eration thereof, each party reserving to itself the right of making any declaration to the other at the end of the ten years above mentioned; and it is agreed that after the expiration of the twelve months of prolongation accorded on both sides, this treaty and its stipulations shall cease to be in force.

Article XVII. This treaty shall be ratified and the ratifications shall be exchanged at Washington, within the term of nine months after its date, or sooner if possible.

In faith whereof, the respective plenipotentiaries have signed the present treaty, in duplicate, and have affixed thereto their seals, at Washington, the seventeenth of July, eighteen hundred and fifty-eight.

LOUIS CAS.
H. BOSS SPENCER.

And whereas the said convention has been duly ratified on both parts, and the respective ratifications of the same were exchanged in the city of Washington, on the 16th inst., by Lewis Cass, Secretary of State of the United States, and Henry W. T. Mall, consul-general of Belgium in the United States, on the part of the respective governments.

Now, therefore, I, James Buchanan, President of the United States of America, have caused the said convention to be made public, to the end that the same and every clause and article thereof may be observed and fulfilled with good faith by the United States and the citizens thereof.

In witness whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done in the city of Washington, this nineteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, and of the independence of the United States the eighty-first.

JAMES BUCHANAN,
By the President,
Lewis Cass, Secretary of State.

TREATY WITH THE EMPIRE OF JAPAN.

Treaty between the United States of America and the Empire of Japan. (Amity and Commerce). Concluded at the City of Yedo, July 20, 1858. Ratified by President of the United States, April 12, 1860. Exchange at City of Washington, May 22, 1860. Proclaimed by President of the United States, May 25, 1860.

By the President of the United States of America,
Lewis Cass, Secretary of State.

Whereas a treaty of amity and commerce between the United States and the Empire of Japan was concluded and signed by their respective plenipotentiaries at the City of Yedo, on the 20th day of July, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-eight, which treaty is word for word as follows:

The President of the United States of America and His Majesty the Ty-Coon of Japan, desiring to establish on firm and lasting foundations the relations of peace and friendship now happily existing between the two countries, and to secure the best interests of their respective citizens and subjects by encouraging the mutual commerce between the United States and Japan, have resolved to conclude a treaty of amity and commerce for this purpose, and have, therefore, named as their plenipotentiaries, that is to say: The President of the United States, his Excellency Townsend Harris, Consul General of the United States of America for the Empire of Japan, and his Majesty the Ty-Coon of Japan, his Excellency Iwakura Tomomi, Prince of Suway, and Iwakura Tomomi, Prince of Suway, after having communicated to each other their respective powers, and found them to be in good and due force, have agreed upon and concluded the following articles:

Article I. There shall henceforward be permanent peace and amity between the United States of America and His Majesty the Ty-Coon of Japan and his successors.

The President of the United States may appoint a diplomatic agent to reside at the City of Yedo, and consular agents to reside at any or all of the ports in Japan which are open for American commerce by this treaty. The diplomatic agent and consular general of the United States shall have the right to travel freely in any part of the Empire of Japan from the time they enter on the discharge of their official duties.

The government of Japan may appoint a diplomatic agent to reside at Washington, and consular agents for any or all of the ports of the United States from the time they arrive in the country.

Article II. The President of the United States, at the request of the Japanese government, will act as a friendly mediator in such matters of difference as may arise between the government of Japan and any European power.

The diplomatic agent and consular general of the United States and assistant consular general of the United States shall have the right to visit any port or place in Japan which is open to foreign trade, and to receive from the Japanese government the necessary facilities for the exercise of their official duties.

Article III. In addition to the ports of Simoda and Hakodade, the following ports and towns shall be opened on the dates respectively appended to them, that is to say: Kanagawa, on the 4th of July, 1859; fourth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and fifty-nine; Nagasaki, on the 4th of July, 1860; fourth day of July, one thousand eight hundred and sixty; Higo, on the 1st of January, 1862; first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two.

If Nise-gata is found to be unsuitable as a harbor, another port on the west coast of Nippon shall be selected by the two governments in lieu thereof. Six months after the opening of Kanagawa the port of Simoda shall be closed as a place of residence and trade for American citizens. In all the foregoing ports and towns American citizens may permanently reside; they shall have the right to lease ground, and to purchase the buildings thereon, and may erect dwellings and warehouses. No fortification or place of military strength shall be erected under pretense of building dwelling or warehouses; and to see that this article is observed, the Japanese authorities shall have the right to inspect, from time to time, any buildings which are being erected, and to see that the plans and foundations are in conformity with the regulations of each place, and if they cannot agree the matter shall be referred to and settled by the American diplomatic agent and the Japanese government.

No wall, fence, or gate shall be erected by the Japanese around the places of residence of the Americans, or anything done which may prevent a free ingress and egress to the same.

From the 1st of January, 1862, first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-two, Americans shall be allowed to reside in the city of Yedo; and from the 1st of January, 1863, first day of January, one thousand eight hundred and sixty-three, in the city of Osaka, or the port of trade only. In each of these two cities a suitable place within which they may hire houses, and the distance they may go, shall be arranged by the American diplomatic agent and the government of Japan. Americans may freely buy from Japanese and sell to them any articles that either may have for sale, without the intervention of any Japanese officers in such purchase or sale, or in making or receiving payment for the same; and all classes of Japanese may purchase, sell, keep, or use any articles sold to them by the Americans.

The Japanese government will cause this clause to be made public in every part of the empire as soon as the ratifications of this treaty shall be exchanged.

Munitions of war shall only be sold to the Japanese government and foreigners.

No rice or wheat shall be exported from Japan as cargo, but all Americans resident in Japan, and ships, for their crews and passengers, shall be furnished with sufficient supplies of the same. The Japanese government will sell, from time to time at public auction, any surplus quantity of copper that may be produced. Americans residing in Japan shall have the right to employ Japanese as servants or in any other capacity.

Article IV. Duties shall be paid to the government of Japan on all goods landed in Japan, and on the arrival of Japanese goods that are exported as cargo, according to the tariff hereto appended.

If the Japanese custom-house officers are dissatisfied with the value placed on any goods by the owner, they may place a value thereon, and offer to take the goods at that valuation. If the owner refuses to accept the offer, he shall pay duty on such valuation. If the offer be accepted by the owner, the purchase-money shall be paid to him without delay, and without any abatement or discount.

Supplies for the use of the United States navy may be landed at Kanagawa, Hakodade, and Nagasaki, and stored in the warehouses, in the same way as the goods of the American government, without the payment of any duty. But, if any such supplies are sold in Japan, the purchaser shall pay the proper duty to the Japanese authorities.

The importation of opium is prohibited, and any American vessel coming to Japan for the purpose of trade, having more than three (3) catta (four pounds avoirdupois) weight of opium on board, and any surplus quantity shall be seized and destroyed by the Japanese authorities. All goods imported into Japan, and which have paid the duty fixed by this treaty, may be transported by the Japanese into any part of the empire without the payment of any tax, excise, or transit duty whatever.

Higher duties shall be paid by Americans on goods imported into Japan than are fixed by this treaty, nor shall any higher duties be paid by Americans than are levied on the
