

BREAKING COLTS.

Most people break colts in the spring of the year when they are coming three years old. Perhaps this is as good an age and time as any. After the crops are in farmers have about as much spare time as at any other season of the year, and colts can be handled and tamed so as to be used at light work on the farm and road, during the fore-part of the summer, and be ready for the heavier work of the harvest when additional horse help is generally needed. Before putting a colt into harness he should be made thoroughly halter and bridle wise, and should be well acquainted with and have perfect confidence in his master or whosoever may handle him. If he has not been brought up tame so that he can be handled without exciting his fear, then the first thing to do is to put him in a stable with good solid stalls, so that nothing will break or give way in his efforts to avoid you, and should be haltered with a good strong halter headstall and a rope that cannot break. When thus stabled and fastened, let him be groomed and handled two or three times a day till he will show no fears when handled and groomed on any part of the body. Let him be thoroughly taught for all time that there is no spot or place on him which may not be handled at any and all times without his flinching or objecting in any way. Let him be taught to give you his feet and allow you to thump and handle them with perfect familiarity as blacksmiths handle them when shoeing.

Then put a bridle on him with a bit wrapped with leather or cloth, and let him become familiar with that, then a collar, then a back-strap, surcingle, etc., thus adding one part of the harness after the other until he becomes familiar with each and every part of it. Teach him to lead by degrees, taking particular pains to have him follow the halter, and also to walk fearlessly by the side of his leader. When leading him out take pains to handle him as fully as when in the stable, being careful at all times to so keep the advantage of him that the idea of escape from you will not enter his head, and certainly that he will not attempt it. When he has become accustomed to the bit and to the several restraints you have placed upon him, the biting harness may be put upon him and his head checked up to the slightest degree for a little while at a time. This may be increased from day to day, being careful never to check him up so tight or allow the check to remain on so long at a time as to create so much uneasiness or weariness of the muscles as to make him bear down on the bit and sag his neck for rest. If you want your future horse to carry a good head without bearing down on the bit, be very particular about this point of his schooling. It takes time and patience, but a colt's cords and muscles cannot be changed in a day, and changed they must be before he will carry a proud head easily in the harness or under the saddle. Many important changes in cords and muscles must take place before the green colt can make the proud, educated horse, and these changes can only be brought about by degrees and with a plenty of time. From the beginning let the colt know your voice and teach him to understand you when you speak to him. There is nothing that a horse may be required to perform that he may not be made to do by merely telling him, if pains be taken in the beginning to teach him to give heed to the human voice. This point once fully gained over a colt, and you have more complete control over him in emergencies by the voice than in any other way. The biting harness should be used not a few times or a few days only, but a month or two at a time will not be too long for bringing about the changes necessary for a good carriage. When you have complete control over the colt and have taught him to hold his head and he can do it without tiring him, let him be taught to travel. Let the first gait be required to learn be a good square and fast walk. This may be taught him either alone or with another horse that has himself been well taught. Unless you have such a horse you had better teach the colt alone. While teaching him this gait he should be confined entirely to it and not be allowed to go faster. Months of daily practice may be required to develop the top of his speed on the walk, but the accomplishment will be worth the effort always. You have a good colt and want to make a valuable horse of him. A good colt well broken always makes a valuable horse, while however good the colt, if not well broken, he will never be of much value as a horse. When you have made him do his best as a walker, and got complete master of him at this gait, then teach him a good, square trot. Not fast at first, but get him into such a way of handling himself that he evinces pride and ease in going. Keep the two gaits so distinct that he will understand by your voice which you want him to do, and never allow him to do either carelessly or lazily. Let colts be broken on the principle of educating them and with the understanding that the horse has a sufficient degree of intelligence to be educated, and they will be of much more service and value to man.

"How many genders are there?" asked a school-master.
"Three, sir," promptly replied a little blue-eyed girl, "masculine, feminine, and neuter."
"Pray, give me an example of each," said the master.
"Why, you are masculine, because you are a man, and I am feminine, because I am a girl."
"Very well—proceed."
"I don't know," said the little girl, "but I reckon Mr. Jenkins is neuter, as he is an old bachelor."

Tonic.
Every one, at times, feels the necessity of some restorative of the vital powers, depressed by mental or bodily exhaustion. In such conditions, let every one, instead of flying to the alcoholic or medicinal stimulants, which must be followed by depression equal to their excitement, reinvigorate his system by the natural tonic elements of the PURITAN SYRUP. Sold by all druggists.

Unsettled Testimony.
FARMER, Mr. April 28, 1864.
Gentlemen—Seeing numerous certificates in the Mass Farmer endorsing the merits of the Great Lung Remedy, Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, I am induced to add to the great pleasure in giving publicity to the great cure it accomplished in my family in the year 1866. During the summer of that year my son, Henry A. Archer, now postmaster in this place, was attacked with spitting blood, cough, weakness of lungs, and general debility, so much so that our family physician declared him to have a "seated consumption." He was under medical treatment for a number of months, but received no benefit from it. At length, from the solicitation of himself and others, I was induced to purchase one bottle of Wistar's Balsam of Wild Cherry, which benefited him so much I obtained another, which in a short time restored him to his usual state of health. I can safely recommend this remedy to others in like condition, for it is, I think, all it purports to be. THE GREAT LUNG REMEDY FOR THE TIMES! The above statement, gentlemen, is my voluntary offering to you in favor of your Balsam, and is at your disposal. As ever, yours,
ANDREW ARCHER.

1,000,000 BOTTLES OF THE Centaur Liniments

have been sold the last year, and not one complaint has reached us that they have not done all that is claimed for them. Indeed, scientific skill cannot go beyond the result reached in these wonderful preparations. Added to Carbolic, Arnic, Mentha, Seneca-Oil and Witch-Hazel, are other ingredients, which make a family liniment that defies rivalry. Rheumatism, neuralgia, neuralgic pains, and many other ailments, which have been afflicted with Neuralgia, Sciatica, Caked Breasts, Weak Backs, &c., have found permanent relief.
Mr. Josiah Westlake, of Marysville, O., writes:
"For years my Rheumatism has been so bad that I have been unable to stir from the house. I have tried every remedy I could hear of. Finally, I learned of the Centaur Liniment. The first three bottles enabled me to walk without my crutches. I am mending rapidly. I think your Liniment simply a marvel."
This Liniment cures Burns and Scalds without a scar, extracts the poison from bites and stings, cures Chilblains and Frost-bites, and is very efficacious for Ear-ache, Itch and Cutaneous Eruptions.
THE CENTAUR LINIMENT, YELLOW WRAPPER, is intended for the tough fibres, cords and muscles of horses, mules, and animals.
Rev. Geo. W. Manokill, Scholastic Co., N. Y., says:
"My horse was lame for a year with a lock wrench. All remedies utterly failed to cure and I considered him worthless until I commenced to use Centaur Liniment, which rapidly cured him. I heartily recommend it."
It makes very little difference whether the case be a wrench, sprain, spavine, or lameness of any kind, the effects are the same. The great power of the Liniment is, however, shown in Poll-evel, Big-head, Sweeney, Spavin, Ring-bone, Galls and Scalds. This Liniment is worth millions of dollars ready to the Stock-growers, Livery-men, Farmers, and those having valuable animals to care for. We warrant its effects and refer to any Farrier who has ever used it.

CHILDREN

A complete substitute for Castor Oil, without its unpleasant taste or recoil in the throat. The result of 30 years' practice by Dr. Sam'l Pitcher, of Massachusetts. Pitcher's Castoria is particularly recommended for children. It destroys worms, assimilates the food, and allows natural sleep. Very efficacious in Croup and for children Teething. For Colds, Feverishness, Disorders of the Bowels, and Stomach Complaints, nothing is so effective. It is as pleasant to take as honey, costs but 35 Cents, and can be had of any Druggist. This is one of many testimonials:
"CORNWALL, LEHMAN CO., Pa., March 17, 1874.
"Dear Sir,—I have used your CASTORIA in my practice for some time. I take great pleasure in recommending it to the profession as a safe, reliable and agreeable medicine. It is particularly adapted to children where the repugnant taste of Castor Oil renders it so difficult to administer."
E. A. ENDERS, M. D.
Mothers who try Castoria will find that they can sleep nights and that their babies will be healthy.
