Office Hours.—From 7 a. m. to 7 p. m.; Sundays, 30 minutes after arrival of stages. Mail matter must be in on time or it will not go. MAX MULLER, P. M.

RELIGIOUS SERVICES.—Rev. J. R. N. Bell will hold divine services at the M. E. Church next Sunday morning and evening.

MISSION CLOSED.—The eight-days' mission at the Catholic Church closed Sunday last, a large attendance being present throughout. The efforts of Father Callan, the officiating minister, are highly spoken of by those who heard them. He returned to Yreka this week.

COUNTY STATISTICS.—E. D. Ford, Esq., our efficient County Clerk, furnishes us with the following statistics, taken from the Assessor's books: Number of horses and mules, 3,616; cattle, 10,172; sheep and goats, 27,414; swine, 11,768; acres of land, 175,912; improved land, 122,000 acres; unimproved, 53,912 acres.

JOINT DISCUSSION OPENED.—The joint canvass between Honorable L. F. Lane and Richard Williams, candidates for Congress, opened at Ashland on the 27th ult. Owing to the short notice given, only a fair crowd greeted the speakers. The Democrats were highly pleased over Mr. Lane's speech and think he got away with his opponent in fine style.

FOR SALEM.—There is a considerable rush to the State Fair from this section, and the attendance from Jackson county will be larger than ever before. C. W. Kahler, John Watson and J. C. McCully left for Salem Monday, and Gen. John E. Ross and daughter will leave in a day or two. Major W. F. Cornell also intends starting this week. Besides these, several have started heretofore.

DEMOCRATIC MEETING AT ASHLAND.—There was a good attendance present at the first regular meeting of the Ashland Tilden Reform Club, which took place last Monday evening. Stirring and interesting speeches were made by James R. Neil, Esq., followed by A. C. Jones, Esq., which were well received. The Democracy of Ashland is thoroughly united and aroused, and will give a good account of itself in November next.

THE CAMPAIGN IN JACKSON COUNTY.—In no other section of the State is there as much activity and spirit exhibited by either party as is manifested by the Democracy of old Jackson. In every portion of the county its members are fully alive to the importance of the coming election and intend giving Tilden, Hendricks and Lane a rousing majority. The meetings that have been held were in every instance attended by large and enthusiastic audiences. Advices from Josephine and Lake counties are also of an encouraging nature and a good report may be expected from them in November. Our brethren elsewhere may rely on these three counties giving the Democratic standard-bearers fully 350 majority, with a strong probability of it running up to 400 and over. If the Democracy throughout the State does as well as will be done here, Oregon will go largely for Tilden and Reform.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Lane stock away-up here.
Regular summer weather.
County Court is in session.
County scrip taken at par here.
W. C. Myer left for Salem this week.
Beautiful moonlight nights prevail.
Ashland has a Wheel'n Haler Club.
Miss Lizzie Dunn, of Ashland, is in town.

L. C. Coleman has returned from below.
Ashland has a minister who preaches on politics.
Alex. Martin returned from California yesterday.

Miss Ida Danforth has gone to Ashland to attend school.
Wm. A. Luse, of Coos Bay, passed through town Sunday.

Miss Isie McCully will soon open a variety store in town.
The Alden Fruit Dryer is about commencing operations.

Prof. J. B. Farley has taken charge of the Sterlingville school.
C. C. Beckman and son left last week on a trip to the Centennial.

L. N. Browning, of Grave creek, favored us with a call yesterday.
Matt. Shannon is now running the Excelsior blacksmith shop alone.

Jesse Applegate, our would-be Senator, passed through town last week.
A little child of Senator Green, of Josephine, died at Salem on the 22d ult.

Jack Montgomery arrived from Salem last week, bringing his child with him.
A bill has been introduced in the Legislature to redeem the Modoc War Bonds.

Several families from town went on an excursion to Chavner's new bridge last Sunday.
Frank Ennis, Superintendent of the English Company's mines at Galice creek, is in town.

Several friends of Hon. L. F. Lane serenaded him on the evening after the speaking here.
The School nine and a picked nine will play a friendly game of ball next Saturday afternoon.

John Bilger yesterday received a large and first-class supply of new goods. Call and see them.
Mrs. J. N. T. Miller, of this county, was elected as Cores of the State Grange at its session last week.

A. C. Jones, Esq., delivered an interesting speech to the Phoenix Democratic Club last Saturday evening.
Senator Herrin's bill for the relief of Jackson county to the amount of $568, overpaid State tax, has passed the Senate.

An impromptu party occurred at the Social Club Rooms on last Thursday evening, which was well attended and passed off pleasantly.
Dr. Holsclaw, of Kerbyville, favored us with a call this week. He is on his way home from Salem, where he has been for the past few weeks.

Mr. Witsall, an old resident of this section, died at Madame Holt's last Sunday, aged about 73 years. His illness was cancer in the stomach.
P. J. Ryan has favored us with a copy of the Indianapolis Sentinel, the leading Democratic paper of Indiana, which contains an able speech of Hon. J. B. Ryan, his brother.

County Clerk Foudray has had a number of official notices printed of the coming election—for three Presidential Electors and one Representative to Congress—which have been posted in conspicuous places in each precinct.
Hon. O. Jacobs, formerly of this place, has been renominated for Delegate to Congress by the Republicans of Washington Territory. If a Republican is to go, nothing would please us better than to see Mr. Jacobs elected, as he is certainly a worthy gentleman.

Wm. Kreutzer elsewhere announces that he is now prepared to fill orders for cakes of all kinds, rye and brown bread, crackers and ginger snaps. Fresh bread every day. Mr. Kreutzer is an experienced baker and is bound to give satisfaction. Read his advertisement.

The Salem Statesman has the following: "The remains of Ella, daughter of Hon. Warren Cranston, were brought by his brother, S. B. Cranston, from the Klamath Agency, and interred in the Odd Fellows' Cemetery, beside her mother, last week. Miss Cranston died at the Agency about a year ago, where she had been taken for her health."

THE JOINT DISCUSSION.

A large audience, including a number of ladies, assembled at the Court House last Thursday afternoon to hear the joint discussion between the Honorable Lafayette Lane and Richard Williams, Democratic and Republican candidates for Congress. Hon. Henry Klippel called the meeting to order and nominated Judge E. B. Watson as presiding officer, and he was unanimously elected.

MR. LANE

was then presented to the assembly and for an hour entertained his hearers with a masterly and eloquent review of the leading questions of the day and a severe arraignment of the Republican party. He made no appeal to the prejudices of the audience, but pleaded his case from the records and proved his assertions from the facts and figures contained therein. Mr. Lane commenced by paying a glowing tribute to the grand old Democratic party, (founded by Thomas Jefferson, the writer of the Declaration of Independence,) and of which his opponent was once an upholder instead of an opponent. He showed how the Republican party had always been a friend of the rich to the disparagement and detriment of the poor, and how its legislation had been to the benefit of the former class and against the latter. The iniquity of the Republican financial system he held up in its true light and demonstrated how the legislation of that party on this question had always been in the interest of the bond-holder and against the tax-payer. He very satisfactorily explained his vote on the repeal of the Resumption Act of 1875, which he denounced as a deception on the statute-book, placed there by the Republican party for the purpose of catching votes, without the least intention of ever fulfilling its provisions. He told how the number of office-holders had increased almost double under Grant's administration, without the least necessity for this extravagant increase; how the Democratic House of Representatives had been abused for reducing the number as much as they possibly were able to, while at the present time several hundreds were on a furlough to go home and vote the Republican ticket and labor in its behalf. He reviewed the B-iknap case and related how Grant had accepted that worthy's resignation with profound regret, thus furnishing the only excuse why the Republican Senate did not punish a felon convicted by his own confession. He declared there was not a department of Government that had been investigated by the Democratic House but in which great extravagance and fraud had been discovered; and one of the most disgraceful of these was the department of Secretary Robeson, who would certainly be impeached at the next session of Congress. He pointed out the fallacy of civil service reform by the Republicans, relating how efficient officials who dared to do right and would not be party to corruption were discharged. He related the fate of Bristow, Henderson, Dyer, Jewell, Yaryan and others who were discharged for their honesty and because they could not be corruptly used. He proved by the records that it cost more to repair a ship in the U. S. Navy-yards than to build a new one, and remarked it was strange that this repairing was always done about election time, when votes were wanted. He read from official testimony several Custom Houses where it took hundreds of dollars to collect $1—these offices being created to give place to political bunners. Mr. Lane expressed himself decidedly in favor of transferring the Indians to the War Department, where they could be more economically and better cared for. Our readers will doubtless remember his great speech in the House on this subject, in which he made a point on the celebrated "Sunset" Cox and received the highest encomiums of his colleagues and the press therefor. The tariff was the next question that came under his observance, and he illustrated how the present one (as is the case with almost all legislation of Republican origin) was in the interest of the rich manufacturer and against the consumer. Mr. Lane said that the House of Representatives would have reduced the appropriations $65,000,000 from the estimates of the various departments had it not been confronted by a Republican Senate, who bitterly opposed such reduction; but, after this strenuous opposition, the people were saved $30,000,000 by the determination of the House. He thoroughly explained his bill for the relief of the Oregon Central Military Road Co.,

which gave lieu lands for those claimed by them as being covered by the Klamath Reservation, providing their claim was just and proper. That it was recommended by Governors Grover and Irwin as well as by the petition of citizens of Lake county, who were desirous of avoiding trouble with the Indians, which was inevitable, should the Road company ask their dues. He expressed himself as being and having always been heartily in favor of free schools. He ably reviewed other questions of the day, as also the arguments of the Republican party in the present campaign. His speech was bristling with facts, complete in every particular, and well received by the audience, which was largely in his favor. When his time had expired, the Chairman introduced

MR. WILLIAMS,

Who proceeded to address the audience for the time allotted him. His speech was more of a defense of his party than anything else, full of sophistries and often approaching arrant demagogism. He floundered about in a manner most amusing to witness, sometimes going square back on an assertion he had made but a few minutes before. The manner in which he squirmed and attempted to evade his opponent's arguments showed plainly that the title of "Slippery Dick" was not misplaced. His harangue was almost entirely an appeal to the prejudices of his audience, and a fair sample of Republican argument in the campaign in progress. After excusing himself if he did not come up to the expectations of his hearers, the first break he made was to place himself squarely in favor of woman suffrage, which fact he has made more apparent by writing a square-toed confession of his "weakness" to the Woman Suffrage Convention in session at Salem last week. Admitting the mass of the charges of corruption against his party, made by Mr. Lane, he said that he was not responsible and could not be held to answer for them. He as much as said that he was running as Dick Williams, on Dick Williams' platform, and was responsible to none but Dick Williams himself. But he soon forgot himself and launched out on a vigorous endorsement of Grant's administration, which he held to be one of the purest and best in our history, even comparing it to that of the immortal Jackson. He made a sly attempt to corral the Independent vote, asserting that he represented that element in the last Republican State Convention, which will be refreshing news to the Federal brigade who manipulated that concern and who doubtless presumed that Richard was "sound on the goose." Doubtless at loss for something to say, he commenced a tirade on Gov. Grover, alleging that he violated the State Constitution by running the debt over its prescribed limit ($50,000), forgetting to add that Gibbs had contracted an indebtedness far exceeding that amount long before Mr. Grover thought of becoming Governor. But the manner in which he flaunted the "bloody shirt," that great Republican war-club, would have done credit to even Morton himself. It was in fact almost his sole argument against the Democracy. He labored long and hard to work up the old war prejudices, and was especially severe upon the ex-Confederates in the House for daring to assist in cutting down Governmental expenses and save the country from financial ruin. Like all Republican speakers, he pretended to be terribly afraid that there will be another civil war in case of Democratic success, yet at the same time they do everything to bring such an event about for the sake of being continued in power that they may carry on their corruption. But it will avail them but little. Intelligent people know better than to believe such blood and thunder stories. He forgot to tell, however, how this "Confederate" House had equalized bounties and pensions more satisfactorily than had ever been done before and how it had granted the widow of Gen. Custer a pension of $50 per month, which the Republican Senate cut down to $34. He dilated considerably on the respect at present entertained for our flag, but did not tell how Spain and other nations had insulted it without being called to answer for it by a cowardly Republican administration. It would have been vastly different in Jackson's time. He said much about Republicans reducing the public debt, but neglected to state that it ought to have been reduced hundreds of millions more had National affairs been conducted honestly and economically. He took particular pains to distort the record of Mr. Lane. Fortunately for him he cannot boast of having a record. He attempted to prove the Democracy a soft-money party, but that was a difficult and unsuccessful job. With his usual slyness he endeavored to get into the good graces of his hearers by announcing himself in favor of a land grant to assist in completing the railroad from Roseburg to Redding. That all sounds very nice here, but does any one suppose he will repeat it in Eugene City and other points in the Willamette? Not much! He will there be decidedly in favor of the Winnemucca Railroad, for to say at that place what he did here would lose him hundreds of votes. But one of his principal misstatements was when he declared that the Democratic House of Representatives had failed to find where a single dollar had been stolen. Anybody knows better than that. He certainly forgot that that body found several million dollars stolen through the Freedman's bank, Naval Department, District of Columbia frauds, and many other steals. He amused the assemblage with an eulogium of the Republican party, descending at length upon the merits it once possessed, but omitting a history of its manifold iniquities, which become more numerous and outrageous as it progresses. Having delivered himself of what he had to say he retired without consuming his time, and his opponent took the stand to close the discussion by a fifteen minutes' answer.

A storm of applause greeted Mr. Lane as he commenced his reply, which showed that the audience was with him. He, in the most cutting and thorough rejoinder it has been our fortune to hear, completely dispelled the principal arguments of his competitor, which not only cleared himself of the stigma Williams had attempted to cast on him but also placed that gentleman in the unenviable position of either being grievously ignorant of the facts or grossly mistaken in the premises. Mr. Lane's remarks were received with the greatest satisfaction and enthusiasm. It was plainly apparent that he is more than an equal for his wily opponent. When the meeting adjourned three rousing cheers were given for Lafayette Lane, our next Congressman, but not a chirp went up for poor Dick Williams.

The result of the meetings at Ashland and here are very gratifying to the Democracy. It is the unanimous opinion that their candidate gained votes by his visit here. A term in Congress has shown his ability and desire to do much for the State and especially Southern Oregon, and this section will remember him for the eminent services he has already rendered us by next November giving Lafayette Lane the largest majority ever given any candidate for official position.

BASE BALL GAME.—The School and picked nines played their second game of ball last Saturday afternoon, which was won by the former after a close and exciting contest. It was about the best game ever played in Southern Oregon and the score, of which the following is a copy, will compare favorably with that made by leading clubs of the State:

AUCTION.—The undersigned will offer at auction at their store in Jacksonville their entire stock of General Merchandise, consisting of dry goods, clothing, boots and shoes, groceries, hardware and many other articles too numerous to mention. Sale will commence on Saturday, September 2, 1876, and will be continued every Monday and Saturday following, until all is sold. The entire stock will positively be sold without reserve. Come everybody and secure bargains.

Those indebted to us are requested for the last time to come forward, pay up, and save expenses.

SACHS BROS.

TAKE NOTICE.—The Alden Fruit Company have levied another assessment of $10 per share on the capital stock, payable on or before October 20th. Any unpaid assessment will be collected at the expense of the delinquent. The company needs money to purchase fruit and pay for labor, and stockholders will see the necessity of being prompt in their payments.

SPEAKING AT BROWNSBOROUGH.—A large crowd was present at Brownsboro last Saturday to listen to the speeches of Hon. Henry Klippel and Wm. M. Colvig, Esq. The efforts of these gentlemen are well spoken of and elicited marked attention and much applause from the assembled audience.

It was amusing to see several of the Republicans in attendance on the discussion leave post-haste when their candidate had concluded. They evidently had enough of Mr. Lane and desired to hear none of his scathing reply.

SPECIAL MEETING.—The members of the Jacksonville Lodge No. 269, I. O. G. T., are requested to meet at Odd Fellows' Hall on Friday, Oct. 6th. By order of the W. C. T. ABE MENSOR, W. S.

SELLING OUT.—Ben Sachs is selling out his entire stock of goods at San Francisco cost. Here's a chance for bargains. Store fixtures for sale. Give him a call.
