DON'T BE DUPED

There have been placed upon the market several cheap reprints of an obsolete edition of "Webster's Dictionary."

By dealers, agents, etc., and in a few instances as a premium for subscriptions to papers.

Announcements of these comparatively worthless reprints are very misleading.

They are advertised to be the substantial equivalent of a higher-priced book, while they are all reprints of a book of over fifty years ago.

Long Since Obsolete.

The Webster's Unabridged Dictionary published by our house is the only meritorious one of that name.

The town of Chehalis is excited over the reported discovery of an immense cave in eastern Lewis county, Wash. An exploration was made for a distance of five miles. After entering the lower passage the explorer came to a subterranean lake. On the beach were found boats of ancient make, some petrified and others partially so. In two small rooms were found the remains of two human beings, giants in size.

Prof. Ivison of Lonaconing, Md., suffered terribly from neuralgia of the stomach and indigestion for thirteen years, and after the doctors failed to cure him they fed him on morphine. A friend advised the use of Kodol Dyspepsia Cure, and after taking a few bottles of it he says: "It has cured me entirely. I can't say too much for Kodol Dyspepsia Cure. It digests what you eat. The Parkersburg, Coos county, correspondent of the Coquille City Herald writes under a late date: Followers of Mrs. Nation yesterday made a raid on a joint in this place, smashing the fixtures and completely demolishing the building. A few of Parkersburg's young bloods had lately been in the habit of meeting at a certain house to engage in a quiet game of poker. Yesterday evening a number of women armed with hatchets and handspikes raided the place, with the above results.

The Stolen Diamond.

The other evening a well dressed man put up at a hotel in Buffalo. On the middle finger of his right hand was a heavy gold ring in which was set a diamond of unusual brilliancy. It was the first thing one noticed about the man. It shone and sparkled in quite a wonderful way. The hotel clerk was interested in him and his gem and elicited his story.

"My name is Lee—Charles Lee," said the man. "I am from Savannah. This ring I have worn on my finger for 20 years. It is no wonder you are interested in it. I believe it is one of the finest diamonds in Georgia. I showed it to a jeweler awhile ago, and he offered me $10,000 for it. So you see it is valuable as it looks. There have been scores of people who have asked about it, but I have very seldom told the story which it recalls. I cannot tell its entire history, and what I don't know is very likely more interesting than what I do.

"When I was a boy, I lived with my uncle down on a Georgia plantation. One day, while prowling through the garret of the big house, I found a trunk which was unlocked. I opened it. It was filled with old laces and women's clothes of a fashion of years before. Down toward the bottom I saw a small jewel case. Inside I found this stone. I left it there and went down stairs and asked my uncle about it. He wouldn't believe my story. He went up to the garret to see for himself, and he was a surprised man when he came down again. Several days later he told me all about it.

"My uncle was an old man then, but when he was a boy he had been a sailor and had been all over the world. When he was on board ship, he made friends with a man named Galvin. Galvin was a wayward sort of man and not to be depended upon. Once the ship touched at Havre, and he ran away. My uncle did not see him again for 15 years. Then, one day, a broken down man, looking much older than he really was, came to the old Georgia homestead.

"My uncle had a long talk with him in the library. The man was Galvin. He said he was being followed by the police for implication in some big robbery, and he wanted my uncle to protect him. He had been such a good friend to my uncle in former days that my uncle did not have the heart to turn him away. He gave the man a home for several weeks. By that time the robbery had been almost forgotten, and Galvin went away. Before he went he gave my uncle this stone. 'I picked it up somewhere,' he said. 'I don't know what it is worth, but I want you to take it for what you've done for me.'

"So my uncle kept it. He did not know its value. He laid it away somewhere and forgot all about it. He was not particularly fond of jewels and never wore them himself.

"Years after that he received a letter written in a large, sprawling hand. It was from Galvin. He had sent it from some place in Kansas, which was then out in the wild west. He wrote that he was sick and likely to die and had repented of his crimes. And he wrote the interesting information that he had stolen the diamond from a big house in London, where he had fallen in with a gang of housebreakers.

"It had been stolen with the other jewels of a wealthy young woman who was about to be married. Her name was Vincent. He asked my uncle to make a search for the young woman, and if he ever succeeded in finding her to return to her the diamond with Galvin's compliments.

"My uncle happened to be in London on a pleasure trip two years later, and he spent several days trying to find the young woman. He searched through old police records and did everything in his power, but it was a hopeless task. He got trace at last of a young woman who had married an army officer and who had died in India soon after her marriage, and there were certain bits of information which led him to believe this might be the person he wanted. But he was unable to find anything more about her. He could find none of her friends or relatives.

"Soon he had to leave London, and the search for the missing Miss Vincent was never continued. If ever I go to London, I think I will make a try at it myself, just for curiosity. It is 50 years ago that the stone was stolen, and I don't suppose I would have any success. Still it would be an interesting search, and if I did succeed what a story it might bring to light. If the owner of the ring is alive, she must be at least 70 years old. In ten years from now there will not be a chance left of success.

"To tell the truth, I have been glad at times that the owner never was found, for I would hate to part with a $10,000 diamond.

"My uncle was always careless about things of that sort, and he lost track of it. He had not been able to find it until years later, when I made the discovery in the trunk. Shortly before he died, some 20 years ago, he gave the stone to me on the condition that I would return it to the rightful owner if she should ever be found. I have worn it ever since."—Exchange.

SALT LAKE CITY.

AN IMPORTANT FACTOR IN TRANSCONTINENTAL TRAVEL.

No one crossing the continent can afford to cut Salt Lake City from his route. The attractions of the place, including the Mormon temple, tabernacle and church institutions, the Great Salt Lake—deader and denser than the Dead sea in the holy land—the picturesque environment and the warm sulphur and hot springs, are greater to the square yard than any locality on the American continent. The Rio Grande Western Railway, connecting on the east with the Denver & Rio Grande and Colorado Midland Railways and on the west with the Southern Pacific (central route) and Oregon Short Line, is the only transcontinental line passing directly through Salt Lake City. The route through Salt Lake City is famous all the year round. On account of the equable climate of Utah and Colorado it is just as popular in winter as in summer. Send two cents to J. D. Mansfield, 255 Washington St., Portland, or Geo. W. Heintz, General Passenger Agent, Salt Lake City, for a copy of "Salt Lake City—the City of the Saints."

Remarkable Cures of Rheumatism. From the Vindicator, Rutherfordton, N. C.

The editor of the Vindicator has had occasion to test the efficacy of Chamberlain's Pain Balm twice with the most remarkable results in each case. First, with rheumatism in the shoulder, from which he suffered excruciating pain for ten days, which was relieved with two applications of the Pain Balm, rubbing the parts afflicted and realizing instant benefit and entire relief in a very short time. Second, in rheumatism in thigh joint, almost prostrating him with severe pain, which was relieved by two applications, rubbing with the liniment on retiring at night, and getting up free from pain. Getting Thin is all right, if you are too fat; and all wrong, if too thin already.

Fat, enough for your habit, is healthy; a little more, or less, is no great harm. Too fat, consult a doctor; too thin, persistently thin, no matter what cause, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil.

There are many causes of getting too thin; they all come under these two heads: over-work and under-digestion.

Stop over-work, if you can; but, whether you can or not, take Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil, to balance yourself with your work. You can't live on it—true—but, by it, you can. There's a limit, however; you'll pay for it.

Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil is the readiest cure for "can't eat," unless it comes of your doing no work—you can't long be well and strong, without some sort of activity.

The genuine has this picture on it, take no other.

If you have not tried it, send for free sample, its agreeable taste will surprise you. SCOTT & BOWNE Chemists, 409 Pearl Street, New York.
