CHAS. NICKELL, EDITOR.

THURSDAY ..... OCTOBER 31, 1895.

IT is believed that the Durrant case will go to the jury to-day and that a verdict may be looked for not later than the end of the week. A long-suffering public will have cause to rejoice that the end is so near.

THE people of Indiana have raised $9000 for the purchase of a silver service and library for the battle-ship named after the hoosier state. The school children of Oregon are contributing for a like purpose for the battle-ship Oregon.

THE enrollment of the Ashland public schools last month was 499. When we consider that the census made by the county assessor only credited the granite city with 1900 population all told, the proportion of children to adults looks pretty large.

GOV. BUDD has appointed W. F. Jeter of Santa Cruz, as lieutenant-governor of California, vice Millard, deceased. Mr. J. was the democratic candidate for that office. The republicans propose contesting the legality of the appointment, claiming that the president pro tem. of the state senate was Millard's successor.

HYPPOLITE has ruled Hayti without a revolution for nearly ten years, an extraordinary period of peace for that stormy republic. Now he is shut up in his palace and protected only by his personal guards. His reign has been cruel and bloody and he has no mercy to expect in case of a successful revolution. Civil war in Hayti may make it possible for the United States to acquire the long-desired naval station.

THE Democratic convention at Columbia, S. C. voted down the woman suffrage amendment with a decisive vote of 121 to 26. George D. Tillman made a great speech declaring that by enfranchising women with a property qualification the white people could carry elections by just and honest methods and by no other way could they do it. He characterized the suffrage plan of Senator Tillman as a temporary fraudulent makeshift.

THE county clerk, in his wail to the Populist brethern, casts an innuendo against the integrity of the courts of Oregon which had best been left unsaid. Whatever may be his excuses for voting to reduce the railroad assessment, if they are not laid on a better foundation than the one in which he alleges that the people could not afford to engage in a legal controversy with that company because the courts are friendly to corporations, they cannot but fall when scrutinized by those for whom they are intended. The judiciary of this state has never been amenable to such charges, and Mr. Jacobs showed a lamentable weakness and cast an insult that he should not be slow in squaring.

THE story of the instability of the battleship Maine probably is unduly exaggerated. There has been considerable difficulty in building both the Maine and the Texas upon the plans furnished, but the most probably has been made of these difficulties, both by navy department designers and contractors building other vessels upon department designs. It will be remembered that Secretary Whitney bought the plans for the Maine and Texas in England, being doubtful of the capacity of our own designers to plan battleships. It is not strange that they should have developed the faults of stability so common in British battleships, and which are so happily absent in the Indiana, built on American plans.

A VERDICT of guilty was returned by the jury yesterday in the Ausplund case. The jury retired at 2 o'clock, and reported the verdict at 4 o'clock, occupying just two hours in deliberating. Counsel for Ausplund moved and was granted by the court five days in which to argue a motion for a new trial. Ausplund was tried on an indictment charging him with assault with a dangerous weapon upon Dr. H. R. Holmes, August 16, 1895. The punishment provided by statute for assault with a dangerous weapon is not less than six months nor more than ten years in the penitentiary, or imprisonment in the county jail from one month to one year, or a fine not exceeding $1000, or both fine and imprisonment.

THE state land authorities have a delicate and difficult situation to handle just at present in the shape of delinquent interest on loans from the school fund. Some of the most respected citizens of the state have been so pinched by the financial depression as to be unable to meet the interest on loans made them from the school fund, which has been accumulating until there seems no way of getting out of it except by foreclosure. This is where the difficult nature of the case comes in. Although there is ove $100,000 delinquent interest due and complaints are being made about the decrease in school apportionments, which is caused by the inability of the debtors to meet the interest, it is doubtful if it would be any benefit for the state to foreclose, as it would be likely to have to bid the property in, owing to the scarcity of capital for investment in farming lands. Besides this a foreclosure at present would strip a great many of the debtors of every foot of land they possess and force them to begin life again at an age when it is particularly discouraging. For the above two reasons the state officials are not desirous of resorting to the law, and as said before the situation is extremely delicate to deal with.

Our Medford Reporter on Deck.

In the matter of the inquisition upon N. A. Jacobs, populistically dead, by the Populist County Central Committee, held in Medford, October, 26th, 1895 (Stenographic report incomplete.)

Mr. President:—Gentlemen we are about to vote upon the action of County Clerk Jacobs in the railroad assessment matter, what is your pleasure.

Recorder Rawlings:—Mr. President, inasmuch as there are a few present who are not members of the County Central Committee, I observe there are just 22 present including the Committee, and in order to get an expression from all present on the matter, I move you that all Populists present be allowed to vote.

The motion was put by the President and unanimously carried.

Recorder Rawlings:—Mr. President I call for a rising vote.

Mr. President:—As many of you as favor the action of our County Clerk, N. A. Jacobs in voting to reduce the assessment of that grasping corporation, the Southern Pacific Railroad company, from $10,000 to $5,000, stand up.

Whereupon Recorder Grant Rawlings and Deputy Assessor Wella Beeson stood up.

Mr. President:—Contrary the same.

Deputy Assessor Bryant, Sheriff Patterson, Rep. Jeffrey, etc., voted.

Mr. President:—The vote stands. Affirmative 2, negative 20.

Mr. President:—Mr. Johnny Jeffrey you will proceed to prepare a resolution denouncing the action of the county clerk in this matter.

At which the reporter was called away.

Back from the Yukon.

The steamer Bertha arrived at San Francisco from the Yukon river and other points of Alaska last week. She brought 148 passengers, which were principally made up of miners from Forty-mile river. Every miner had a sack of gold dust or a bag full of nuggets, ranging from $500 to an amount far up in the thousands. The miners had not abandoned the diggings on the Yukon by any means, and it is the intention of every man who came down to return in the spring. One man named Madson, who has been in Alaska for eleven years, came back with $12,000 in his belt. Madson is of the opinion that Forty-mile river will be a profitable camp for years to come; but he advises a man to provide himself with about $300 before he starts for Alaska, to take care of himself during the winter months.

A Lot of Hungry People.

Several months ago the government awarded the descendants of Joseph Bailey, who live near Eugene, $13,500 for stock destroyed by Indians during the Rogue River wars. There are several sets of heirs, and each one wants the lion's share. Last week Judge Fisk, county judge of Lane county, heard the contest between the Bailey heirs, represented by Hon. G. B. Dorris, and the Barger heirs, represented by J. J. Walton. He decided in favor of the Baileys and an appeal will be taken. After this is decided finally the winner will have to go through the matter again with the Roberts-Eddy faction, who are lying low at present and protecting their interests. The lawyers will be about the only winners in the long run.

A Storm at Sea

Increases the discomfort of the voyager. But even when the weather is not tempestuous he is liable to sea sickness. They who traverse the "gigantic wetness" should be provided with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which quiets disordered stomachs with gratifying speed and certainty. To the hurtful influence of a tropic, malarious or too rigorous or damp climate, as well as to the baneful effects of unwholesome diet and bad weather, it is a reliable antidote. Commercial travelers by sea or land, mariners, miners, western pioneers, and all who have to encounter the vicissitudes of climate and temperature, concur in pronouncing it the safeguard. It prevents rheumatism and pulmonary attacks in consequence of damp and cold, and it is an efficient defense against all forms of malaria. It can be depended upon in dyspepsia, liver and kidney trouble.

THE UPPER APPLEGATE.

An Immense Region of Gold. Easily Worked and at little Expense.

FROM ELLIOTT TO FOREST CREEK FORTY MILES.

At different times for many months back, I heard so much about the immense region of gold on the upper Applegate that I felt a more than ordinary desire to see it. I did not think for a moment that reliable people could be mistaken in accounts of this famous region of gold, and yet, from what I had seen of the stream, I could not for the life of me locate the region. I, therefore, gladly accepted an invitation from H. H. McCarthy to drive out to his place as a starting point of investigation. I have seen the elephant now, and a pure white elephant it is, too, and I am more amazed than ever at the endless gold deposits of southern Oregon. I challenge the world in a perfectly conscientious spirit, to produce its equal in richness, extent and first-class facilities for working with the giant. In all seriousness, I claim that if one side of the river alone, say from Forest to Elliott creek was worked to its full capacity, omitting Elliott, Carberry, Steamboat, Brush, Palmer and other tributary creeks, it would come near paying off the national debt. This is a big boast; but since I first made it, I have the satisfaction of having it endorsed by R. Cameron and other old settlers of the district equally competent and reliable. Without such endorsement, whatever my personal convictions might have been, I do not think I should have made such a boast in public print.

I know, however, what I have seen, perhaps no man better, in connection with the possible gold product of this region when thoroughly worked. I know equally well what my impression is. I further know that impressions are not misleading when properly accepted. Impressions or ideas are but reflections of facts which spring from our environments. It is impossible to form a definite conception in reality of a thing that does not exist. Here, I know, within the limits given, an immense region of gold-bearing ground does exist, miles upon miles long and wide, unparalleled in extent. At every point where tried, I know it pays enormously with the pipe. What then? I accept the truth nature teaches us and really think that either half of this grand gold region, if thoroughly worked, would come near paying off the national debt.

Now I will pass from impressions and go to bedrock facts. They take us out of the atmosphere of probabilities or possibilities, and tell with all classes.

Beginning at the upper end of this region I have already given the details of the mines on down to the Applegate for a distance of 8 miles—the Elliott Creek Mining Co., the Siskiyou Mining Co., and the Faucet ranch ground, under option to San Francisco parties. All these are splendid enterprises and safe in their results. Yet, although belonging as much to Oregon as California, with the greatest benefits in favor of Oregon, their existance is due, I believe, to the business enterprise and personal energy of Washington and California men. This is rather a severe reflection upon our own people. It would not be half so cutting if it were not merited. In addition to the details already given of the Elliott creek mines, I may add, Mr. Boggs, has just opened a splendid channel of the old prehistoric wash, at least 500 feet back from the creek. The formation of this channel is perfect, 100 feet wide, with banks 40 feet high, all parts of which yield big prospects. This discovery of course, increases the value of the ground on both sides of Elliott creek down to Faucet's ranch, because it insures good pay in places which might otherwise have been doubtful. It is one of these splendid developements which will be found in every direction when the giant gets to work next season.

From Faucett's ranch at the junction of Elliott creek with Applegate, down the stream, the course I shall now take for a fall mile if not more, the pay ground on both sides exists in a large degree, offering all the way, the finest facilities of successful hydraulic work, whether it is private or public land, I did not ascertain. But it is there all the same. Of that, there is no doubt. At the end of this mile comes

CARBERRY CREEK

At the mouth of which joining Applegate an excellent hydraulic plant was being put in when I was there and which, by this time, I presume, is completed as all the necessary material was on the ground. A portion of the territory of this mine was purchased by Stephen and James Terry, the brave old pioneers who located and partially opened the Boggs mine on Elliott creek many years before, with whom George O. Durkee, a friend of mine from Portland, and P. W. Shepherd united their undivided locations. The claim contains 160 acres, besides a large quantity of ground it unavoidably controls. The point to be worked this season is a high beach at the junction of Carberry and Applegate, formed no doubt a long time ago by both streams. The bench is deep; it prospects well from the top to bedrock. So there can be no doubt about it paying well. From its formation it cannot do otherwise. For centuries past it has been fed by the drift gold of both streams, besides being on the old ocean channel. The will be very good. A ditch over a mile long has been dug to Cougar ranche rie and Horse creek, which will give abundance of water for nearly the whole season with 300 feet pressure. The dump is also good; but to help the dirt through the flume additional water, if necessary, can be easily brought from Carberry itself. There will be over 1000 feet of piping, principally 11-inch, and a No. 1 giant. It should by all means, from the character of the dirt, have been a No. 2 giant.

In early days Carberry and Brush creeks for miles above the mine, were rich. The gold was coarse, one piece found going as high as $900. The old army of Oregon croakers, who have lived for half a century amid this great gold deposit without trying to take out a dollar of it, were busy at first trying to dissuade the company from pursuing the enterprise, as it must surely end in failure. It is astonishing what a great deal this army of old croakers knows about hydraulic mining, while many of them have never seen the system in operation. If they would only publish a book about what they don't know it would be a great deal more truthful and interesting. The miners are the best customers the farmer can have. Nay, it is indisputable that without the miners, small as their numbers are compared to what they ought to and will be in a short time, that Jacksonville, Medford, Gold Hill and Grant's Pass would have a bitter struggle to live.

The northern boundary line of the Carberry creek mine runs down to the Watkins ranch, a pretty place on the Applegate; but a thousand times more valuable on both sides the river, for mining than farming. In fact, it is a spot that especially attracted my attention. There can be no doubt of its being rich in gold. It could also be worked to great advantage. Precisely the same may be said of the ground on both sides of the river from the Watkins to the Collins ranch and thence to the school house, a distance of five miles altogether. For this reason and many others I shall mention hereafter when I get to the proper place, actual developments at Carberry creek, assume an immense importance, for all the gold buried there now cannot and will not be allowed to lie idle much longer. The best interests of the nation at large forbid such nonsense.
