Flowers For Fall Wear.

Flowers, it is said, will be in demand, most certainly among the trimmings for dainty and elegant headwear. As evidence there is recalled to mind in an admirably selected assortment of imported models in a recent opening medium large hat of miroir velvet in cyclamen pink, the wide, low crown of which is smothered under large de tached rose petals of crumpled pink satin, set upright. A very large black velvet hat in another collection, with facing of cream white velvet, has its low, broad, square crown encircled with a garland of crushed white roses and white roses under the brim at the left side.-Millinery Trade Review.

Again last summer I was almost completely run down with an attack of dysentery. I bought a bottle of this same remedy, and this time one dose cured me." For sale by Hints For Unlined Skirts. In planning out the wide ruffle of a skirt it is usual to lay the center back and front to a fold, joining on where occasion requires and pressing all such seams out of visible existence. Acting on this method, the right swing and curve are inevitable. Then, as a hem is always a troublesome matter on any sort of curve and not completely satisfactory at the best, to finish the base of the ruffle it is best to apply a shaped facing, one not more than two inches n depth, and if the stitchings are not employed as an ornamental detail then the upper edge is neater sewed by hand and the result kept as invisible as possible.-Pittsburg Dispatch.

Canaries

Canaries, which were originally green and gray in color, were native to the islands from which they take their name and were first taken to England on ships plying between English ports and the south of France. From this stock have been derived a number of distinct varieties, such as the crested, the green, the lizard, which imitates the reptile in its variegated markings, and the Belgian, which has a strange humpback appearance.

The Feanut.

In Tennessee and Georgia the peanut is known as a goober, in Alabama and the western gulf states a ground pea, in the southeast of the United States and in the West Indies a pindal or pindar and in various parts of England a jurnut, an earth nut or a manila nut.

Muslins and Crapes.

Parisians are wearing cream muslins with large red spots thereon trimmed about the bodice with a good deal of lace. They are very fond of red, which looks charming in the country or at the seashore. Volle, too, is holding its own in the world of fabrics, though its charms are quite secondary as compared with those of poplinette, silky crapes, dull gauzes and crepe de chine. The latter, by the way, is being produced now in a variety of new makes. For dainty afternoon frocks we are also using china crapes, figured cambries and foulards of every description.
