Bright's Disease.

The largest sum ever paid for a prescription changed hands in San Francisco Aug. 30, 1901. The transfer involved in coin and stock $112,500 and was paid by a party of business men for a specific for Bright's Disease and Diabetes hitherto insurable diseases.
They commenced the serious investigation of the specific Nov. 15, 1900. They interviewed scores of the cured and tried it out on its merits by putting over three dozen cases on the treatment and watching them. They also got physicians to name chronic, incurable cases, and administered it with the physician for judges. Up to Aug. 25 eighty-seven per cent. of the test cases were either well or progressing favorably.
There being but thirteen per cent. of failures, the parties were satisfied and closed the transaction. The proceedings of the investigating committee and the clinical reports of the test cases were published and will be mailed free on application. Address JOHN J. FULTON CO., 10 Montgomery St., San Francisco, Cal.

WASHINGTON LETTER

(Special Correspondence.)
The subject of a new public building to be located on the square bounded by Jackson place, Seventeenth and H streets and Pennsylvania avenue, just north of the state, war and navy department building, is under discussion by the senate committee on public buildings and grounds. Senator Fairbanks, the chairman of this committee, some time ago introduced a bill in the senate providing for a building on this site for the departments of state and justice. That bill has been under discussion, and it has already been decided by the committee that such a building should contain offices for the president of the United States, so that it will probably be styled the executive, state and justice building.
The square just north of Pennsylvania avenue, between Jackson place and Seventeenth street, is regarded as admirably suited for a building in which the offices of the president can be located. It is contemplated to construct between the building and the White House a tunnel, so that when the president desires he can pass from his office to his home without going out of doors. This tunnel will be lighted by electricity and ornamented in such a way that it will appear, in fact, no different from a beautiful corridor in the building.
District Wants Loan.
Congress will be asked to lend the District $11,000,000 for necessary public improvements. The list of items embraces a filtration reservoir for Potomac water, a complete system of sewage disposal, improvements of the streets, roads and highways of the District and the reclamation of the Anacostia flats and their conversion into a public park.
The amount of the loan to be collected has been agreed upon by twelve of the fourteen citizens' associations of the District of Columbia, and these bodies will co-operate in securing that sum.

Give the Homely Ones a Show.
The government printing office turned out senate bill No. 65, introduced by Mr. Hale, with its title reading, "A bill providing for the retirement of pretty officers and enlisted men of the navy."
"Good idea!" said Senator Tillman. "Retire all the pretty ones, and give Bob Evans a chance."
CARL SCHOFIELD.

A Printer Greatly Surprised.
"I never was so much surprised in my life as I was with the results of using Chamberlain's Pain Balm," says Henry T. Crook, pressman of the Ashville (N. C.) Gazette. "I contracted a severe case of rheumatism early last winter by getting my feet wet. I tried several things for it without benefit. One day, while looking over the Gazette, I noticed that Pain Balm was positively guaranteed to cure rheumatism, so I bought a bottle of it, and before using two-thirds of it my rheumatism had taken flight and I have not had a rheumatic pain since." Sold by City Drug Store.

After White House Raids.
A new rat catcher has come to town bent on exterminating the rats at the White House. He's willing to work by the day, job or scalp. His card reads: "W. B. Linticum, Professional Rat Catcher. All Work Guaranteed."
Linticum, who came here from Baltimore, is a constituent of Representative Wachtel. He saw Mr. Wachtel and offered to send at once for his "instruments"—seven ferrets and five dogs.
"For heaven's sake, don't bring them to the capitol!" pleaded Mr. Wachtel, who at once wrote Secretary Cortelyou, asking that the president consider Maryland in distributing any patronage connected with the rat killing industry.
Linticum claims to be the champion rat killer of the world. He estimates that he has exterminated more than a million rats.
"I could clean out that White House in a few days," he said. Linticum will remain in town until he hears from Secretary Cortelyou.
Rat traps, rat poisons and rat killing suggestions continue to pour into the White House.

A Unique Notice.
The Axtell (Kan.) Anchor recently printed the following unique notice: "We wish to bring to the notice of the friends of A. L. Gilland that his physician has cautioned him against any sudden starts or jerks. It has been the custom many times when greeting the old gentleman to take advantage of his extreme ticklishness. The surgeons say that a man of his nature, after undergoing such a critical operation, would be liable to be badly injured by a sudden start. Therefore his friends should not greet him in the old way by poking their finger in his ribs."

A GOOD PURCHASE

"Ruth," asked Mrs. Culberson of her daughter, "what was the package that came home for you today?"
"A dictionary," Ruth replied.
Mrs. Culberson's dismay could not have been more complete had she been informed that her daughter had brought home a box constictor.
"And what did you get that for, Ruthie?" she asked.
"Because I needed it," returned Ruth. "It must have been pretty expensive," hazarded her mother.
"Yes," sighed Ruth. "It cost 19 cents."
Mrs. Culberson appeared relieved, but not entirely satisfied.
"It seems to me, Ruthie," she went on quizzically, "that a girl who works for $10 a week, which is the only income two people have to depend upon, ought not to be spending her money for a dictionary. If you had 19 cents to spare for books, why didn't you buy three or four of those paper backed novels that would be of some interest to me, instead of a dictionary?"
The Culbersons lived in a boarding house where dictionaries were a rare commodity. Indeed, Ruth's was the only one about the house except Mr. Winter's, which was an exceedingly small pocket edition that contained only the words in most common use.
But somehow as soon as it became known that there was a large dictionary in Mrs. Culberson's room on the second floor and that everybody had been given free access thereto the desire for knowledge was given a wonderful impetus.
But the person who found occasion to refer to the big book most frequently was Mr. Winter. Mr. Winter was a grocer. Of course in his business he daily met with many terms that required elucidation. Hitherto he had found the pocket edition perfectly satisfactory, but after the advent of the unabridged dictionary the much worn, green backed little book suddenly lost its usefulness, and never an evening passed that Mr. Winter did not rap at Mrs. Culberson's door and politely request to "come in and look at the dictionary a minute."
His prolonged visits annoyed Mrs. Culberson at first. His presence prevented her scolding at Ruth, and as he himself seemed deeply immersed in scholastic lore, thus forbidding opening a conversation with him, the poor old lady's evenings became seasons of exquisite torment.
"I don't know what makes him come up here so often," she said pettishly one night after he had closed the dictionary and gone away. "He's an awful bore."
"It's your own fault he comes," said Ruth. "You invited him."
"Of course I invited him," retorted Mrs. Culberson. "I invited all of them. Doesn't he annoy you?"
"No," she said softly. "I don't know that he does."
As the spring days took on the heat of summer Mrs. Culberson became more fretful, Ruth grew younger and prettier, and Mr. Winter studied still later each evening in blissful oblivion of the added heat of the gas jet.
Mrs. Culberson had long since ceased sitting up waiting for him to go, but bade him good night and went to bed in the evening.
One evening in early June 10 o'clock passed and Mr. Winter had as yet made no movement toward going away. Ruth watched him closely, as she always did when he seemed engrossed with the words before him, and she noticed that he had not turned a page for more than an hour.
He looked up at length, and their eyes met. Ruth felt her face flushing again, and with the realization of her weakness the flush grew deeper.
"It's a pretty knotty problem that I have been puzzling over tonight," he said, with a sigh.
"Couldn't you find what you were looking for?" she asked softly.
"I hardly know. I found the word I wanted. Whether it will ever mean to me what I would like it to mean I do not know. Here it is. I have been looking at it a good deal lately."
He turned the big dictionary around till she could read the line over which his finger rested. There was one word underlined with a pencil, and she knew it was the one he wished her to see. It was spelled l-o-v-e.
"Is that ever to be for me?" he asked.
The blush had deepened into scarlet then. For a moment a look of exceeding happiness transfigured her face, but a moment later the old troubled expression drove it away. She turned the leaves of the dictionary till she came to the word "mother."
"That's all right," he said, and nodded toward the alcove.
Away over near the back of the book her next answer was found.
"Ruth," called out Mrs. Culberson a quarter of an hour later, "what made Mr. Winter stay so late this evening?"
"He was looking at the dictionary, mother."
"Did he find what he wanted?" asked Mrs. Culberson.
"Yes, mother," said Ruth, "I believe he did."
For the Complexion.
The complexion always suffers from biliousness or constipation. Unless the bowels are kept open the impurities from the body appear in the form of unsightly eruptions. DeWitt's Little Early Risers keep the liver and bowels in healthy condition and remove the cause of such troubles. C. E. Hooper, Albany, Ga., says: "I look DeWitt's Little Early Risers for biliousness. They were just what I needed. I am feeling better now than in years." Never gripe or distress. Safe, thorough and gentle. The very best pills. City Drug Store, Jacksonville, and Dr. J. Hinkle, Central Point.

FARM AND HOME is published semi-monthly, the 24 numbers which comprise a year's subscription making a volume of over 600 pages, teeming with all the latest and most reliable information that experience and science can supply. No better proof of its popularity can be offered than its enormous circulation, which extends into every state, each number being read by no less than a million readers.
THE ART CALENDAR
Contains a portfolio reproducing in color one of the greatest of modern paintings and four other masterpieces in single tone, each 6x13, suitable for framing
It also includes Weather Forecasts for every day in the year, space for Daily Memoranda, Monthly Guide to Work Outdoors and In, When to Buy and Sell, How to Combat All Pests of Home or Farm, Household Hints, Census Returns, Statistics, etc.
The Calendar proper comprises 25 pages, 6x9, and is embellished by a beautiful reproduction in all its original colors of a most charming and famous painting entitled "Writing to Papa," the picture representing a little girl seated at a table with pen in hand and diligently writing her first letter to her fond papa. Four additional masterpieces in single tone are also included, separate from the text of the calendar, each 6x9 inches. The subjects are: 1—A typical old master—"The Last Supper," by Leonardo da Vinci. 2—The greatest example of modern architecture—"The Capitol at Washington." 3—The finest sculpture of this age—"Angel with Tablet," by Augustus Saint Gaudens. 4—"The Oracle" by Harry Lowland, a typical American painter.
By a new and novel arrangement the printed pages can be easily turned and thus their valuable contents preserved for reference instead of being torn off and destroyed, as is the case with the ordinary calendar. In short, this work is a combination art portfolio, calendar, almanac, and weather forecasts of the utmost practical value.
Do not delay or fail to take advantage of this great offer, for never before was so much included in the Calendar as above described, all postpaid, at the very low price stated.
