You may as well expect to run a steam engine without water as to find an active, energetic man with a torpid liver, and you may know that his liver is torpid when he does not relish his food or feels dull and languid after eating, often has headache and sometimes dizziness. THE ARRANGEMENT OF A PARLOR HAS always seemed to me to involve questions having a certain ethical value since, if a parlor means anything, it means a place in which man's relations with his fellows may be carried on—those relations in which all suggestion of business or of a professional character are for the time being dropped. Thus you not only want to provide a seat for the neighbor who drops in to see you, but you want to make that seat comfortable. You also want to refresh his eye with agreeable objects as he sits there, shielding it from glaring lights and so arranging your other belongings that his vision, tempted to roam while he waits, does not come plump upon some ugly object in another room. You must never, by the way, forget the end of the visual line, as it were. Landscape artists and architects study it, and the mistress of the household never loses sight of it. Chairs and sofas and tables should be pulled about, tried in one place and then in another until the desideratum is reached. As your possessions increase, too, you must be ready to move things again, even those which until that moment have always seemed to you "exactly right." The coming of a new picture into an apartment sometimes means the entire rearrangement of all the rooms, since everything else may be thrown out of key. But if your picture be worth anything it is certainly worth the trouble you may take in bringing the rest of your belongings into right relations with it. No one, however, who loves good pictures is unwilling to do this.—Harper's Bazar.

A Scraphook Screen. Here is a suggestion for a screen which any one can follow or work out on original lines. The panels may be covered with paper any shade desired. Dull green, dark red or black make good backgrounds, while ecrú or tan are admirable. Every visitor to a girl's den is asked for a contribution to the screen. The artist makes a small sketch, the poet writes a verse or two; one will contribute an interesting newspaper or magazine clipping. In reality the screen is a big scrapbook, and almost anything is suitable for it. Autographs of distinguished persons may be inserted if one is lucky enough to possess them. The friendly photograph screen is another idea of an up to date girl. This screen has an olive background, and on it are mounted the photographs of all her friends, with their autographs underneath. "I am not especially sensitive," said the man with the billiard ball pate in talking to friends with scanty hair who had been telling experiences, "but I confess it rankled when an absolute stranger hailed me as 'Old Baldy!' I was sprinkling the lawn one hot evening last summer and had laid aside hat and coat. I was somewhat astonished on looking up to see a stranger hanging over the picket fence intently watching me. I continued to play the hose, but when I looked up again the man was still there studying and with evident amusement. I glared at him. "Hello, old Baldy!" he shouted, making a profound bow. "Are you speaking to me, sir? I demanded. "Hello, old Baldy!" he repeated. "Why, you verdant chump!" I replied, rushing toward him, with the nozzle, "I'll turn the hose on you!" "No, you don't," he answered, removing his hat with a flourish and making another low bow. "I'm the limit," he said. I then saw there was not a hair on his head. We went off together and had a drink."—New York Sun.

RECEIVED AT THE OFFICE OF THE POSTMASTER AT JACKSONVILLE, OREGON, MAY 21, 1901. "NERVE WASTE" One of the most helpful books on nerve weakness ever issued is that entitled "Nerve Waste," by Dr. Sawyer, of San Francisco, now in its fifth thousand. This work of an experienced and reputable physician is in agreeable contrast to the vast sum of false teaching which prevails on this interesting subject. It abounds in carefully considered and practical advice, and has the two great merits of wisdom and sincerity. It is endorsed by both the religious and secular press. The Chicago Advance says: "A perusal of the book and the application of its principles will put health, hope and heart into thousands of lives that are now suffering through nervous impairment." One of the most interesting chapters—chapter XX, on Nerves and Nerve Tonics—has been printed separately as a sample chapter, and will be sent to any address for stamp, by the publishers, THE PACIFIC PUB.
