolls, so diminutive were they.

The Successful Man's Motto.

Early to bed, and early to rise; never get tight and advertise.
