List to a tale well worth the ear Of all who wit and sense admire,-Invented-it is very clear-

Some ages prior to Mathew Prior. Falsehood and Truth "upon a time," One day in June's delicious weather, (Twas in a distant age and clime)

Like sisters, took a walk together. On, on their merry way they took, Through verdant wood and meadow, To where a beech beside a brook

Invited rest beneath its shadow. There, sitting in the pleasant shade, Upon the margin's grassy matting, (A velvet enshion ready-made) The young companions fell to chatting.

Now while in voluble discourse On this and that their tongues were running, As habit bids each speaks, perforce, The one is frank ; the other cunning.

Falsehood, at length, impatient grown With seandals of her own creation, Said, "Since we two are quite alone, And nicely screened from observation, Suppose in this delightful rill, While all around is so propitious, We take a bath ?"-Said Truth, "I will, A bath, I'm sure, will be delicious!" At this her robe she east aside,

And in the stream that ran before her. She plunged-like Ocean's happy bride-As naked as her mother bore her! Falsehood at leisure now undressed.

Put off the robes her limbs that hamper, And having donned Truth's snowy vest. Ran off as fast as she could scamper. Since then, the subtle maid, in sooth, Expert in lies and shrewd evasions,

Has borne the honest name of Truth, And wears her clothes on all occasions; While Truth, disdaining to appear In Falsehood's petticoat and boddice, Stiff braves all eyes, from year to year, the item. A Meadville, Pa., girl who was looking at a clown whirling a hat with a JOB WORK OF EVERY. KIND stick, remarked to her young man that she "used to do that." The young man was looking at a contortionist in another part of the arena who had his legs tied around his neck, and an explanation was necessary.

As naked as a marble goddess.

This story comes from Maine, A man in Portland married a widow. She had a fashion, which is too common among ladies who have buried a POSTERS. man, of giving him glowing accounts of the angelic virtues of the dear departed. As a prohibition law is in force in Maine, he could not drown his sorrows in liquor, so he nerved his soul to take a terrible revenge. One night when his wife was sleeping soundly, perhaps dreaming of the "first victim of her charms, he arose from his bed, took a sledge-hammer, and deliberately raising it to his shoulders, he marched to the graveyard, and smashed the tomb-stone of his dead rival into little bits. Now, when his wife says anything about the virtues of the dead man, he replies: "It may be all very true, old gal; but he can't smash my tombstone. There's where I'm ahead."

Heroic for a Treatment Snake Bite. J. B. WHITE.

TWO QUARTS OF WHISKY IN TWENTY MINUTES.

The other day Jos. Hulse, a woodchopper of Cornwall, New York, was bitten by a rattlesnake. While on Storm King Mountain, five miles up, he encountered a serpent, and, wanting one for a friend who had rheumatism—the belief of many thereabouts being that snake grease is a cure for it -he chased the snake, which took refuge in a wood-pile, and Hulse seized it by the back of the neck, but so far from the head that it contrived to turn and plant one of its fangs in the index finger of his right hand. Hulse held fast to his snake, nevertheless, stamped its head off, and then spent half an hour looking for white ash leaves, which are believed to be an antidote for poison. He found none to suit him, THE UNDERSIGNED TAKE PLEAShowever, and started for Cornwall. He was bitten at seven, and it was public generally that they are now receiving 11 o'clock when he reached the vil- stock of lage, and Dr. Beatie was summoned. At this time the arm and finger were very much swollen and gangrenous, the action of the heart almost ceased, and the man seemed like one in a state of intoxication. Dr. Beatie hastily cut the finger open, and administered two AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS, quarts of whisky in twenty minutes; laudanum and quinine were also given in large quantities, and notwithstanding the loss of three and a half pints of creased, and Hulse became perfectly conscious. He is, after eleven days, in apparently good health, with excellent appetite, but as black as an African. The black is occasionally streaked with blue, purple and green, which appear and disappear alternately.
