"To THE REPUTACY AND PERMANENCY OF YOUR UNION, A GOVERNMENT FOR THE WHOLE IS INDISPENSABLE!"—Washington.

The Star-Spangled Banner.

By PHILIP MARTIN KEY, M.D.

On every gushy, on the daw's early light,
What so sweetly we had at the twilight's last gleaming!

whose broad stripes and bright stars thru the glorious light;

Over the rampart we watched were so gallantly streaming!

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved, representative houses repeatedly, or, opposing with many firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused, for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the State remaining, in the mean time, exposed to all the danger of invasion without, and convulsions within.

He has endeavored to prevent the population of those States; for that purpose obstructing the laws for naturalization of foreigners; refusing to pass others to encourage their migration hither, and raising the conditions of new appropriations of lands.

He has obstructed the administration of justice, by refusing his assent to laws for establishing judiciary powers.

He has made judges dependent on his will, for the tenure of their offices, and the amount and payment of their salaries.

He has created a multitude of new offices, and sent hither swarms of officers to harass our people, and eat out their substance.

He has kept among us, in time of peace, standing armies, without the consent of our legislature;

He has affixed to render the military independent of, and superior to, the civil power.

He has combined, with others, to subject us to a jurisdiction foreign to our constitution, and unacknowledged by our laws; giving his assent to their acts of pretended legislation;

For quartering large bodies of armed troops among us;

For protecting them, by a mock trial, from punishment, for any misdeeds which they should commit on the inhabitants of these States;

For cutting off our trade with all parts of the world;

For imposing taxes on us without our consent;

For depriving us, in many cases, of the benefit of trial by jury;

For transporting us beyond seas to be tried for pretended offenses;

For abolishing the free system of English laws in a neighboring province, establishing therein an arbitrary government, and enlarging its boundaries, so as to render it at once an example and fit instrument for introducing the same absolute rule into these colonies;

And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave;

Over the land of the free and the home of the brave!

On the shore dimly seen thro' the mists of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence reposes,
What is that which the breeze o'er the towering steep,
As it mildly blows, half conceals, half discloses?

Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam;

Full glory reflected, now shines on the cream:

'Tis the star-spangled banner, O long may it wave!

Over the land of the free and the home of the brave!

And where is that land whose vanquished sword
Had the luster of war and the battle's confusion.

A home and a country they'd leave us no more;
Their blood had won't out their foul foot-steps pollution.

No refuge could save the hireling and slave,
From the terror of flight or the gloom of the grave.

And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave;

Over the land of the free and the home of the brave.

On thus it ever, when freemen shall stand
Between their loved homes and war's desolation!

Blessed with victory and peace, may the Heaven-rosen land;

Praise the Power that hath made and preserv'd us a nation.

Then conquer we must when our cause it is just;
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust!"

And the star-spangled banner in triumph shall wave;

Over the land of the free and the home of the brave!

Col Ellsworth's Body in New York.

[From the New York Herald, May 27th.]

The Funeral cortège arrived at the Astor House at twenty minutes after five, when the body was conveyed to room No. 41, and laid under a canopy draped in mourning and festooned with red, white and blue.

The coffin containing the remains of the lamented soldier is of solid iron, painted like rosewood, and having a large oval glass top, extended about half way from the head. It is beautifully mounted, and decorated with wreaths of evergreens, roses and a variety of rare flowers, provided by Mrs. Astor. At the head of the coffin, on the left hand side of the deceased, was placed the secession flag which he captured before he was shot, sprinkled here and there with his blood. The coffin was literally covered with flowers, and no inscription was observable, but our reporter was informed by one of the escort that there was none. A black velvet belt, bearing the words, "in raised silver letters," "Washington Zouaves" encircled the coffin.

He has refused his assent to laws the most wholesome and necessary for the public good.

He has forbidden his Government to pass laws of immediate and pressing importance, unless suspended in their operation till his assent should be obtained; and, when so suspended, he has utterly neglected to attend to them.

He has refused to pass other laws for the accommodation of large districts of people, unless those people would relinquish the right of representation in the legislature; a right indispensable to them, and dear to tyrants.

He has called together legislative bodies at places unusual, uncomfortable, and distant from the depository of their public records, for the sole purpose of fatiguing them into compliance with his measures.

He has dissolved, representative houses repeatedly, or, opposing with many firmness, his invasions on the rights of the people.

He has refused, for a long time after such dissolutions, to cause others to be elected; whereby the legislative powers, incapable of annihilation, have returned to the people at large for their exercise; the State remaining, in the mean time, exposed to all the danger of invasion without, and convulsions within.

It was a scene such as may be witnessed once in a long period of years—deeply affecting, solemn, and悲痛.

The mother and father of Colonel Ellsworth, with hearts bowed down in grief, awaited the arrival of the body of their beloved son in painful anxiety at the Astor House, and as soon as the coffin containing the lamented hero was deposited in the room, both parents entered and proceeded to load him on a stretcher.
