Too much housework wrecks wo men's nerves. And the constant care of children, day and night, is often too trying for even a strong woman. A haggard face tells the story of the overworked housewife and mother. Deranged menses, reucorrhea and falling of the womb result from overwork. Every housewife needs a remedy to regulate her menses and to keep her sensitive female organs in perfect condition.

WINE OF CARDUI

is doing this for thousands of American women to-day. It cured Mrs. Jones and that is why she writes this frank letter :

Glendeane, Ky., Feb. 10, 1901. Glendeane, Ky., Feb. 10, 1901. I am so glad that your Wine of Cardui is helping me. I am feeling better than I have felt for years. I am doing my own work without any help, and I washed last week and was not one bit tired. That shows that the Wine is doing me good. I am getting fleshier than I ever was before, and sleep good and eat hearty. Before I began taking Wine of Cardui, I used to have to lay down five or six times every day, but now I do not think of lying down through the day. MRS. RICEARED JONES.

Curious Polyglot Periodicals. Three curious polyglot periodicals are now being published.

One is the China Times, which is regularly printed in seven languages. It is published in the capital of China, and the languages in which it appears are the English, French, German, Italian, Russian, Japanese and Chinese.

Another polyglot paper is the Austrian semimouthly entitled Acta Comparationis Literarum Universarum. It has correspondents and subscribers all over the world, and the contributions of the former are invariably printed in the language of the countries from which they are sent. As a result it frequently happens that in one number of the paper there are articles in twentyfive or thirty languages.

The third polyglot paper is the "Pantolodion Magazine," which is published in St. Petersburg, and which contains critical essays regarding the new books guage of the country where the new book of which the essay treats appeared. Thus a review of an American book is printed in English, a review of a French book is printed in French. odical has contained articles in fifteen different languages-namely, German, French, English, Italian, Spanish Dutch, Portuguese, Swedish, Danish Hungarian, Roumania, Russian, Ser vian, Bohemian and Polish.

Overworked the Game.

Speaking of the trade in war relics just after the close of the Spanish war a Havana correspondent of the Boston Transcript writes: "One live American we know of gave it out that he had bought the last Spanish flagstaff from Morro Castle. A week or two later, as soon as shipments could be got from the States, this same man was selling walking sticks said to have been turned from the aforesaid flagstaff. Some of those sticks were of oak, oth ers of ash; some were mahogany and others ebony, but nobody in those days questioned little things like that. Th man might have made a fortune had h confined his business to walking sticks faise teaching which prevails on this He didn't, though. He began offering It abounds in small articles of household furniture carefully considered and practical ad- then larger ones, and at last, becoming rice, and has the two great merits of real bold, he tried to float a general furniture factory-all out of wood from this large flagstaff. > The Healthiest Load in Europe. An article in the Statistische Wochenchrift upon the comparative increase of longevity in the various nations of Europe imagines that Sweden will before long become recognized as the healthiest of European lands. In the early part of the last century its sank tary reputation was bad, but between 1830 and 1840 its mortality was reduced to 20.8 in 1,000. Each successive decade has shown a remarkable improvement in the longevity of its in habitants. In 1870 the deaths were 20.2 in 1.000; in 1900, 16.5. With such favorable conditions of health it is no wonder that the tourist in Sweden should say that he "met an old Swede at every turn."
