Farmers' Department.

"SOUTH AMERICAN" POTATO.—My present object is to call the attention of potato raisers to a variety called the "South Americans." They were first brought from New Hampshire to Marion county by a Mr. Shepard. Joseph Moshier, of Mt. Gilead, says of them: "Five years ago I planted three pecks of seed, and harvested fifty bushel good measure. The next year I planted one acre and gathered five hundred and thirty bushels. At the same time, other varieties on the same soil and with the same cultivation, yielded only about one-third as well." I have now planted them three seasons, side by side with the Bilboa, Pinkeye, and other good varieties, and they have always yielded for me twice as well as these kinds. Newman Pickard has planted them three seasons; he says they are the potatoes for farmers. Pliny Wyman planted them last Summer, and says "they go a little ahead of anything of the potato kind." J. V. Baker says "they are the best for the table that were ever used in his family." I sold a load of them Fall before last to Henry Hall, of Cleveland, for Winter use. Last Fall I sold him another load. I offered him his choice of seven kinds; he would have none but this kind. I do not say they are the best potato, but I think that for all seasons of the year they beat the Bilboa or Mercer, and always yield twice as well. The "South American" is a dark blue potato, very white meated. They have never rotted. They are dry and mealy at all times; early or late in the season. For keeping late in the Summer, they cannot be surpassed. If they are harvested or used when half grown, they are dry and mealy.—Ohio Farmer.

GREENHOUSE PLANTS IN ROOMS.—The various greenhouse plants which are kept in rooms, require a constant supply of water, which should always be applied on the tops of the pots, and from no consideration whatever should any be suffered to remain in the water pans or saucers under the pots, particularly in the winter season, when they must also be kept clean from dead leaves, etc. When the plants begin to draw, which will be indicated by their weak and sickly appearance, and the branches growing long and weak, the tops of the shoots should be just nipped off with the finger and thumb, or a pair of scissors, which will cause them to grow bushy and handsome. They must also be fumigated when there is any appearance of insects.

With respect to air, the plants should have a good share, in fine, warm weather. It is a very common, but not a good practice, to open the under sash window where the plants stand, as they are thus exposed to the draft, which injures them more than if they were entirely exposed to the open air. If the top sash be drawn up, or a window opened, where there are no plants, in fine weather it will prove beneficial. If the under sash be opened where the plants stand, they should be removed out of the draft to some other part of the room.

A SIMPLE PLAN FOR IRRIGATING FRUIT TREES.—John W. Cary of San Jose, has invented a cheap and convenient plan for irrigating fruit trees, that strikes us as being a little ahead of anything of the kind yet discovered. His plan is this: He takes a bucket, an old paint can, or anything that will hold water, and, filling it, places it near the tree. He then takes a bit of rope, of sea grass or hemp, and wrapping it twice around the body of the tree, slightly below the top of the bucket, suspends the two ends in the water. There you have the whole apparatus. It acts upon the principle of the syphon, and keeps the body of the tree constantly wet, feeding the roots with a steady supply of moisture. This proves an effectual remedy for the borer, and works every way to his entire satisfaction. The bucket should be filled as often as once a day, and no other care or trouble is necessary. Mr. Cary is satisfied that this method of irrigation for trees is destined to supercede all others, and from what we have seen of it as applied to his trees, we are inclined to the same opinion.—San Jose Mercury.

CALIFORNIA FOR BEES.—The Nevada Journal says on the bee subject: "An experience of one year in bee keeping has convinced us that no other country in the world can exceed California for the propagation of the honey-bee. Last year, on the 20th of May, we had living a pint and a half of bees. During two months following it was a mooted question whether they would live or die. We were advised to throw the hives, bees and all, out of the garden into the road, and save our time and patience. To-day we have fourteen as good colonies as need be, and might have had twenty-five instead, had we succeeded in obtaining hives. We have been obliged, for want of houses for the insects, to destroy queen cells, to keep them from swarming. From one large colony we have had five new ones this year, the first swarm having given off a new one fifteen days after it was hived. With but ordinary luck we can easily increase the number of our colonies, by the 1st of June, to thirty. We give these facts for the benefit of the public.

PACIFIC CASHMERE COMPANY.—An association of gentleman in San Joaquin county, under the name and style of the Pacific Cashmere Company, have made arrangements with the United Cashmere Company, of Tennessee, for the shipment of fifty two Cashmere goats for the propagation and the production of Cashmere wool. The editor of the Republican has examined specimens of the wool, shorn from the pure, full, seven-eights, three-fourths, and half-blood goats, which are truly magnificent, being as fine and soft as silk. The fleece of the first grade is six inches in length, and is valued at $8 per pound. The lower grades are coarser, shorter fleece, and much less in value for manufacturing purposes. The celebrated Cashmere shawls, the finest of which sell for almost fabulous prices, are manufactured from the wool of the Cashmere goat.

CHLOROFORM ON BEES.—The other afternoon, says an exchange, Mr. Annan, builder, Downfield, wishing to take the honey from a hive without killing the bees and having heard of chloroform being used, felt anxious to try the experiment. He first closed the doorway, then covered the hive with a cloth to shut out the light as much as possible, after which he commenced to blow chloroform into the hive. When it was discovered that the bees had fallen asleep, they were easily removed to another hive without harm to any one, and next morning were all awake and in a living state, humming around their hive, no doubt wondering what had happened. This being successful and useful in keeping the bees alive, we make it known for the benefit of others.

LONGEVITY OF THE QUEEN BEE.—Queen Bees usually die in their fourth year, though they have been known to live longer. There is, therefore, very great advantage in hives which allow her, when she has passed the period of her greatest fertility, to be easily removed.

FOOD OF COWS AFTER CALVING.—It is customary with many farmers to feed cows immediately after calving, with warm slops—a pail of bran or meal and warm water, well salted—and a better diet is commenced at once in order to get as much milk as possible. A writer in the Homestead objects to this proceeding as contrary to nature, and very likely to induce caked bag and milk fever. He contends that the cow should have rest and quiet, rather than "a dose of physic and warm mashes," as is often given, and adds: "It is an error to suppose that tasking the stomach after the fatigue of parturition can be otherwise than hurtful. A drink of water and a little dry hay, is enough for the first day, and she should have nothing better than the best hay for three or four days—until all inflammatory symptoms are passed."

A PERFECT RAT DRIVER.—Chloride of lime has frequently proved a sure thing to drive rats away from any place infested by them. An ounce of it, scattered in the place where they come to feed, or wrapped in a bit of muslin and put in their holes, where it acquires dampness, produces a gas that is not offensive to man, but is to the rats. If chloride of lime is moistened with muriatic acid, and placed in a drain, vault, or cellar, and closed from the air a little while, the rats will depart, because it will be death to remain. This is also a good disinfectant, and will for a time cure the effluvia of a dead rat. One application of dry chloride of lime to rat holes has driven them away for a year when a renewal of it started them again.

BEES AND FRUIT-TREES.—A writer in a literary journal of Paris states that the bees greatly improve the fructification of fruit-trees. Orchards in which several hives are kept, always produce more fruit than those in which there are none. In the provinces on the Rhine, the fruits are far more abundant and finer than in other parts of Germany, and there it is the custom to keep large quantities of bees. Plants too, which bees visit, thrive better in the neighborhood of hives.

RENOVATION.—The editor of the New England Farmer, says that a gentleman residing in Cambridge informs him that charcoal placed around the roots of the deceased peach stock was serviceable. He immediately removed the soil from around the trunk of a sickly tree in his garden, supplied its place with charcoal, and was surprised at its sudden renovation and subsequent rapidity of growth, and the tenacity with which the fruit held on the branches and the unusual richness of its flavor when matured.

STABILITY OF THINGS IN ENGLAND.—In one of his lectures, Mr. Emerson tells a story to exemplify the stability of things in England. He says that William of Wykeham, about the year 1050, endowed a house in the neighborhood of Winchester, to provide a measure of beer and a sufficiency of bread to every one who asked it, forever; and when Mr. Emerson was in England, he was curious to test that good man's credit; and he knocked at the door, preferred his request, and received his measure of beer and quantum of bread, though its owner had been dead 860 years!

AN enamored swain, somewhere down east, in an attempt to do the agreeable by way of a midnight serenade, met with a damper that cut him home with a flea in his ear. He began thus:

"O cub cub wid be,
When the bood ab beabing—
Cub cub wid be,
Whed the stars ab gleaming—"

Just then a huge, unwashed face protruded from a garret window, and bellowed out, with a melodious nasal twang: "Blow your dose you dab fool!"

"SALLY MANDER safe?" said Mrs. Partington, scanning an advertisement.

"Do tell me, Isaac, who this Sally Mander is, and what she's been doing that they have got her safe?"

"I don't know," said Isaac, "but I guess she's a sister to Jerry."

"Jerry who, Isaac?"

"Why, Jerry Mander," said Isaac, as he sat watching a fly drag itself along the ceiling, with a pin ingeniously run through its body.

SHOW YOUR COLORS.—A newsboy who was selling Union flags and cockades in San Francisco at the time of the great Union meeting, called out to a gentleman passing, "Want a flag sir?" The gentleman replied, "No, my lad; I wear my colors around my heart." "That won't do, sir," said Young America; "every man must show his colors to day, sir!" Truer words were never spoken. The present is a crisis when every man must show his colors.

FUNNY CUSTOM.—In the county of Kent, England, it is a custom when a newly married couple leave the church, to strew the pathway, not with flowers, but with emblems of the bridegroom's calling. Carpenters walk on shavings, butchers on skins of slaughtered sheep, the followers of St. Crispin are honored with leather parings, paper makers with slips of paper, blacksmiths with old iron, rusty nails, etc.

"NEVER MIND THE WOOD-SHED."—"My dear Amelia," said a dandy, "I have long wished for this opportunity, but hardly dare speak now for fear you will reject me. But I love you; say you will be mine! "Your smiles would shed—would shed—" and then he came to a pause again. "Never mind the wood-shed," said Amelia, "go on with the pretty talk!"

TO MAKE NAMES GROW IN FRUIT.—When the peaches and nectarines are about half ripe, cover the sides exposed to the sun with wax, in any desired shape or form, which hides the sun from coloring the parts covered; and when the fruit is ripe, and the wax removed, it will be found marked in the manner desired.

IN regard to the enthusiasm in Kentucky a paper in that State says: Major Anderson has been advised that 20,000 Kentuckians hold themselves in readiness to fight with him in defense of the Union, whenever and wherever their services may be required.

ANOTHER ELEMENT DISCOVERED.—The new mode of analysis by the lines of the spectrum is rapidly yielding fruit. William Crookes, of London, editor of the Chemical News, has just discovered by its means a new element, probably of the sulphur group.

THE muscles of the human jaw produce a power equal to four hundred and thirty-four pounds. This is only what science tells us, but we know the jaw of some of our lawyers is equal to a good many thousand pounds a year for them.
