PROHIBITION LECTURES.

Prof. Rork of Michigan, a noted lecturer, spoke on the prohibition question at the court-house in town last Saturday and Sunday. He was greeted by a good-sized audience and left excellent impressions. His remarks were original and oftentimes ingenious, but his theories evinced that lack of practicality which generally militates against prohibition wherever tried. Mr. Rork's appeals to the moral sentiment of the community were not new, however, and his illustrations were of an extensive nature and sometimes overdrawn.
