MEDICAL.

BABY HUMORS

And all Skin and Scalp Diseases Speedily Cured By Cuticura.

Our little son will be four years of age on the 25th inst. In May, 1885, he was attacked with a very painful breaking out of the skin. We called in a physician who treated him for about four weeks. The child received little or no good from the treatment, as the breaking out, supposed by the physician to be hives in an aggravated form, became larger in blotches and more and more distressing. We were frequently obliged to get up in the night and rub him with soda in water, strong liniments, etc. Finally, we had attended to cure him, all alike failing, and the child steadily getting worse and worse, until about the 20th of last July, when we began to give him Cuticura Resolvent internally, and the Cuticura, and Cuticura Soap externally, and by the last of August he was so nearly well that we gave him only one dose of the resolvent about every second day for about ten days longer, and he has never been troubled since with the horrible malady. In all we used less than one-half of a bottle of Cuticura Resolvent, a little less than one box of Cuticura, and only one cake of Cuticura Soap.

SCROFULOUS HUMORS.

Last spring I was very sick, being covered with some kind of scrofula. The doctors could not help me. I was advised to try the Cuticura Resolvent. I did so, and in a day I grew better and better, until I am as well as ever. I thank you for it very much, and would like to have it told to the public.

SKIN DISEASE CURED.

Mr. Frank McCusky says that your Cuticura Remedies cured his boy of a skin disease after several doctors had failed to help the boy. He spent over one hundred dollars with doctors. Cuticura cleared me cured him.

A WORD ABOUT CATARRH.

"It is the mucous membrane, that wonderful semi-fluid envelope surrounding the delicate tissues of the air and food passages, that Catarrh makes its stronghold. Once established, it eats into these vitals, and renders life but a long, drawn breath of misery and disease, dulling the sense of hearing, enfeebling the power of speech, destroying the faculty of smell, tainting the breath, and killing the refined pleasures of taste. Insidiously, by creeping on from a simple cold in the head, it assaults the membranous lining and envelopes the bones, setting them and the delicate coats and causing inflammation, sloughing and death. Nothing short of total eradication will secure health to the patient, and all alleviative agents simply procrastinate sufferings, leading to a fatal termination." Sanford's Radical Cure, by Inhalation and by Internal administration, has proved itself, in all cases in which the disease has made fruitful inroads on delicate constitutions, bearing, small and large, to have been completely and thoroughly driven out.

Sanford's Radical Cure consists of one bottle of the Radical Cure, one box Catarrhal Solvent, and one improved Inhaler, neatly arranged in one package, with full directions. Price $1.

RAILROAD ITEMS.

The depot for the new station at Agers, is all in readiness to be forwarded as soon as the carpenters can be spared from other work on the road. It will be about the size of the Hornbrook depot, and will be used to house the freight and passengers for Shovel Creek, Linkville, Fort Klamath and Lakeview. For the present, or until the depot is built, arrangements have been made with Earl & Co. to send the freight on in the cars to Ager's or Willow Creek, under their care.

The frame of the new hotel at Ager's was to be raised yesterday, by Justus Wells, the builder, who has been waiting for the masonry foundation work. The hotel is to be two stories high, and the dimensions are 39 by 66 feet, built in a pleasant spot, near shady trees and pure cool water, to render the location attractive.

It will probably be six years or more before the road is permanently established, as the Bailey Hill grade will undoubtedly be changed to a lower grade, and new tunnels lower down are likely to be made through the Siskiyou mountains, as the main object now is to gain through connection as quick as possible.

That there will be a branch road extended up Klamath river from Willow Creek, seems to be the general belief, in order to get ahead of any extension from the Oregon short line to Eastern Oregon, now that the Union Pacific is branching out so extensively in securing the Northern Pacific and all the Oregon lines, except the C. & O. line recently purchased by the Southern Pacific.

When freight cars are loaded at mills, granaries, farms or other places, they cannot be moved except through orders from headquarters at Sacramento, consequently there is much delay in many sections. We hear that lumber cars are detained a week or ten days at mills in Strawberry Valley, awaiting orders to move them. As this is the season for marketing grain crops, freight cars are in great demand everywhere below, notwithstanding the constant addition of new cars.

The railroad company find much trouble in securing right-of-way on north side of Siskiyou mountain, on account of change of route. The new route cuts through narrow orchards and farms, destroying them completely, hence big prices will have to be paid. The former right-of-way cut up the ground to a great extent, and now to throw up a new grade, will ruin the narrow valley, leading from Siskiyou mountain to Ashland, so far as using it for ranching, farming or gardening.

The construction superintendants of the railroad company are engaging all the brick made at Montague for round house at Hornbrook, and say it is cheaper to obtain brick in this county, than to ship from below. In fact all kinds of building material can be procured cheap enough in Siskiyou to pay for shipment to the lower country with profit.

The Red Bluff Sentinel says as many as thirty-six engines are at times sidetracked at Dunsmuir. A large force of men will be employed there to keep the engines in repair.

The saw mills at Strawberry Valley are crowded with orders from the railroad company, for ties and timbers, needed on Siskiyou mountain in hurrying the railroad along to connection.—Yreka Journal.

BROOKS ON THE BRINK

Port Townsend is soon to receive additional notoriety. Quincy A. Brooks who succeeded Beecher as collector of Customs of that port is on the ragged edge and his removal is only a question of a short time. A correspondent of the San Francisco Chronicle passed through this city last week, on his return from an investigation to Washington Territory. He succeeded beyond his most sanguine hopes in gathering evidence sufficient to implicate Brooks in crookedness sufficient to cause his removal, unless, like Beecher, he is one of the presidents pets. He is in possession of letters by Quincy to parties whom he appointed as his deputies demanding money as a consideration for the favors granted them. He had also affidavits of reliable parties which will certainly sink the delinquent collector so deep in the mire of official corruption that Ladd's artesian well would fail to reach him. He managed to secure his appointment through the influence of the swamp-land ring, of which he is a member and whose tool he is. All who knew the man were suprised when they heard that he had been elected for so important a position. Wherever he is known he is looked upon by honest men as a person whom it would be unsafe to trust. For twenty odd years past he has been a hanger on about every legislature with some scheme in view to rob the treasury and he generally succeeded. He received a rich boodle out of the Modoc war steal for services never rendered. That he should discontinue his old habits when a better opportunity for loot is presented to him would be too sudden a conversion to be genuine. It is not surprising that the president should feel discouraged at finding so many of his appointees such clumsy thieves. They would be more to be respected if they displayed a little more ingenuity. It is most exasperating to meet with a federal official that is both a fool and a rogue.—Oregon Siftings.

THE LAST SPIKE EXCURSION.—We have private advices from San Francisco to the effect that a movement is afoot in that city and Sacramento to organize a last spike excursion, or, in other words, a large party of merchants and business men of 'Frisco and Sacramento, will, upon the completion of the road between here and California, make an excursion visit to this portion of Oregon; perhaps going to Portland, to "view the landscape o'er," in a scenic and business sense. It goes without saying that these gentlemen desire to make permanent business relations with the people of Southern Oregon, and the object of the proposed visit is to make personal acquaintance with our people, and arrange, if they may, the details of these new commercial interests. Our people will certainly welcome these gentlemen, and make them feel at home while here. Southern Oregon is in a situation favorable to the establishment of new business relations, and will no doubt make hay while the sun shines. That San Francisco will make a big bid for her trade is certainly one of the things to occur before the snow flies.—Transcript.

COFFEE COOLERS.—"Gen. Bragg, what is a coffee cooler, as referred to in your speech yesterday?" "If you get Forbes's picture of the war you will see a picture of the regiments as they move into action. On the side of the road, under a cedar copse, there are three soldiers squatting down, holding their coffee in cups, cooling it. And there they remain until after the battle, and then rejoin their regiments. These fellows were features in every regiment, and I was surprised at the faithfulness of Forbes's delineation of these skulkers."

A CONGRESSIONAL TRAMP

HOW HON. BINGER HERMANN WAS REFUSED SUPPER AND A NIGHT'S LODGING.

Hon. Binger Hermann returned to this city a few days since from a tour through Eastern Oregon. The Harney Valley News is responsible for the following:

Ben Brown tells a good story on Congressman Hermann and himself. As they were traveling over Eastern Oregon they frequently encountered difficulties in the way of finding places of entertainment for the night. Mr. Brown says that one evening, after having traveled over forty miles that day without anything for them or their horses to eat, they saw in the distance a ranch and congratulated themselves upon their good fortune, and pictured for themselves a smoking supper and feather beds for the night.

They hurried foward, and the barn being between the weary travelers and the house, they were not observed by the family. When the wagon halted Mr. Brown was asked to go to the house and engage supper and lodgings. When his business was made known the good women politely informed him that she wanted no tramps about her house; that some such fellows had stayed there a few nights since and she would have no more of it. Mr. Brown informed her that they had traveled a great distance and very much desired accommodations, and had money with which to pay their bill, but the suspicious lady frankly told him that he should not stay.

Ben, believing that he was on a cold track, went back to the barn where Mr. Hermann was holding the team. Mr. H. inquired what luck and Ben, with as straight a face as possible, informed his traveling companion that he failed to get into the house; that he could hear conversation within, but his knock at the door was not answered, and told Mr. Hermann that he must try it. "All right," said our congressman, and at once alighted from the wagon and started for the house. Ben watching every movement.

When Mr. Hermann reached the house the woman opened the door just wide enough to glance at him, and in his usual polite manner took off his hat and made one of his best bows, and asked food and lodgings. The woman replied by informing him that his partner had just been there and she had sent him away because she would not harbor tramps. "But," said Mr. H., "we are not tramps. I am congressman for Oregon; I am not a tramp, but have money to pay my way." "Well," "you may be a congressman, but you don't look enough like one to make me believe it without stronger evidence than your own word for it." As it was getting late, and appeared that they would have to move on, Mr. Hermann donned his tile and repaired to the wagon where Ben was anxiously awaiting his return, and said: "Ben, you rascal, why did you tell me you had not seen the woman?" "Well," said Ben, "I got fired so suddenly I wanted you to have some of it."

FRANCE'S NEW RIFLE.—The Lebel rifle, the new arm with which the French infantry will be supplied before next spring, is according to all accounts, a wonder, and several models of the gun which have been received in New York city have created much excitement. The new rifle is known by the name of its inventor, Lebel, and is smaller and lighter than the rifles now in use; the French soldiers call it "the little gun." The most authentic descriptions given to the gun agree in attributing to it a carrying power beyond that of any other rifle heretofore in use. The models received in New York are not known to be accurate copies of the Lebel gun, and experiments with them are impossible, owing to the fact that the powder used is a secret compound of which the French have a monopoly. According to all accounts the Lebel gun will carry its bullet more than a mile and a-half, and with a more certain aim than has been possible with ordinary rifles. The bore of the gun is very small, and the ball, which is of steel-jacketed lead, is said to revolve at a speed of a thousand revolutions a second. In the tests made by the French government this bullet has penetrated a brick wall eight inches thick at a distance of 500 yards; it will go through any kind of armor which can be worn by soldiers, and at a distance of more than a mile will pass through a man as easily as at ten paces. The gun has no recoil under fire and the powder gives out no smoke whatever. It has been said that the powder used must be a type of smokeless hunting powder already in the market; but this is denied by the inventor, who says that in reply to the question as to why he has been spending so much time and money on Senator Pokeroot. "Listen—[takes out note book]—Route 1049, running from Dead Cove to Devil's Gap, which is a howling wilderness; real cost of postal service, a mustang, a half-breed Indian, fifty dollars a year—contract appropriation, $8,000. Route 7,052, from Noodletoxy, in Oregon, to anywhere, for no man has yet found Jacksonville, supposed to be at the other end. There isn't, nor hasn't been, a resident on the route. An old hunter carries the alleged mail—goes out when he is hungry, and comes back when he feels like it. Cost, a rifle and a gallon or two of whisky—contract price, six thousand dollars a year. Route 1,261, from Shirt-Tail Bend, on the railroad to Madison city, which is a whiskey saloon of eighteen inhabitants, where wolves invariably run the mail in ahead of time, with one newspaper in it, which nobody can read;—real cost, one hundred and fifty dollars a year—contract price, ten thousand. And Senator Pokeroot worked all these appropriations through—and there's more to come."

REMARKABLE SURVIVAL.

Not survival of the fittest, but survival of pensioners who, as a rule, were not fittest soldiers, is one of the curious things of history. John Quincy Adams, in his diary for April 7, 1834, commenting upon the number of petitions for pensions for revolutionary soldiers, quoted Uriah Tracy, who served Connecticut in the U. S. senate from 1795 to 1807, as saying that "the soldiers of the revolution, who claimed pensions, never died—that they were immortal." Mr. Adams added: "Had he lived to this time he would have seen that they multiply with the lapse of time. As petitioners they are more numerous at very session of congress than before."

The record of the pension office show that the number of applicants under the pauper pension bill for the revolutionary soldiers was 28,555 within two years after the passage of the act of 1818, although less than 20,000 officers and men, according to the best estimates, had survived the war, and certificates were granted to 16,570, although a subsequent purging of the rolls reduced the number to 12,331 in 1882. This latter date was thirty-nine years after the close of the war, but almost ten years later, in October, 1831, the number of revolutionary pensioners showed scarcely any diminution, standing at 11,876 nearly half a century after the treaty of peace was signed in 1783.

Reasoning from the analogy of the law of 1818, it becomes very certain that the cost of the pension measure now proposed would soon swell the annual pension expenditure to $150,000,000, with a constant increase from year to year to a nation that has already expended since July, 1866, $808,624,811 in pensions.

The real reason why this bill passed congress was because the high-tariff Republicans and Democratic protectionists welcome any measure that promises to reduce the surplus revenue and thus save the necessity of tariff rivision and reduction. The arrears of pension act so stimulated applications that they rose from 35,842 in 1878 to 119,633 in 1879. The vast proportion of men, who would be benefited by this unguarded bill, would be "the rubbish of the army." shirks, substitutes, bounty-jumpers, hospital pimps. Two of these fellows once met and the following dialogue took place: "Mike, wuz you in the war?" "I wuz." "You wuz?" "I wuz." "wuz you wounded?" "I wuz." "You wuz?" "I wuz, almost." The fellows who were "almost wounded" would be the chief beneficiaries of this bill.
