THE BANKRUPT LAW .- Bills have been introduced in Congress for the revision or repeal of the Bankrupt Law. A bankrupt law is an excellent provision for honest men who became involved in debts that they cannot pay, for by providing for a settlement with their creditors, they are frequently able to start into business anew, and by industry and economy rebuild their broken fortunes. But it has been found impossible to frame a law that cannot be circumvented by disbonest debtors to defraud their creditors. That this is extensively done is shown by Mr. John Fitch, Register in Bankruptcy, for New York City. He says: "It has become almost the universal practice in this city for merchants, knowing themselves to be insolvent and bankrupt, to purchase merchandise to a large amount, make fictitious debts to friends, and then execute a general assignment to some friend, who takes possession of the place and continues the business, while the assignee remains in the store, or place of business

country society which withered away to nothing under the dry rot of gossip only. Friendships, once firm as granite, dissolved to jelly, then ran away to water only because of this; love that promised a future as enduring and as stable as truth, evaporated into a morning mist that turned to day's long tears. only because of this; a father and a son were set foot to foot with the flery breath of an anger that would never cool again between them; and a husband and a young wife, each straining at the hated lash which in the beginning had been the promise of a Godblessed love, sat mournfully by the side of the grave where all their love and all their joy lay buried, and all because of this. I have seen faith transformed to mean doubt, joy give place to grim despair, and charity take on itself the features of black malevolence, and all because of the fell words of scaudal, and the magic mutterings of gossip. Great crimes work great wrong, and the deeper tragedies of human life spring from the larger passions; but woful and mournful are the uncatalogued tragedies that issue from gossip and detraction; most mournful the shipwreck often made of noble natures and lovely lives by bitter winds with flannel.

The old woman in the plaid shaw had come to the station, but Miss Redwood was not with her.

A young man had been with the old lady.

The old lady could not be traced after that, and nothing more was heard of Annie Redwood.

Many thought the old woman was some dreadful person in disguise, who had murdered Annie for the handsome watch and ring she wore.

The woods were searched, the ponds dragged, but in vain; and the poor girl was at last given up for lost.

The old people had been cruel to her about Thomas; now they shed bitter and unavailing tears. How much better it would have been to let Annie marry, and have her still with them. The old grandfathers shook hands for the first time in years. The families were reconciled; but Annie was gone.

SWINDLING LOTTERY DEVICES.-General Jubal Early, in a published letter, describes the method of cheating in lotteries. He says the usual method of cheating in single number lotteries is to issue tickets containing only 100 or 200 of the numbers in each thousand from the highest to the lowest-say from one to one hundred thousand-and to leave these numbers out of those placed in the wheel, so that however fairly the actual drawing is made the ticket-holder has no earthly chance, because the number representing his ticket has never gone into the wheel.

SILVER.-Dr. Linderman, the Diector of our mints, is enough of a silver man to believe that the fall in the price of silver during the past year is no argument against its use as money -indeed he thinks the main cause of its depreciation was the attempt not to use it as money. He gives the following as the cause of the fluctuations. ranking in importance in the order mentioned:

First, change from the silver to the gold standard in Germany and Scandinavia; second, use of a forced paper currency in Russia and Austria and other States; third, diminished demand for exports to India and China; fourth, the limitations placed on coinage of silver by countries of the double standard; fifth, increased population. Increase in production is the most insignificant of all.
