THE NEWSPAPER BUSINESS .- We suppose that many people think that newspapers publishers are persistent duns; out let a farmer place himself in a similar business position and see if he would not do the same. Supposed he raised one thousand bushels of wheat, and his neighber should come and buy a bushel, and the price was only a small matter of only two dollars or less. The neighbor says, "I will hand you the money in a few days." As the farmer did not want to be small about the matter, he says all right, and the man leaves with the wheat. Another comes in the same way until the whole of the wheat is trusted out to one thousand different persons, and not one of the purchasers concerns himself about it, for it is a small amount he owes the farmer, and of course that would not help him any. He does not realize that the farmer has frittered away all his large crop of wheat, and that its value is due him in a thousand little driblets, and that he is seriously embarassed in his business because his debtors treat it as a little matter. But if all would pay promptly, which they could do as well as not, it would be a very large amount to the farmer and enable him to carry on his business without difficulty. The above comparison is too true of the difficulties newspaper men have to contend with.
