GENERAL NOTES AND NEWS.

Northern California has been enjoying the luxury of an earthquake. It was lively but not severe.
The great Studebaker wagon factory of South Bend, Indiana, burned down on August 25th. Loss, $300,000.
Women are allowed to vote in Utah, provided they are 21 years of age, native or naturalized citizens and taxpayers.
Gen. O. O. Howard has arrived in Portland and assumed command of the Department of the Columbia, superseding Gen. Jeff. C. Davis.
A Marion county man went to the Clerk's office to get a license to marry, but forgot the girl's name and had to go home without the license.
The Secretary of the Emigration Board estimates that for the present year the emigration to the United States will be about 135,000. So that the comparison stands as follows: For 1873, 268,818; and for 1874, 135,000; decrease, 133,818.
A match has been made in New York for a billiard contest for $2,000 and the championship of America, between Cyrille Dion and A. Rudolph. Five hundred dollars were posted, and the contest is to take place there on the 18th of September.
It is remarkable that in the local option towns in California rattlesnake and scorpion bites are of frequent daily occurrence, and it is rarely that any other than local optionists get bit, they say. The only safe remedy is whisky, and drug stores do a thriving business.
The corn acreage this year shows an increase of 6 per cent., or 2,000,000 acres over last year. Iowa and Missouri gain each 300,000 acres, Indiana and Illinois each 200,000, and Kansas 170,000. Georgia has an increase of 300,000 acres; Alabama, 180,000; Mississippi, 120,000, and Texas, 200,000 acres. Allowing forty bushels as the average per acre, the increase over last year amounts to 80,000,000 bushels.
The Chicago Tribune says the last great fire burnt over some sixty acres of that city. A few large, substantial buildings were consumed; but at least forty acres of the sixty were covered by the most miserable shanties in the habitable world. While to individuals the loss was severe, to the community the destruction of these fire traps was a positive blessing. Their existence on the south side of the business part of the city was a constant menace to its safety. And if even one-half of the reforms proposed and the safeguards this fire is likely to produce are carried out, the greater security of the city in the future is purchased at a very low price.
The stockholders in the Oregon Shipping, Storage and Commission Company of the Patrons of Husbandry met at Good Templars' Hall in Portland a short time since and effected an organization by electing A. J. Dufur, of Multnomah, President; Greenbury Smith, of Benton, Vice President, and T. J. Matlock, of Clackamas, Secretary. The following named Directors were also elected: Greenbury Smith; L. D. C. LaTourrette, of Clackamas; Stephen Coffin, of Marion; W. W. Powers, of Linn; L. W. Welkins, of Lane; O. D. Babcock, of Polk, and A. J. Dufur, of Multnomah. The capital stock of $100,000 is said to have been all taken, and it is in contemplation to increase the amount.
The latest dispatches announce the departure of Henry C. Bowen for Europe. Bowen is set down as authority for some of the most infamous charges laid at the door of Henry Ward Beecher. It is significant that during the progress of the scandal he has steadfastly refused either to deny that he was authority for them or testify concerning them. So long as the matter was kept out of the Courts there was no power to compel him to speak. The Portland News says his opportune trip to Europe will place it beyond the power of a Court of law to compel him to speak. Truth may be merciful, but did it ever desert innocence or keep a seal upon its lips when innocent men were falsely accused?

WAR IN THE MODOC CAMP.

"Old Sheepy" and "Old Blind Buck" were two of the few Modocs left on the borders of Klamath Lake, when the rest of the tribe were removed east of the Rocky Mountains. Weak and decrepit as these two old men, representatives of a once powerful tribe, were, they could not spend their few remaining days in peace. On Thursday, the 20th inst., Sheepy took down his faithful old rifle, and walking over to "Old Blind Buck's" wickiup, despatched the soul of his enemy to the "happy hunting grounds." "Old Sheepy" has been an Indian of mark in his day, renowned both as a warrior and a hunter. He has frequently told the whites of the part he has acted in the feuds of the Modocs with surrounding tribes, and particularly with the Pit Rivers. If he was an active participant in the massacres of white immigrants by the Modocs, as he probably was, he has prudently, in his communicative moods with the whites, kept this part of his history locked in his bosom. For many years past he has lived with his own family pretty much separate from the balance of the tribe. He always refused to recognize Capt. Jack as a chief, and persistently stood aloof from the enterprises in which that schemer, backed by his followers, was from time to time engaged. The Willow Creek and Cottonwood country he recognized as his home, and always refused to leave it for Lost river where Jack and his followers made their headquarters. He took no part with Jack and his crowd in their contentions with the Government agents who desired to remove them to the reservation. And when war broke out between Jack's Modocs and United States troops, he remained with his family on Willow Creek, apparently feeling as little concerned about the issue of the struggle as if one of the parties engaged were not people of his own race. This apathy, which he exhibited throughout the war, is ascribed to some enmity between him and Jack.
The cause of his killing "Old Blind Buck" is explained as follows: Last Spring a daughter of "Sheepy" died; about two months ago his wife died also; since then another child has been sick and liable to die almost any day. It seems "Old Blind Buck" who set up claims to be a "doctor," and who was not very cordial in his friendship for "Sheepy," said in one of his pythonic fits: "Sheepy's daughter is dead; 'Sheepy's' wife is dead, too; 'Sheepy's' child is sick and nearly ready to die; Old 'Sheepy' will soon die; all 'Sheepy's' folks will soon be dead." An Indian boy, who stood by and heard the prophecy, hastened to "Sheepy's" tent and told him what "Old Blind Buck" had said. As stated above, "Sheepy" took his rifle and hastening to the tent of the prophet, put a ball through him. J. A. Fairchild, who is our informant, supposes that "Sheepy," recognizing the old blind Indian as a "doctor," ascribed to his supernatural powers the misfortunes that had already befallen his family, and regarded the utterance with which he was credited by the Indian boy as declarations of a purpose to inflict still further evils on him. To prevent the infliction of these, or in revenge for those he had already suffered, he resolved to put his enemy out of the way. The Indians are very superstitious, and are controlled in many things by their fear of the powers believed to be possessed by the "doctor."—Yreka Union.

HAIR CHARACTERIZATION.

—A writer says: Coarse black hair and dark skin signify great power of character, with a tendency to sensuality. Fine black hair and dark skin indicate strength of character, along with purity and goodness. Stiff straight black hair and beard indicate a coarse, strong, rigid, straightforward character. Fine dark-brown hair signifies the combination of exquisite sensibilities with great strength of character. Flat clinging straight hair, a melancholy but extremely constant character. Harsh upright hair is the sign of a reticent and sour spirit. Coarse red hair indicates powerful animal passions, with a corresponding strength of character. Auburn hair, with florid countenance, denotes the highest order of sentiment and intensity of feeling—purity, with high capacity for enjoyment or suffering. Straight, even, smooth and glossy hair denotes strength, harmony and evenness of character, hearty attractions, a clear head and superior talents. Fine, silky, supple hair is the mark of a delicate and sensitive temperament, and speaks in favor of the mind and character of the owner. Crisp, curly hair indicates a hasty, somewhat impetuous and rash character. White hair denotes a lymphatic and indolent constitution.

A NIGHT IN THE COUNTRY.

About eleven o'clock the dogs take a tongue in. The faithful watch-dogs generally form themselves into Granges, each containing about 700 dogs, for mutual aid and benefit in the illicit distillation of mutton. Every night 100 dogs steal away silently to kill sheep, while the other 600 bark furiously, to induce their owners to believe they are, like the Hon. Elijah Program, "active in their trust," and to cover the bloody operations of their fellows.

At midnight the cow, whose calf has been reft from her, having reflected on her loss, lifts up her voice and laments. The lament of a sorrowing cow in a barn is something sui generis, in the matter of sounds. In the first place, it takes her a long time to become loud, and an equally long time to fill the barn with noise. But when the building is crowded with "moo," and it begins to leak out at the windows and doors in muffled and melancholy thunder, she has a long interval of rest to prepare for another blast ere the first undulation has been exhausted.

About two in the morning she is drowned out and silenced by a jackass somewhere in the country, who, having nerved himself for the effort by a silence of twenty-four hours, delivers himself of a bray that makes the sky bright with a responsive shower of shooting stars. There is an awful silence for about twenty minutes, no animal daring to call his voice his own; then the jackass sings again.

Just as the country side is congratulating itself that the infliction is over, for another interval of twenty minutes, he discharges a third volley, and then is heard no more. You, however, do not know whether he has broken a blood vessel or gone to sleep; but with a dreadful uncertainty as to when the next bray will occur, you put your head under the clothes and your thumbs in your ears and wait.

A GOOD SQUIB.—The following excellent squib from Frank Leslie's Weekly applies to those people who perpetually assure the public that there is nothing political about the Grange movement, at the same time that they are moving heaven and earth to erect it into a national party:

Granger—"We want a Congress that will regulate the tariff so as to give us foreign goods cheap; the currency so as to give us plenty of money, and railroads so as to give us low freights. We want a President who will not veto our measures. We will vote for none but free-traders, paper-money men, national railroad statesmen, and a party that is superior to either of those now in existence."

Politician—"Then you will enter the field of politics?"

Granger—"Oh, no. We will start a party, write platforms, and elect candidates in our interests, but we won't have anything to do with politics."

Politician—"Oh, I see. You won't have anything to do with mills, but will raise wheat and run grist-mills. Quite a fine distinction."

INCORPORATED.—Articles of incorporation were filed yesterday in the office of the Secretary of State by B. Wistar Morris, incorporating himself as "Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Church of the United States in and for the State of Oregon." The objects of the incorporation are for the purpose of worship of Almighty God, the preaching of the Gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ, sustaining schools for the education of young men for the ministry, holding real estate for such purposes, etc. The amount of capital held by the corporation is about $75,000. The principal office of the incorporation is at Portland.

The South Umpqua Bridge Company also filed articles of incorporation yesterday, with H. W. Stevenson, G. N. Yokum and C. M. Yokum, as incorporators. The purpose of the incorporation is to build a toll bridge across the south branch of the Umpqua River, in Canyonville Precinct, Douglas county. The principal place of business is Canyonville. The capital stock is $3,000, with sixty shares of $50 each.—Salem Statesman, Aug. 27.

WHILE Prof. Watson has been fooling away fifteen years of his life in the study of astronomy, a very common fellow in Delaware has discovered that a turnip tied to a string and hung to a hook will prevent rheumatism from entering the house.

THE Detroit Free Press says: One of the most vexatious things in the world is to have your wife's uncle kicked in the stomach by a horse, will you $20,000, and then deliberately get well.

If anything will impress the human mind with awe, it is the expression of the man's face who has just been aroused from snoring in church.
