

THE OREGON SENTINEL.

Under the caption of "British Vaporing" the Pleasville Daily News, an ally-edited and spirited little paper, remarks as follows in connection with the prospect of a declaration of war by England:

"The British aristocracy hate American republicanism with an unspicable hatred, and they recognize the Southern conspirators as a corresponding aristocracy, alike inimical to the formidable and increasing power of Labor, which is beginning to shake the thrones of monarchy. But they are not unaware of the fact that the spirit of republican liberty lurks in ten thousand fastnesses, in the depths of Hungary, on the cliffs of the Alps, in the hearts of Poland, under the thatches of Ireland, and even among the fallen arches and dethroned statues where Ricci beheaded the gossamer emperors of Italy. Hither are turned the longing eyes of liberty from the premonitions of every foreign shore; hither would the strong arms of Labor bring all his kindred, not to be broken ruthlessly by a slave oligarchy, or to trail, side by side, with the swarthy bondman, but to lay their heart-sones on the equal ground where labor is honorable. And whenever the monarchists of Europe undertake to destroy this last refuge of fugitive liberty, Labor will rise from his manifold lairings, place a very Briarion with an hundred arms. Monarchy is not now in condition to come in conflict with the republican spirit of the age."

INCIDENTS OF THE FLOOD AT SACRAMENTO.—The Bee says there may be fun even in a drowned city, and relates the following incidents in demonstration:

Yesterday morning we met a citizen, who, notwithstanding heavy losses, wore his customary cheerful look.

"You have lost your house, we hear?"

"Yes."

"And all your furniture, of course?"

"Yes, but I have saved my family."

"What is the damage to your stock of goods?"

"About five thousand dollars."

"Heavy, isn't it?"

"Yes, but it's—on the rats?"

"That man will never commit suicide."

On one of the K street crossings, the following poetical inscription bids the wayfarer:

"Let the dangers of the sleep?"

"This hole is not possible, Not even Jack-o'-lantern, You'd better not want it, If you do, you'll repent it."

"Oh, I have opened one of your letters, supposing it to be addressed to myself. Certainly it looks more like Mrs. than Mr."

"Is that all? What harm can there be in a wife's opening her husband's letters?"

"No harm in the thing itself, but the contents. Such a disgrace!"

"Who has dared to write me a letter unfit to be read by my wife?"

"Oh no, it is couched in the most chaste and beautiful language. But the contents and the contents!"

Here the wife buried her face in her handkerchief, and commenced sobbing aloud, while the husband eagerly caught up the letter and commenced reading the epistle that had nearly broken his wife's heart. It was a bill from the printer for three years' subscription for the newspaper!

THE PLAN OF DORRIS.—In the Chicago Post, which was Senator Douglas' month-piece, and is edited by his warm personal friend, Mr. Johnson, we find the following statement:

"Mr. Douglas' plan to preserve the Democratic party was that the Democrats should run this war, as they had run every other war since the foundation of this Union; in fact make it a Democratic war and fight it with all the powers of the nation, and if necessary to station a standing army in every one of the rebel States, and by the bayonet enforce obedience to the laws. Pierce with regular troops enforced the laws in Boston; why should not Lincoln do the same thing in Charleston? He was for dropping all local issues and controversies until after the war was closed; and then in a Union preserved, he was for raising one more the old Democratic banner, inscribed with the names of a hundred battles for that Union, and again dispute with the old political enemy the contest at the ballot-box."

DON'T LIKE YANKEES.—Jeff Davis, in one of his speeches, not a great while ago, remarked with characteristic energy, that

"He was down on the North and all Yankees. Had he the power he would put every d— Yankee in the middle of — and roll Bonker Hill monument at the door to keep them there. Yankees have no souls—they would go to the very gates of — for two bits. They had been analyzed and found to contain a certain number of parts of Abolitionism, certain other parts of cobweb and potatoes, and the balance New England rum—but nary soul!"

OF COURSE SHE DELIVERED IT.—Indignant and much injured wife—"So air, out all night again. Now I should like to know where you have been."

Delinquent and very erratic husband—"Been, my dear—ah, yes—well, ah, you see—Brown came to the city, and wanted to see the sights. I took him to see the city from the spire of Trinity, and the sexton forgot us and locked us in, and we were obliged to remain up there all night."

The reason why the dying never weep is because the manufactories of life stop forever; the human system has ceased its functions. In all disease, the liver is the very first organ that ceases to work—one by one the others follow, and all the fountains of life are kept dried up; there is no secretion, life at length in death weeps not, not that affliction is dead in the heart, but because there are no tears drop in it any more than there is moisture on the lip.

Malruet undoubtedly understood how to raise troops for his wars, and to make them fight. He obtained that the soldier who performed any single exploit in battle should not be refused, during the whole expedition, whatever his age or deformity, a kiss from any woman that he chose to ask for it.

A UNION FLEET.—A Washington paper contains the marriage of Martin Briggs to Louisa Seaton, former daughter to Margaret Scott, George Shipley to Phoebe Carter. We presume they will get along admirably.

Think of the pleasure that Fulton enjoyed when he took his first fare of six dollars at Albany—a passenger down to New York.—And think of the first five shillings that Franklin took for printing a job at Philadelphia. Then think of Curran's first brief. These recollections will make you courageous.

"When I go shopping," said an old lady, "I always ask for what I want, and if they have it, and it's suitable, and I feel inclined to buy it, and it's cheap, and it can't be got any place for less, I mustn't alter that, without chattering about it all day, as most people do."

"How high did the water get on your floor?" we inquired of a resident of one of the more favored localities of the city.

"Just high enough to take the starch out of my shirt collar."—See Rev.

A WIFE IS TROUBLED.—Pray tell me, my dear, what is the cause of those tears?"

"O, such a disgrace!"

"What is it, my dear? don't keep me in suspense?"

Born of the Zanesville (O.) papers pronounce the telegraph report that Lincoln was burnt in effigy in that city on the evening of the 5th ultimo, false and slanderous.

HUSBAND I must have some change to-day. "Well, stay at home and take care of the children—that will be change enough."

Dr. JOHNSON says "Good actions are never lost or thrown away." That is probably the reason one so seldom meets with them.

"Tony, what did the Israelites do after they crossed the Red Sea?" "Tony—I don't know, ma'am but I guess they dried themselves."
