GOOD NIGHT.

Good night! Now the weary rest by night, And the busy fingers bending, Over work that seems unending, Toil no more till morning light— Good night!

Go to rest! Close the eyes with slumber pressed; In the streets the silence growing, Wakes but to the watch-horn blowing, Night makes only one request— Go to rest!

Slumber sweet! Blessed dreams each dreamer greet, He whom love has kept from sleeping, In sweet dreams now'er him creeping, May he his beloved meet— Slumber sweet!

Good night! Slumber till the morning light, Slumber till the new to-morrow Comes and brings its own new sorrow. We are in the Father's sight— Good night!

—From the German of Theodore Korner.

John B. Gongh, in a lecture in England on the effect of alcohol upon the human system, remarked that in his opinion it was "very much like sitting down on a hornet's nest—stimulating, but not nourishing."

If there is anything despicable it is the man who always argues with you. It looks to him just like a camel, or a weasel, or a whale, if you only insist upon it. This leads a modern philosopher to remark that sometimes two people think very much alike, especially the weaker minded one.

A little boy hearing some one remark that nothing was quicker than thought, said: "I know something that is quicker than thought."

"What is it, Johnny?" asked his pa. "Whistling," said Johnny. "When I was in school yesterday, I whistled before I thought, and got licked for it, too."

The Salt Lake "Herald" is informed that the grasshoppers in that region are attacked by a deadly enemy, whose sting is death. On Provo beach the grasshoppers are dying by the bushel. A well-known London physician, calling on a lady the other evening, found her busily engaged reading "Twelfth Night." "When Shakespeare wrote about patience on a monument, did he mean doctors' patients?" remarked the Sawbones, trying to be clever. "No," answered the fair one; "you don't find them on monuments, but under them."

Persons desirous of procuring a copy of the catalogue can do so by addressing Head Master J. W. Hill.

BANGED HAIR.—The present excellent English Queen is eminently sensible in her domestic relations. She cannot endure the modern ridiculous habit of woman wearing a long fringe of hair across the forehead. An English exchange says that her Majesty sent special instructions to the bridesmaids at the late wedding of her son, the Duke of Connaught, that they would not be permitted to wear their hair ringed or high heels to their boots, nor to tie their dresses back in the most uncomfortable and indecate fashion. Victoria deserves the thanks of every intelligent mother in the land. The same paper says: "Last year one lady appeared at a drawing-room with her hair over her eyes. The next day she received a message from the lord Chamberlain informing her that until her hair had grown she would not be required to attend any more drawing rooms."

Advertisements will be inserted in the Times at the following rates: One square, one insertion, $3.00; each subsequent one, $1.00. Legal notices inserted reasonably. COUNTY WARRANTS always taken at par.

FARMING THAT DON'T PAY.

Whether there are many kinds of farming that pay may be an open question; but that there are very many farm practices that don't pay is beyond a doubt. It don't pay to be caught in Winter time of the year without a woodpile large enough to last twelve months; or to open the gates and let your stock into the fields as soon as a few late frosts appear; or to keep it on short rations, so when it does go to grass two months later it will take half the summer to get it thrifty and strong.

It don't pay to leave the work of mending your tools and selecting and securing your seed until the day you want to use it, thereby causing costly delay.

It don't pay to plant or sow poor seed because you happen to have it on hand.

It don't pay to plant more ground than you can manure and take care of.

It don't pay to leave weak places in the fences in hope that the cattle won't find them, and if you keep sheep it won't pay to let them at large in the spring, until they become tramps and cannot be kept at home by any ordinary fence.

It don't pay to neglect cows, ewes or sows when they are dropping their young.

It don't pay to let the spring rains wash the value out of the manure that has accumulated in the barnyard last Winter.

It don't pay to let the hens lay under the barn, steal their nests and be eaten up by skuks.

It don't pay to work with poor tools of any kind.

It don't pay to put off any kind of spring work until the last moment, nor does it pay to work land when it is too wet.

It don't pay to leave turnips, cabbage, beets or even apples in the cellar to rot and breed disease, for if you have more than you can eat or sell, the stock will profit by them.

It don't pay to summer a poor cow simply because no one comes to buy her.

It don't pay to sell a heifer calf from your best cow to the butcher simply because it will cost more to raise it than you can buy a scrub for next fall.

It don't pay to be stingy in sowing grass-seed, or to try to live without a garden.

Finally, it don't pay to provoke the women by leaving them to cut the stove-wood or to carry it in from the dooryard, or to remind you every morning in haying and hoeing that you saw enough before you go to work to last through the day.

WARNING TO LAND CLAIMANTS.

During the recent term of the district court at Walla Walla, J. M. Logsdon was tried and found guilty on an indictment charging him with the crime of perjury. The crime was committed when Logsdon proved up his homestead claim. The evidence taken in the Land Office shows that Logsdon had fully complied with the homestead law in the matter of residence, while from the testimony given at the trial the jury found that he had not done so. He had built a small house on the homestead in which he and his family had occasionally slept, while they had been out home; but the time on adjoining railroad land. It has been a too common practice for men to swear each other through the Land Office. The fate of Mr. Logsdon should prove a warning to all. We have no idea that Mr. Logsdon thought he was doing a legal or moral wrong, but he was misled by the current idea that swearing in land matters was a mere matter of form, without substance. The homestead and pre-emption laws, particularly the latter, are too generally drawn that it is hitherto been comparatively easy to evade them. Lately the Department has prepared a system of blanks for making proof under these laws, which will do much to prevent land grabbing and false swearing.—Walla Walla Union.

AN INQUIRY ANSWERED.—Mabel Clara writes us, says the Burlington Hawkeye, the following, fluttering inquiry: "Are you the author of that tender little ballad, 'Darling, Kiss My Eyelids Down?'" We? We write such stuff as that? "Kiss our eyelids down!" Mabel, thou art beside thyself; much reading hath made thee mad. "Darling, kiss our eyelids down!" Now, isn't that a nice thing to accuse us of saying? Mabel, don't you trouble our eyelids when you have a fancy to perform any operation of that delicate and tender nature. We have a large comfortable, roomy, flexible gash just below our nose that has bought county rights for all business of that nature that comes within the limits of our face, and any eyelid found interfering or infringing will be prosecuted to the extreme limit of the law. No, we didn't write it.

On May 21 Harmon P. Peep leaped from the new suspension bridge at Niagara Falls, a distance of 192 feet. He sank about 11 feet in the water and was then carried about 50 feet by the under-current before he came to the surface, when he was taken into a boat and conveyed safely ashore. The time of descent was three seconds and three-quarters. The next highest jump on record is that of Sam Patch at Niagara Falls, which was 142 feet, in 1829.
