SOUNDS FROM THE CAMPAIGN.

329.

Bob Ingersoll says: "The Republican party has gone to hell."

Garfield voted for the salary-grab and against the arrears of pension.

Under the new constitution of Colorado that State will not hold an election until the 2d of November.

The extreme North and the extreme South greet each other with the true fervor that belongs to patriotism.

Unlike Garfield, Geo. H. Williams couldn't get the U. S. Senate to believe that his $1,600 landaulet was a "loan!"

And all their lies about a "Solid South," and "payment of rebel claims," and "rebel Brigadiers" went for naught in Maine.

The New York "Herald" has thoroughly canvassed Pennsylvania, and thinks Hancock's chances of carrying it are equal to Garfield's.

The action of the Germans in declaring for Hancock causes consternation to the Republicans. It means that Ohio is lost to Garfield.

Mr. Tilden was elected without Maine. General Hancock has Maine as a starter. This shows 1880 will be like 1876, only more so.

The "Mercury" alleges that the gentle "Flaxbrake" lugged $30,000 in greenbacks to Oregon, to be put where it will do the most good.

A new reason why General Garfield should be elected has been discovered by a campaign orator in Florida. It is that "he begun life as a boy."

The official returns from Vermont show an increase of both the Republican and Democratic vote, and the Garfieldlers haven't anything to crow over.

We don't blame the Republicans for failing to be enthusiastic over Garfield. What honest man could be over a candidate with such a record as Garfield's?

The only instance on record of a citizen being a witness, an attorney and a juryman in the same case, is that of James A. Garfield in the Presidential steal.

G. Shaw, a colored man, who has been speaking for the Democrats in Indiana, reports that there is no doubt of a Republican colonization of negroes in Indiana.

If the leaders of the Republican party can trust Longstreet, Mosby and Key in office, how does it come they are afraid of Hancock? Isn't that a sweet specimen of consistency.

Four men have come to the front in Maine, and have made affidavit that they voted the Republican ticket for pay, the consideration being $10. The postmaster at Augusta did it.

Interrupted by an impertinent negro at Duquoin, Ill., Lyman Trumbull, Democratic candidate for Governor, replied: "I drafted the constitutional amendment that made you free."

Garfield must ever stand before this country in an infamous light, as the chief conspirator in the greatest fraud and most appalling crime ever perpetrated on the people of this great republic.

William Massey, a millionaire ale brewer of Philadelphia, and a member of the Union League, declines to serve on the Union League Garfield Campaign Committee, and declares for Hancock.

A call for a meeting of Irish Republicans in Portland was responded to by four Irishmen, and some of them were Americans by birth. The Republican party is not one for our Irish citizens, and none appreciate this fact more than they.

Dr. Talbot, a Greenbacker in Missouri, was assassinated recently, and our sanguinary cotem. knows that a Confederate brigadier did it. He has evidently missed his calling. He ought to be sent down South to grind the Republican outrage mill.

John W. Forney writes to William H. English, the Democratic candidate for Vice-President, that the accessions to Hancock and English are so numerous, the evidence of the break in the old line so strong, that he shall not be surprised if Pennsylvania is carried for the Democratic candidates.

We move forward, not backward. If I were President, I would veto all legislation which might come before me providing for the payment of claims of any kind for losses or damages by persons who were in rebellion, whether pardoned or not.—[General Hancock to Mr. Cook of Cincinnati, Sept. 20, 1880.

Ex-Senator Mitchell, who thought to maintain a studious silence regarding Garfield and Arthur, was forced into a vigorous defense of them before he had left Jackson county. He was compelled to admit the existence of grave charges against them and devoted much time in attempting to explain them away.

Moreover, every man who has watched the course of Congress under Republican and Democratic control knows that the Democrats are, as a party, far more economical of the people's money than their opponents. The lobby, formerly so powerful and corrupting in Washington, has absolutely disappeared since the Democrats took control of the House.—[N. Y. Herald, Ind.

THE most aristocratic hotel on this coast is Madame Holt's, at Jacksonville, the charges to the Presidential party being only about $15 a day to each person. The highest price at the Palace in San Francisco, for the bridal chambers of the greatest magnificence, is only $6 per day. The high-toned cods, who boast of paying high prices, will certainly all go to Jacksonville to board, in preference to stopping at such cheap houses as the Palace in San Francisco.—[Yreka Journal.

A NEW WONDER has come to light—an old hen in Kubli's coal shed trying to hatch out a nest of charcoals.—[Sentinel.

The efforts of the aforesaid hen is only equaled by the sorry attempts of our fussy cotem. to hatch out a suitable excuse for the ignominious failure of those having the Hayes reception in charge from a nest of misrepresentations. That's the only difference between him and that hen, if she will allow the comparison.

THE GREAT HANCOCK REPUBLICAN MEETING IN NEW YORK.

INDEPENDENT REPUBLICANS ARRAYING THEMSELVES UNDER THE GENERAL'S BANNER.

A meeting of a curious and significant character was held recently at Chickering Hall, New York. There were fully two thousand people present, several hundred of whom were ladies of stylish and intelligent appearance. The fact appeared that it was a gathering of Republicans who came together to indorse Hancock and to raise the wildest kind of applause at every mention of his name. They out-heroded Herod, and threw dyed-in-the-wood Democrats entirely in the shade by their enthusiasm for the Democratic candidates. According to the card the meeting was called by the "National Association of Conservative Republican and Independent Voters," and the response must have been gratifying to the managers. At eight o'clock there entered on the stage Mr. Leonard Jerome, accompanied by the orator of the evening, Mr. John W. Forney, of Philadelphia, and followed by Colonel H. H. Hadley, General George P. Este, T. B. Wakeman, General P. H. Jones, Colonel E. M. Lee General H. G. Worthington, Paul S. Forbes, Samuel S. Patterson, John T. Green, George H. Mitchell, Colonel Rankie, of Philadelphia, and other Republicans. Colonel Forney took a seat on the right of the chairman, Mr. Leonard Jerome, and was greeted with several rounds of applause.

Mr. Leonard Jerome presently came forward amid applause, and made a brief off-hand, but most effective speech. He said he was proud and happy to meet so many Republicans who, like himself, intended to vote the Democratic ticket. "We belong," said he, "to the independent order of Republicans, and we expect to ask no favor from any party. If there ever is to be a time when the trammels of party shall be unloosed, and the independent voter pause to look about and vote for the man of his choice, that time is now. The country was never more prosperous. There is no alarming question at stake. We are at peace with all the world, and we ought to be at peace with ourselves (applause,) and we should have been at peace with ourselves, but that the Republican leaders, to keep themselves in office, have declared that the civil war shall be perpetuated. The whole foundation of the Republican policy since the close of the war has been simply to perpetuate the party in power. They have had no other thought, no other principle of action. It is all right for a party to do so if it is done by fair means; but when it does so by ways that are dark, it is time for quiet men to step aside. We don't like the Southern policy of the Republicans. We don't like their financial nor their tariff policy, nor their way of carrying out civil service reform, and, last of all, do we like Mr. Garfield. (Applause.) We want a tariff for revenue. We want to see our ships afloat again upon the ocean, and we would like to see 15,000 tax-gatherers who are kept in place to sustain the Republican party swept off the face of the land.

PATRIOT, STATESMAN AND GENTLEMAN.

In General Hancock—(great applause)—we find not only the gallant soldier, patriot and statesman, but a gentleman, and I confess I would like to be so like Washington as Hancock, in the White House.

Col. Forney on coming forward was received with long continued applause. He said that he was happily in the belief that he was addressing a perfectly impartial and patriotic audience. He believed this was a gathering of free lances. For his part he was born a Democrat, and after spending twenty-two years of service in the Republican party he had come back home to the Democratic party, and every moment's experience convinced him that he was welcomed there. He did not come back alone, but with a whole army behind him. He found the strange mysterious evangelism pervading every section of the country. However, the Republicans might count and bribe and cajole, the fates had decided that General Hancock would be the next President of the United States.

FASHION NOTES.

Very small bonnets worn on the back of the head are again in vogue.

Laces embroidered with metals will be among the imported fall novelties.

Buttons on boots worn with fancy costumes match those on the suit.

Petticoats are made wider to fill the fuller skirts of the dresses now worn.

Cords will play an important part in the trimmings of dresses and wraps this fall.

It is again fashionable to wear the hair in coils, in which strings of pearls are twisted.

Evening dresses are worn at the moment in Paris with high necks and short sleeves.

Ladies who have gray hair do not conceal it, using neither dyes, pomatum or caps.

New reticules to match dresses are richly trimmed with gathered lace, cords and tassels.

Natural or very fine artificial flowers are worn in the hair to match those worn in the corsage.

Smooth coiffures and flat waves, bangs, and creve cœur locks are the rule in hair dressing.

Among Parisian caprices are large double collars on many dresses prepared for early fall wear.

Dresses made with cretonnes, with large figures, in other words, curtain calicoes, are again in vogue.

Fancy reticules, worn at the elbow, are decorated with all kinds of metallic and enamel insects and reptiles.

The walking costume which will be most in favor for the autumn is made of soft cloth, with a short skirt pleated perpendicularly, and a short redingote, resembling a man's cutaway coat, of the same cloth. The opening formed by the reverse is filled with a chemisette of fine linen, pleated and closed with three gold buttons. Standing collar and dark cravat. In the side pocket is a handkerchief, without lace, it should be understood, but finely embroidered. Boots of very fine kid, and felt hat with long plumes.

The finest stock of visiting cards ever brought to Oregon—gilt-edged, bevel-edged, plain white, snow-flake, chromo, etc.—has just been received at the TIMES office.

PROSPERITY THE RESULT OF DEMOCRATIC LEGISLATION.

Facts cannot be denied. There is abundant evidence of prosperity on every hand in this goodly land of ours. It appears to be here to stay, but has not come for any causes assigned by radical orators and the press of that party. No sectional party is competent to legislate for the wants of the people of the whole country. A sectional party like the Republican party is too full of sectional hate and hidebound in sectional animosities to provide measures of relief or inaugurate prosperous times for all portions of our country. It is simply beyond the power of such a party to secure prosperity to the industries of a great people. The legitimate sphere of the sectional radical Republican party is in the realm of discord, hate and malice, and where evil passions and a spirit of detestation are jointly sought to be engendered and exhibited toward a portion of our common country. With such a party in power the material business interests of the people are overlooked and neglected. During the twenty years of radical rule no great measure for the relief of the depressed industries of the people has been proposed by that hateful faction. Their leaders in Congress have been too much, too deeply, absorbed in DeGolyer pavement rascalities, Credit Mobilier frauds and other similar impositions upon the people while that party controlled both Houses of Congress and the legislation at Washington. Still, in spite of all these serious drawbacks and hindrances to it by the Republican party, prosperity is here. What has induced its presence? We answer, Democratic ascendency in Congress. Nothing else. Four years ago the Democratic party came in possession of the lower House of the people's representatives at Washington. Then, for the first time, after many years of radical misrule, capitalists and business men all over the Union, knowing the conservative and steady character of Democratic legislation, felt a return of business confidence. Investments were made, from which large profits have been realized. An impetus heretofore unknown was given to manufactures. Work became abundant and wages good.

Two years since the Democracy regained power in the United States Senate and ever since have held undisputed sway in both branches of Congress. Confidence in commercial circles is fully restored. Hard times have disappeared. The people are happy, contented and prosperous. All through Democratic ascendency in Congress. Towards securing this prosperity the Republican radical faction can lay no claim. It was brought about by the strong unshaken confidence the business men of all sections repose in the Democratic party. Good times are the legitimate fruits of Democratic rule in the national halls of legislation at Washington. Still better will be the condition of the American people when after the fourth of March next the Executive chair is filled by President Hancock.

THE PARTY WHICH SAVED THE UNION.—In a speech at Bellville, Illinois, ex-Senator Lyman Trumbull, candidate for Governor on the Democratic ticket, in relation to the Republican claim that that party won the battles of the Union, remarked: "But I have not done with this false claim of the Republican party. I propose to day to bury it so deep with facts and figures that only the dupes of demagogues can longer be beguiled by it. The Democratic State of Missouri alone, in which Mr. Lincoln received but 17,028 votes in 1860, furnished 109,111 men to the Union army—a greater number than was furnished by all the Republican States of Vermont, Rhode Island, Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas put together. Neither Michigan, Wisconsin or Iowa furnished as many troops to the Union as Missouri. John A. Dix and Daniel S. Dickinson, of New York, Lewis Cass of Michigan, and Stephen A. Douglas, of this State, all life-long Democrats and leaders of the party, the moment Fort Sumter was fired upon, came out in public speeches for the Union."

Following up this representation of the facts in the case, ex-Senator Trumbull made this strong point: In 1860 Mr. Lincoln received a total vote of 1,866,322 and there were enlisted during the war 2,678,967 volunteers. If the Republicans alone suppressed the rebellion, somebody ought to explain how 1,866,322 voters could furnish 2,679,967 men of military age.

PACIFICATION.—The sentiment of Senator David Davis of Illinois, given in last number of the Democrat, should be made the watchword of the campaign. There can be no lasting harmony between the sections of our Union until the partisan issues that have been fanned into flames by the Radical leaders for the past twelve years, are buried. Let us have peace, not that gained by muzzling the press, and enforced at the point of the bayonet, but a lasting harmony that will restore all sections of our Nation in one common bond, united by a common interest. Elect Winfield Scott Hancock, and we will have peace. Peace! Let the breezes whisper it to the pines of Maine, and waft its soothing sound over the fertile plains of the northwest, over the prairies of Illinois and the savannahs of the South, over the rugged peaks of the Rocky Mountains, and murmur its sweet and hallowed music among the forests of our own Sierras. Take up the glad anthem and let it ring from every hillside and every valley, 'till the ides of November come, that shall usher in the year of jubilee. Then shall the era of peace begin, and the glad, patriotic shouts of our prosperous and happy people resound through the land.

HANCOCK REPUBLICANS.—An immense meeting was held in Pittsburg on Saturday night, Sept. 18th, of men who had formerly been Republicans, but who now support Hancock & English. There was a grand torchlight procession, and fully four thousand persons were present. The meeting was presided over by Hon. M. Swartzwelder, a former Republican and one of the ablest speakers in Pennsylvania. There were one hundred Vice Presidents, all of whom had been Republicans, and all the speakers, Gen. Butler, Gen. A. L. Pearson, and Col. John W. Forney, were prominent and able Republicans. The speech delivered by Gen. Butler was able and effective.
