FRIDAY

Written for the TIMES. TEMPES FUGIT.

BY F.

Yea, Time with never faltering speed Is moving on with fearful pace; His solemn record all may read In every sallow, wrinkled face.

He writes his progress on the brow, H.s furrows in the comliest cheek, And rich and poor alike must bow To the sure vengeance he will wreak.

He robs the youthful of their bloom, The middle-aged of their might, And haunts them with the dismal tomb, Where earth-born glories fade from sight.

And least of pity oft is shown Where e'en are found the brightest charms; He reck's their beauty all his own, And folds it in his fatal arms.

His scythe is wielded night and day, And harvest lasts throughout the year, With Death to bear the sheaves away, Bedewed by many a doleful tear.

Then why must mortals strive and fret, The owners of vast wealth to be, When all's as dross they e'er may get This side of vast eternity ?

Much better far the peasant's crust An lowly cot, with mind content, Than life enslaved through Mammon's lust, And in his heartless service spent.

LIVE .- Live for something! Yes, and each will sound the one tuned to and for something worthy of life and the corresponding pitch at the other its capabilities and opportunities for end without any one interfering with noble deeds and achievements. Every another. man and every woman has his or her assignment in the duties and responsibilities of daily life. We are in the world to make the world better; to lift it up to higher levels of enjoyment and progress, to make its hearts and of the country : homes brighter and happier by devoting to our fellows our best thoughts, activities and influences. It is the motto of every true heart, and the genius of every noble life, that "no man liveth to himself"-lives chiefly for his own selfish good. It is a law of our intellectual and moral being that we promote our own happiness in tory of that particular community for the exact proportion we contribute to the comfort and enjoyment of others. Nothing worthy of the name of happiness is possible in the experience of those who live only for themselves, all oblivious to the welfare of their fellows. MUSIC BY TELEGRAPH.-One of the most remarkable inventions in the way of telegraphy was recently exhibited at the office of the Dominion Telegraph Company at Bradford, Ont. It congraph wires, and every word and note wires as at the place where the music originates. In short, when the invention is in working order, it is held that 4. If subscribers remove to other places be as plainy heard at New York as at that place. It is received at the other terminus upon a piece of shellac paper from a like machine, plainly written like copperplate. Pictures, the inventors say, can be perfectly copied by the same process. All this work can be done by boys, and, if put into operation, will do away with telegraph operators altogether. Still another discovery, which it is claimed can be put into use, is that of transmitting over a single wire any amount of messages to the same point and at the same time. The plan is to have a corresponding number of instruments at each terminus of the wire, and one of each of these tuned to correspond with one at the other end. By this arrangement the entire number of machines can be operated simultaneously,
