THE CHINESE.

Since the rapid influx of the Chinese first began, many people of this Coast have been opposed to this immigration and anxious to put a stop to it, thinking that the presence of these vast hordes of mongolians could but be beneficial to our welfare. But at that time the cry was for "cheap labor," and it was contended and believed by many that with Chinese we could complete important enterprises that could not be done without, and thus in a few years add greatly to the prosperity of the country. So the Chinese were allowed to come and have kept coming, and to-day what is the result? Is our financial condition any better than it was before? No. And on every hand we hear the cry of "hard times," occasioned by the millions of dollars taken out of our country and locked in the coffers of China.

We have tried the experiment with the Chinese and it has not been a success. On the contrary, it has proven detrimental to our interests. The Chinese have brought crime, pestilence, and misery with them, and taken home our gold. Their stay among us is only temporary. They know nothing of our system of Government and have no interest in it, as other classes of foreigners have; nor do they contribute to the support of our public institutions. Thus will it readily be seen that we have nothing to gain and much to lose from this class of people.

The people of the Eastern States look upon the Chinese very much as they do the Indians—that is, that they are being persecuted by the people of the Pacific Coast. But here, where we have an opportunity of witnessing the evils resulting from the inroads of these coolies, the people begin to realize that some measures must be taken to stop these evils. It is not just that the Government should levy a tariff to protect our manufacturers from the competition of foreign manufacturers, while they leave the workman to compete with the ruinous low wages of the Chinese.

The Democratic House of Representatives has already passed a joint resolution to modify the treaty now existing with China so as to restrict immigration, and it now remains to be seen whether the Republicans in the Senate will do. The Democratic party has always declared itself opposed to this immigration and is now the first to take action in this matter. To that party, then, must the people turn for the remedy they are seeking for this growing evil, which was inaugurated under Republican rule.

Our Member.
A late correspondent of the Seattle Tribune writes from Washington: "Judge Jacobs tells me that Mr. Lane, of Oregon, is a good friend to Washington Territory, and renders him all the assistance in his power to further our interests in Congress; that he is a very influential member, and that the people could not do better than to re-elect him." The efficiency of so young and inexperienced a member of Congress is almost without precedent; and if he improves during his second term (to which he is sure to be elected) in the same proportion he exhibits now, at the end of that time he will be treading the paths of statesmanship.

Resignation of Bristow.

Hon. B. H. Bristow, Secretary of the Treasury, has tendered his resignation to the President, which has been accepted. The telegraph assigns no reason for this act, but it has long been known that Bristow has been troublesome to Grant, as his presence in the Cabinet has interfered with many of the President's schemes, and his resignation is, therefore, a matter of no surprise. Grant has not yet made any nomination to succeed him, but he will doubtless fill this position with some man more suitable to his own purposes.

THE REPUBLICAN NOMINEES.

The Cincinnati Convention has met and adjourned, and the result of its labors has been a great disappointment to the Republicans of the nation. Rutherford B. Hayes, the nominee for President, is the present Governor of Ohio, and, it is said, is a politician of some note there, but outside of his own State he has never attained any prominence. He has never displayed any statesmanship, and in national politics is without experience. His nomination shows to what straights the Republican party were reduced when they deemed it necessary, in order to entertain any hopes of electing the next President, to nominate a man without any national record or reputation. Hayes' nomination has created no enthusiasm in the Republican ranks, but, on the contrary, many of the leading Republican papers in the nation cannot conceal their disappointment and chagrin at his success in the Convention.

W. A. Wheeler, who is the nominee of the Cincinnati Convention for Vice President, is a Congressman from New York, and is also without any great reputation as a statesman. He is a man of whom a large majority of the people of the nation never heard of, and, after November, will never hear of again. The Republican journals have but one recommendation for him and that is, that he is the author of the "Louisiana Compromise." Be that as it may, the prevailing opinion, even among leading Republicans, is that his name will add no strength to the ticket.

The ticket put forth by the Republicans at Cincinnati is certainly a very weak one, and already ensures the success of any staunch and true Democrats who may be nominated by the St. Louis Convention.

The Difference.

The Democratic party was in power nearly sixty years, and in all that time, says the Pittsburg Post, no cabinet officer ever resigned, confessing his corrupt practices, to avoid impeachment as Belknap did. No Minister, sent by a Democratic President, was called home disgraced and ruined, as Schenck has been. No Democratic President or Attorney-General ever interfered to shield public robbers as Grant and Pierpont have done. No Democratic Governor was ever driven from his place as was Adelbert Ames, the Governor of Mississippi; rather than incur the sure exposure of scandalous crimes, Ames resigned, and to be still more safe, left the State he had misgoverned. No shames like these were ever committed by the Democratic party, in its fair and honorable rule of sixty years. We might go on multiplying instances and giving illustrations indefinitely to show the contrast of seven years of Grantism with sixty years of Democratic rule. Forty committees of Congress are at work investigating the corrupt practices of the last seven years, and each committee has found from a score to a hundred or more of officials who are guilty of some grade of corruption, either bribe-taking or bribe-giving, blackmailing, embezzlement or some form of official robbery or malfeasance. Corruption has become epidemic among the Radical leaders, and all are more or less tainted and equally unfit to be trusted. Both the Radical party and the Radical policy must be stamped out of existence. It is folly to talk about retaining either the one or the other and inaugurating reform.

The Next Legislature.

The result of the election just passed is now known, and the fond hopes of the Republicans that they would have a majority in the Legislature have vanished. The Legislature will stand as follows: Senate—Democrats, 21; Republicans, 8; Independents, 1. House—Democrats, 31; Republicans, 25; Independents, 4. This will give the Democrats control of both branches of the Legislature over Republicans and Independents and a majority on joint ballot of 14.

State Elections Next Fall.

Before the next Presidential election, which will take place on the same day, November 7th, in all the thirty-seven States in the Union, seven of the States will hold elections for State officers. In September, Arkansas, Vermont and Maine hold elections. In October, Ohio, Indiana, West Virginia and Georgia hold elections. Pennsylvania, which formerly held her State election in October, now, like most of the States, holds it in November, along with that of Presidential electors.

Belknap's Trial Postponed.

Though the Senate has taken jurisdiction of the Belknap case, it is in no hurry to proceed to the trial. It is proposed to postpone further proceedings until November, on the ground that a trial now, which would last at least six weeks, would prolong the session till Fall. The most important point has been gained by the vote on jurisdiction, and no harm can come from a postponement of the trial till cooler weather. As to the result of the trial when it does occur, doubts are freely expressed, on the ground that the Senators who voted against jurisdiction may possibly give a verdict of "not guilty," without considering the evidence of guilt or innocence. This view of the case is not forcible. The Senate is sworn to try the accused, and has solemnly decided that the trial shall proceed. This would be but a farce if Senators were not to be bound by the evidence adduced.

How they Like Hayes' Nomination.

We publish the following from the Sacramento Record-Union, a leading Republican Journal of this coast, which shows how the nomination of the Cincinnati Convention are appreciated:

It is not encouraging to perceive that among those who are rejoicing over the work of the Cincinnati Convention the Southern Democrats are even more conspicuous than the Republicans. It is certain that no candidate was so heartily feared and hated by the rebel element as James G. Blaine, and that men like Hill and Procter, Knott and Tarbox are foremost among the throng that congratulates itself at his defeat. The wise men of Cincinnati may learn a lesson from this, even though it be too late to avail themselves of their new-bought experience; for it is hardly possible that the same nomination should at once be pleasing to both parties, and when Democrats make merry over a Republican choice, the fact bodes ill for the ensuing Republican campaign.

National Democratic Convention.

This body will convene in St. Louis on next Tuesday, June 27th, at which time and place the next President of the United States will be placed in nomination.

THE LOST CAUSE.

A MAGNIFICENT PICTURE 14x18 inches in size, printed on heavy plate paper, beautiful in design and artistic in execution. It represents a Confederate Soldier after the war returning to his home, which he finds lonely and desolate. In front of the ruined cottage, telling a sad tale of the miseries of war, are two grave with rude crosses, on one of which some friendly hand has hung a garland. To the right the calm river and the rising moon indicate peace and rest. The stars seen through the trees represent the Southern Cross. It is a picture that will touch every Southern heart and should find a place in every Southern home. Sent by mail mounted on a roller and post-paid on receipt of 25 cents, or 3 for 60 cents. Address, JOHN BURROUGH & CO., Pub's, BRISTOL, TENN.
