

NOTICE.

UNITED STATES LAND OFFICE, ROSEBURG, OR., June 27, 1901. Notice is hereby given that the State of Oregon has filed in this office a list of lands situated in the townships described below, and has applied for a patent for said lands; that the list is open to the public for inspection and a copy thereof by descriptive subdivisions has been posted in a convenient place in this office, for the inspection of all persons interested, and the public generally.

"NERVE WASTE"

One of the most helpful books on nerve weakness ever issued is that entitled "Nerve Waste," by Dr. Sawyer, of San Francisco, now in its fifth thousand. This work of an experienced and reputable physician is in agreeable contrast to the vast sum of false teaching which prevails on this interesting subject. It abounds in carefully considered and practical advice, and has the two great merits of wisdom and sincerity.

Pompon Fly Rest.

This pretty and very ornamental fly rest of crinkled paper can be made in any color to match the room. The foundation consists of a piece of cardboard cut as a six pointed star eight inches in diameter.

THE POMPON.

14 half rosettes for trimming the top and under edges of the star, the entire rosettes consisting of strips of paper 2 1/2 inches wide by half a yard long, while the half rosettes require the same width, but only about one-quarter yard in length.

FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Menace of Impure Water. A report of Professor F. L. Washburn, geologist of the University of Oregon, on drinking water was recently published in the Portland Oregonian.

"Probably there is no greater menace to public health than our ignorance of the character of the water which we drink. If it be clear and tasteless, we remark upon its excellence. Even if it is discolored or odoriferous from time to time we endure it and make no special effort to examine it scientifically or the environments of its source—well or reservoir or river or brook, as the case may be.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly falling to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without an appetite, and all run down. As I was about to give up I got a bottle of Electric Bitters, and after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life."

Professor Shamel, instructor in farm crops at the Illinois College of Agriculture, says that it is a good plan to sell off and discard both the tips and butts of the corn ears selected for seed.

The Best Liniment for Strains. F. H. Wells, the merchant at Deer Park, Long Island, N. Y., says: "I always recommend Chamberlain's Pain Balm as the best liniment for strains."

Railway Anecdotes.

A case reported in South Africa of a train being pushed up a steep incline by soldiers has recalled the Irish story of a guard calling through the railway car windows, "Third class passengers, get out and push behind!"

A Fireman's Close Call.

"I stuck to my engine, although every joint ached and every nerve was racked with pain," writes C. W. Bellamy, a locomotive fireman of Burlington, Iowa. "I was weak and pale, without an appetite, and all run down. As I was about to give up I got a bottle of Electric Bitters, and after taking it, I felt as well as I ever did in my life."

But and Tip Kernels For Seed.

Professor Shamel, instructor in farm crops at the Illinois College of Agriculture, says that it is a good plan to sell off and discard both the tips and butts of the corn ears selected for seed. That was what we were taught to do when young, and we thought it the proper way until we saw the results of a trial made by the late Dr. E. Lewis Sturtevant while director of the New York experiment station at Geneva.

Redtop Hay and Pasture.

It used to be a custom to sow redtop along with clover for meadow or pasture land. It did not reach its best condition until the clover had been cut for two years and even until timothy had passed its greatest yield, but as it was fit to cut for hay about the same time as timothy they were often sowed together. It would grow on low, moist lands where the clover or timothy were likely to winter kill, it made a strong, smooth turf, and the fine hay, when cut early, was relished by all the animals.

Farmers' Cheap Fertilizers.

Cowpeas are raised more and more every season in the north, and they are rapidly becoming the farmer's cheap fertilizer, says W. E. Edwards in American Cultivator. They are crowding out clover in this respect, and they will eventually make our farming far more profitable. Cowpeas furnish nearly twice as much forage for live stock as clover, and when harvested they leave the field in better condition for other crops. Moreover, cowpeas will grow on land which is unsuitable for clover and where many grain crops only sparingly grow.

PILES

"I suffered the torture of the damned with protruding piles brought on by constipation with which I was afflicted for twenty years. I ran across your CASCARETS in the town of Newell, Ia., and never found anything to equal them. Today I am entirely free from piles and feel like a new man."
