The Southern Pacific railroad is abreast of the times with electric headlights for its engines. By merely touching a button the engineer sets the light into play. Each light is of 2000 candle power. It lights the track half a mile in front of the engine, while with the oil light the track was lit but a few hundred feet in front of the cowcatcher. Anything on the track can be seen sixteen telegraph poles a head of the engine, far enough so that the train could be brought to a halt before it reached the object, even if it be under full speed. The engines are being provided with the apparatus as fast as it can be supplied.

Help is needed at once when a person's life is in danger. A neglected cough or cold may soon become serious and should be stopped at once. One Minute Cough Cure quickly cures coughs and colds and the worst cases of croup, bronchitis, grippe and other throat and lung troubles. City Drug Store, Jacksonville, and Dr. J. Hinkle, Central Point, Ore.

Mrs. Charles L. Fair's pet Pomeranian poodle at San Francisco is wearing gold-crowned teeth. This is an unusual distinction, even for canines of high degree. Mrs. Fair's pet is given careful attention to keep him in good health and spirits. Recently he became fidgety, could not eat the choice morsels prepared for him and was evidently suffering great pain. The veterinarian was called and found that the dog's teeth had decayed—the result of too much candy, the doctor said. The necessary dental work was done with very little difficulty. Anesthetics were not necessary, as the poodle submitted very gracefully to having his molars excavated, filled and capped. Now he eats his bone with relish and munches his dog biscuits with evident satisfaction.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Fine Home For the Courts—Rodenberg's Constituents—A Joke on Ex-Speaker Reed.

[Special Correspondence.]

A comprehensive bill for a temple of justice, to be located on the square bounded by First and Second streets northeast and B street northeast and East Capitol street, has been prepared by Chairman Mercer of the house committee on public buildings and grounds. It provides that a grand building, to cost $7,000,000, including site, shall be erected as a companion to the new library of congress and in a style of architecture to correspond with that building and the capitol as a home for the department of justice, the supreme court of the United States, the court of claims, the court of appeals of the District of Columbia and the National Law library. The ground, which Mr. Mercer's bill would acquire by condemnation or purchase under the direction of a commission, consisting of the secretary of the treasury, the secretary of the interior and the chief justice, consists of 226,157 square feet.

Provision is made for a repeal of the bill authorizing the erection of a department of justice building at a cost of $1,000,000, approved March 3, 1890, and the attorney general is directed to return to the treasury any part of the $25,000 appropriated by congress and to render an accounting. The bill also provides for invitations to ten prominent architects, or firms of architects, to prepare plans for the temple of justice and for their compensation.

Rodenberg's Constituents.

Valuable educational results often attend a visit to Washington. The other day a substantial German constituent of Representative Rodenberg came on. He was well up in the business and politics and general information of the Twenty-first Illinois district, but he had never before visited the national capital and mingled with the men who make and administer the government. The congressman and the constituent went to the White House. The president greeted the old German so pleasantly that he put him at his ease immediately. "When did you come to this country?" the president inquired after some other preliminary conversation. "I was imported in 1876," replied the visitor. From the White House the congressman and the constituent walked over to the treasury, the constituent expressing heartily his good impression of the president. Mr. Rodenberg led the way into the office of the secretary and presented the constituent to Mr. Gage. "What is your name?" asked the constituent. "My name is Gage," answered the urbane head of the money business of the government. "What do you hold here?" asked the constituent. This was almost too much for the secretary, but he recovered himself from the shock and explained courteously.

A Joke on Tom Reed.

Stanley W. Davenport, from Pennsylvania, loves a joke, and when, the other day, he saw ex-Speaker Reed tumbling through Statuary hall, where echoes play so many strange tricks, he grasped an opportunity. Mr. Davenport stood on the threshold of the corridor leading to the house, just where the capitol guides speak in low voices to the never ending stream of visitors who are placed far out facing the clock in the marble car of time. A bashful wedding couple was listening to the long distance story at that particular moment, and Mr. Reed was just passing them on the way toward the supreme court.

"Tell them Tom Reed is passing," said Mr. Davenport to the guide. Mr. Reed himself heard the Pennsylvania through the medium of the wonderful echo, although he was many yards away.

"Look toward the clock, and you will see the Hon. Thomas B. Reed of Maine, ex-speaker of the house, passing at your left," droned the guide immediately.

The bridal couple, of course, "rubbered" intently, and Mr. Reed, startled out of a deep brown study, smiled at the strange proceeding.

Extra Session of Senate.

President McKinley the other day explained to a committee from the Illinois State Manufacturers' association, who invited him to attend a dinner in Chicago on March 20, that he would probably not be able to accept, because here would likely be an extra session of the senate to confirm nominations. This is the first intimation that an extra session of the senate would be necessary or that the president expected to make any appointments other than to fill places caused by the expiration of terms. The president also said to his callers that he expected to go as far as the Pacific coast late in the spring via New Orleans and the Southern Pacific road. His visit is for the purpose of attending the launching of the battleship Ohio at the yards of the Union Iron company.

Engineering.

F. M. Roundtree, an expert in this line, is prepared to execute all orders for engineering and boiler cleaning. He guarantees satisfaction. For particulars address him at Jacksonville.

The Sport of Coursing.

Coursing is a sport little known or heard about except by a very exclusive coterie of fortunate persons, whose wealth allows them the enjoyment of this most exciting of sporting pastimes.

In England coursing is one of the most popular of sports, and it has also obtained a strong foothold in California and other western states, but in the east, owing to the restrictions placed upon it by the law, the meets held are kept as secret as possible, and little about them becomes public.

Lovers of the sport are thoroughly enthusiastic in its praise, and notwithstanding the restrictions put on them coursing meets are of quite frequent occurrence at this time of the year and are largely attended.

The sport appears to be especially attractive to women, many of whom are numbered among its warmest admirers, and who, too, are the owners of kennels.

The greyhound, which is exclusively employed for coursing, is considered by lovers of the sport as the greatest of all sporting dogs.

"Once a greyhound lover always a greyhound lover," one fair enthusiast remarked at a recent meet, and that opinion is indorsed by everybody who has been fortunate enough to see the game, graceful and shapely animal in the "chase."

In England the hare is used as the quarry in coursing, but in this country the western jack rabbit affords a grand substitute. In fact the American article has even more speed and, if anything, is cleverer in turning than his English relative.

The greyhounds are very carefully trained for their work and are given as much care and attention as a thoroughbred race horse. Many of the most famous dogs in this country have been imported from England and are of the highest canine aristocracy. They are of high degree, with pedigrees extending back generation after generation. They show in every line and motion the results of years of careful breeding, and their bulging muscles, like bunches of wire springs, show the development which can only be attained by months of training.

The bursts of speed the animals put forth when in action are something wonderful. They do not seem to touch the ground at all. They simply fly—they scoot, and make only a streak as they annihilate space.

RELIGIOUS APPOINTMENTS.

Rev. Mr. Hansen will hold services at the M. E. church in Jacksonville Sunday morning and evening.

Rev. Father Berthiaume will hold services at the Catholic church in Jacksonville, Sunday, Feb. 23, at 8:30 A. M.; and in Medford, on the same day, at 10:30 A. M.

GERMAN BAPTIST.—Elder S. M. Eby will hold services at the following places: 1st and 3d Sunday in each month, at the church near Talent; second, at the Naylor school-house; 4th at Ashland.

SURE TO FOLLOW

If the Blood Is Impoverished Diseases Which Often Puzzle Doctors Are Inevitable.

From The Tribune, Webster City, Ia.

Physicians are often puzzled by an ailment that does not yield to the usual remedies, patients are caused much suffering and expense while experiments are being tried upon them, when in many cases the seat of the disorder is in the blood. If this vital fluid is impoverished disease is sure to follow.

Build up the blood, the diseased part is nourished and strengthened, and health results. This is the simple history of what often appears to be a complicated case. Mr. Ezra Edwards, the well-known merchant of Webster City, Iowa, passed through such an experience. He says:

"I have always believed that my trouble was due to the impoverished condition of my blood. About four years ago my ankles began to swell and cause me great pain. I am quite heavy and as I was on my feet constantly I suffered intensely. Finally the swelling became so bad that I could not walk and for a week I was confined to my chair or bed. Three doctors treated me but did not effect a cure.

"I first heard of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People through an advertisement in a religious paper. About six months ago I began taking the pills and I felt good results from the first box. I continued taking them as directed for nearly five months. I am now 42 years old and am the picture of health. I am willing to tell the world that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cured me and I know they will cure others if they are given a thorough trial.

"Hardly a day passes that I do not tell some one of the benefits I have received from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, for I think that anyone suffering from any disorder of the blood or nerves should give them a thorough trial.

EZRA EDWARDS.
