CHINAMAN CAPTURED.—For some time past Adam Schmidt, living on Rich Gulch, has been troubled by several felonious visits from persons, supposed to be Celestials. His premises having suffered again from these depredations last Friday night, and tracks being numerous the next morning, he followed them up and came across a Chinaman, whom, with the aid of a double-barreled shot gun, he safely escorted to town. Justice Stinson fixed his bonds at $150, to appear before the next Grand Jury, in default of which he was sent to jail. Bail was subsequently furnished by Lin and Chow, and he was released.

THE NEW WAGON ROAD.

MOUND RANCH, Jackson Co., Aug. 24, 1874.

EDITOR TIMES—Dear Sir:—I embrace this opportunity to give you a brief outline of my first trip to the mountains in Oregon. Notwithstanding the busy time of the year, in company with some four others, I started from M. Hanley's farm on Little Butte creek last Monday morning, for the purpose of examining the pass through the Cascade range at the head of the Butte creeks, in order to ascertain the practicability of constructing a wagon road through said pass. We found that the pass is the best and nearest way to connect this valley with the valleys east of us that can be found. Mr. Hanley's farm is 28 miles from Jacksonville. It is five miles to Soda Springs, on the north prong of Little Butte; from there it is six miles to the Falls, where the Applegate railroad survey crosses the creek; from there it is nine miles to where said survey crosses the Ashland and Pelican Bay wagon road. Here the proposed road should fork, the left hand fork leading to Fort Klamath. The right hand fork should follow as near as practicable on the Applegate railroad survey to Mr. Stearns', near Link river, where it would intersect the Ashland road. The distance from these forks to Stearns' is 32 miles, making in all 80 miles from Jacksonville to the latter place. I think this distance can be made easier on this route than on any other that crosses the Cascade or Nevada range. It will be up one way and down the other, as there are no deep chasms to cross. We did not explore the whole route; but some of the party have been over all of it. The part we explored is said to be the most difficult portion of the whole route. I have crossed this range in three other places, and I find that a road can be made on this route for less than one-twentieth what it cost to make the Amador, Placerville or Truckee river roads in California. It is in fact but a light undertaking to make a wagon road on this route. We found not a place that will require blasting, and most of the grading will be clearing away timber.

At some future time I will try and show some of the advantages this road would be to the public. Yours, etc., M. PETERSON.

IN OREGON.—The laws of California prohibiting the exhibition of deformed human beings, the proprietors of the deformed girl, attached as a side show to Montgomery Queen's circus, have pushed on through for Oregon. They passed through Yreka last Monday en route for this place, and are doubtless somewhere in the county yet. They have given no exhibitions, however.

UPSET.—The Courier learns that one of the teams that left Crescent City week before last for Rogue River Valley, loaded with the machinery of a grist mill, upset on the Lewis hill, and several of the large castings were broken.

AN IMPORTANT ENTERPRISE.—We learn that it is almost certain that the Masonic fraternity, in connection with Veit Schutz, will build a two-story brick, to occupy the ground embraced between Schumpf's new structure and that of Wintjen & Helms. The proposed building cannot but be of great importance to Jacksonville, and we trust its erection will be finally concluded upon.

A HEALTHY SEASON.—Although a few cases of sickness prevail at present, the general health seems to be good. Nearly all of the prevailing cases are not dangerous.
