Bright Prospects.

Advices from every portion of the State are of the most encouraging character and denote that the Democratic ticket is constantly gaining ground. The Greenback fa^o is flattening out and is only referred to in terms of ridicule and contempt. Democrats realize the fact that they are only furthering the cause of Mitchell and the Republican party in going off after this strange god and are deserting the movement as rats do a sinking ship. The weakness of the Republican ticket is apparent to even its most bigoted partisans, which is not calculated to inspire them with a superabundance of enthusiasm and confidence. A signal victory is in store for us, and work—unceasing, substantial work—is only necessary to realize it in the fullest manner.

The Reason.

It crops out that the reason why Bro. Hare was incontinently euhred out of the nomination for Governor by Bishop Peebles was because he was a poor man and couldn't furnish the commodity so indispensable to a Republican campaign. Beek is known to have plenty of tin, and the empty honor of a nomination was doubtless showered upon him in great anticipation. We are not informed as to how he will stand squeezing; but they do say H. Smith was pressed out of $10,000 when he ran for Congress, and H. isn't easily squeezed either himself.

For Senator and Representatives.

The legislative nominees on the Democratic ticket are gentlemen that will do us honor in the place to which they aspire. Combining ability with experience, fully acquainted with our every want, it is one of the best delegations that was ever sent from Jackson or any other county in the State. As they will have a voice in the election for U. S. Senator, a very important event, Democrats especially should see that they are elected by an overwhelming majority.

A Modest candidate.

Rev. W. B. Carter, the Republican candidate for State Printer, in commenting on his nomination in his organ, the Corvallis Gazette, remarks: "Modesty forbids any eulogies of the candidate for State Printer." Considering that half his article on the nominees of the Conference was consumed in an obituary of himself, we are constrained to believe that Carterian modesty is of a very unique character.

The Bantling Shows its Head.

After long weeks' of incubation Mitchell's bantling is finally galvanized into life and its wail, weak and uncertain, is heard through the columns of Wednesday's Sentinel. There is no mistaking the parentage. It is there in all its pristine beauty—a very picture of the cause in which it was conceived. A column of doubt-wet-nurses have it in hand, but it is doubtful whether it will survive the morrow. It is badly afflicted with the Klippel fever and that is enough to founder it.

AN INTERESTING DIALOGUE.

Republican—"We are going to have a mass convention Saturday. Try and attend." Democrat—"What is the programme?" Rep—"Put out a ticket." Dem—"Do you expect to elect it?" Rep—"Well, no—yes—that is, part of it. We can't beat the Democratic party any other way. Besides we may be able to get one or two leading Democrats to accept—and—" Dem—"Suppose that would be the case. Would it not result in their certain defeat?" Rep—"Well, suppose it does. Hit can't hurt us, and we may by that means select one or two of our own men—especially the Senator and Representatives. Tell you the truth, we don't care a cent if we can get away with either the Senator or Representatives."

More Disclosures.

And now the world is startled by the sworn statement of S. B. McClain, Stearns' Secretary of State, confessing that great frauds were committed by Republicans in order to give Florida to Hayes. This disclosure is confirmed by Dennis, a co-conspirator in the great fraud. Hayes sought to reward the former by nominating him as Associate Justice for New Mexico, but the Senate refused to confirm him. The latter was made internal revenue agent for his work. Perhaps these confessions are too late to do any good. However, they serve to clinch what Democrats have always maintained and Republicans now admit, viz: that the vote of Florida was stolen from Mr. Tilden and surreptitiously appropriated by His Fraudulency. It is to be hoped that Mr. Tilden will recover that which justly belongs to him; but we entertain grave doubts as to this. Circumstances are against any action so equitable. The perpetration of this infamy ought to sink the perpetrators and the party that upheld them into an oblivion from which there is no resurrection. It is a dark blot upon the pages of our history that can never be effaced. Sweeping retribution can in a measure atone for it, but it must be speedy and unmistakable. Other States have thundered out their condemnation and now let Oregon place herself right upon the record. The opportunity is at hand and should not be lost.

A Weak Response.

The call for the mass meeting to-morrow, although industriously circulated for several weeks past, has met with a weak response indeed. Only 100 names are made public, but we are assured that 224 more appear on the list—a very mythical proposition. Upon scanning the list we find the names of those who have been signing like petitions for several years past monopolizing it. Very few Democrats and Greenbackers have endorsed it, and the majority of these have done so under a misapprehension of facts. Upon what flimsy pretexts this meeting is called is plainly expressed. No laudable object is advanced—an open and legitimate fight shunned. War is declared upon a single individual, a member of the Democratic party and nothing more. A movement with such principles can never triumph before an intelligent community. The people of Jackson county have no personal animosities to gratify and will not be made parties to such a contemptible matter.

A Disinterested Comment.

The Lewiston Teller, an independent paper published at Mr. Thayer's former home, gives him the following notice: "The Democratic State Convention of Oregon has unanimously placed in nomination for Governor, W. W. Thayer, Esq., a lawyer now practicing in Portland. Mr. Thayer was for several years a successful lawyer practicing in Lewiston, I. T. We know that his advent with the Oregon has won for him the confidence every true citizen is entitled to, and we believe he will make as upright a Governor as the Democrats could have selected, in case they can elect him."

A Nice Little Game.

The Oregonian and the Republican candidate for Governor are running a little mutual admiration society. Beekman's private secretary writes Scott a flattering epistle enclosing a complimentary notice of the anxious candidate, and the latter responds by giving it space in his columns. A nice little game. "You tickle me and I'll tickle you."

Democrats Beware.

Democrats should consider the facts ere they roam after this strange Greenback god. Their defection can alone result in rendering Republican success more certain. It is an indisputable fact that the Greenbackers have no possible chance of carrying a solitary county in the State, and it seems passing strange that anyone who has heretofore been a Democrat should desert his party when it is evident it favors many of the prime objects this new organization claims to have in view and which the Democracy alone can accomplish. The common enemy, the Republican party, which at Salem the other day evinced that it was more firmly wedded to the monied oligarchy than ever, expects to carry the State through the efforts of the Greenbackers, who are supposed to derive their main strength from Democratic ranks. Facts go to show that Mitchell and his confederates are employing unscrupulous parties to canvass Democratic counties in the interests of the Greenbackers, and attempt to distract our strength there. Developments made in Jackson county prove this beyond peradventure. This being so manifestly the case, Democrats should beware of the results. It is not only a matter of local importance, but affects us every way—county, State and National. Our county and State platforms are ample guarantees that the Democracy is sound on the main question, and through it alone can relief come.

"Things have Changed About the Place."

The partisans of Mr. Beekman claim great financial acumen for their favorite and loudly announce that he will lift the State indebtedness now existing. Do we understand them as inferring that he will sacrifice his private fortune in the endeavor? In the matter of wealth alone has he any advantage of his Democratic competitor, against whom no odious comparisons can be made. And, unless Mr. Beekman has suddenly changed base to suit the occasion, the extinguishing of the State debt will be quite unpopular even with him. It has never been a secret here that he always favored a county indebtedness, and why should not this be the case in the present instance? We are not inclined to charge Mr. Beekman with such inconsistency, nor do we infer that he is a political weather-cock, ready to be swayed by every popular breeze. His apologists are anxious to have it appear that this is the case, however.

An Excellent Ticket.

For the first time in years the Democracy of Douglas county is united and entertains a reasonable hope of carrying the day. A splendid ticket has been put in the field and good work is being done in its behalf. The nominees for Representatives are men of character and ability, while F. P. Hogan for Sheriff, T. R. Sheridan for Clerk and W. T. Wright for Treasurer, are candidates calculated to win at any time. The balance of the ticket is also made up of good material. We congratulate our neighbors upon the excellent prospects of success in view.

Music in the Air.

The editor of the Baker City Democrat threatens to expose H. H. in the following unequivocal Anglo-Saxon: "Of the hypocritical Christian editor, Hines, we will have something to say in the future, and here we wish it distinctly understood that any and every charge we may make against him we have undeniable proof to back our charges. He is one of the worst men in our State, and if he had his just deserts he would be working for the people of our State in a criminal capacity, instead of being a candidate on the Republican ticket for Congress. We know his history, and at the proper time shall give it to the public in broken doses."

Spare Us.

The Salem Statesman graciously announces that it will ere long open its snout-mill upon the Democratic candidates. If that journal intimates that it has not as yet commenced besliming those gentlemen in a disgusting manner, then the promised stench will in deed become insufferable and is a nuisance that should be abated. The Statesman is inclined to proclaim that it is too unscrupulous for nothing.

Kicked About.

The Republican ticket is receiving many rebuffs at the hands of its own partisans. Neither the Mitchell or Corbett wings are inclined to claim it, and it knocks about like a ship at sea without a rudder. There seems to be a greater desire to capture the Legislature, for which the State ticket will be extensively traded for.

Endorses It.

The Salem Record, a Greenback paper of no mean pretensions, is highly pleased with the excellent platform and ticket presented by the Democracy, and speaks in glowing terms thereof. Even Republicans are prone to admit that the calibre of our nominees is first-class.

Remember Him.

The people of Lake county have a tender but peculiar regard for the Republican candidate for Governor. His solicitude for their land interests and his visit there last Summer are matters that are not forgotten, and the settlers will show their appreciation of him at the proper time. We already hear of several that are going to vote for him—to stay at home. And this don't refer to Democrats either.

The Platforms.

On our first page will be found the platforms adopted by the recent Democratic and Republican conventions. We ask a thorough and unprejudiced comparison as between the two, and especially ask the bone and sinew of the country to consider them well. Those inclined to greenbacks also should not fail to peruse them.

Quite Indifferent.

The Oregonian, the leading and most dignified Republican journal in the State, is quite weak on the ticket put forth by the Salem Conference. It is noticeable that an indifference and lack of enthusiasm pervades the Republican party, which does not augur well for the prospects of its ticket.
